By CLAUDE A. JAGGER.
NEW YORK, May 27.—(AP)—Another wild scramble to convert dollars into stocks and commodities piled up the largest volume of trading ever experienced with rising prices in a Saturday session in the New York stock exchange today.

Inflation fever ran high, in response to the government's plan to brogate the gold clause in private and public obligations, and trading in the Chicago grain pit was almost as excited as the dealings in the New York stock exchange. While scores of stocks rose 1 to 10 cents, wheat, heat made extreme advances of 3 cents a bushel.

Cotton at New High.

Cotton prices advanced 85 cents to more than a $1 a bale with all future months closing above the 9-cent mark, the closing figures placed the south's standard commodity into new high ground for the movement.

Both stocks and average prices of sensitive raw commodities were back to the levels of a year and a half ago, indicating that much had been done to overcome the deflationary effects upon our prices of England's abandonment of the gold standard in September, 1931, and the main consequences which followed.

While the abrogation of clauses in government and corporate bonds which made interest and principal payable in gold have not in fact been operative since President Roosevelt took control of the currency on March 6, the announcement of the taking of such steps definitely to cancel these provisions fired speculative enthusiasms and inflationary hopes and fears a nothing had since the United States formally declared itself off the gold standard six weeks ago.

Volume Swells.

The turnover in the stock exchange during the two hours of trading exceeded 4,300,000 shares, the largest ever for a rising market on a Saturday, and the second largest for a Saturday session in stock market history. The biggest two-hour session in history occurred on May 20, 1930, when the market took hold that the crash late in 1929 had signaled the start of a serious depression, and stocks were pumped feverishly, piling up a turnover of more than 4,800,000 shares.

It took the new high speed stock ticker 41 1-2 minutes after the closing gong to complete the record of transactions today. That was the biggest delay ever experienced since his ticker system was installed nearly three years ago.

The market opened with a huge accumulation of overnight buying orders, and there were many opening transactions of 5,000 to 25,000 shares. Heavy profit-taking sales were absorbed in shares, and in wheat and cotton as well, as trading progressed, but final prices were not far from the best, in most cases.

Week-end trade news was largely encouraging, but was over-shadowed

No Beer for Dalton During Church Hours

DALTON, Ga., May 27.—Dalton beer retailers have declared a truce with dry forces opposing the sale of beer in this city. It was announced today. Twelve retailers have agreed that they will sell no beer in their establishments on Sundays during the hours in which church services are being held. This action was taken at the request of the Rev. A. C. McHan, pastor of the Hamilton Street Methodist church.

A beer legalization ordinance is pending in council. It was offered more than two weeks ago, but thus far no action has been taken on it.

A. W. Long Jr., of Oglethorpe, Dies in Crash With Auto Driven by Professor of Theology.

A. W. Long Jr., 19-year-old son of a well-known Atlanta attorney, was almost instantly killed Saturday afternoon when the motorcycle he and a companion, Howell Wager, were riding, crashed into an automobile driven by the Rev. C. C. Outler, of the Emory University theological school.

According to J. C. Rasbury, DeKalb county police chief, who made a personal investigation, the accident, which occurred at Emory road and North Decatur road, was unavoidable.

Police said Mr. Outler told them he had stopped at Emory road just before turning west onto North Decatur when the motorcycle, apparently moving fairly rapidly, crashed into the rear bumper of his automobile. Young Long was tossed several feet into the air, fell to the concrete and suffered a double fracture of the skull. Wager, Ernest Long, of Long was taken to Emory University hospital but died 10 minutes after arriving there.

Long, who was a student at Oglethorpe University and lived at 1381 Emory road, N. E., is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Long, a sister, Miss Elizabeth Long, and a brother, Ernest Long.

Funeral services will be held at Spring Hill at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Louis D. Newton officiating. Interment will be in College Park cemetery.

Saturday's auto crash resulted in the second fatality in Atlanta in as many days. Friday, R. C. Herren, 19, of 759 Jefferson street, also was fatally injured when his motorcycle crashed into an automobile.

Schley Howard Smith Jr., 3, suffered a fractured leg Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by E. G. Beal, 616 English avenue. The little boy ran from behind a parked car in front of Beal's machine. No charges were preferred against Beal.

Miss Lillian Howard, 15, 60 Ormond street, suffered a probable brain concussion when an automobile driven by J. W. Howard, 19, of the same address, collided with the dismounted and Ormond streets with another driven by Frank Jones, negro, of 182 Phoenix avenue. Miss Margaret Embrey, of 61 Weyman avenue, riding with the Howards, suffered lacerations about the head.

Congress To Adjourn Its Labors by June 10

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and congressional leaders speeded up the emergency program today and fixed June 10 as two weeks hence for adjournment of the extra session.

The president informed Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, he would send up next week one more piece of legislation—a proposal giving him power to raise or lower tariff rates in accordance with reciprocal agreements with other nations.

Cooking School and Food Show Will Highlight Activities of June

The Atlanta Constitution announces today the first annual Constitution and Volunteer Food Stores Cooking School and Food Show. It will take place at the Georgia theater, June 13, 14, 15 and 16. An added feature will be a style show sponsored each morning by Rich's, Inc.

Of widespread interest will be the news that the lectures will be under the personal direction of Mrs. Kate Stafford, who last August won thousands of admirers, while directing The Constitution's annual summer school of cookery.

Both The Constitution and the Volunteer Food Stores have arranged to present the most elaborate program ever offered in Atlanta. Not only will four most interesting lectures be given, but the Georgia theater will be literally transformed to harmonize with the spirit of the occasion.

In the entire lobby and foyer will be arranged for demonstrating booths, in which nationally known food manufacturers and demonstrators will give actual exhibitions of the culinary art. The inside lobby will also be divided into exhibition booths, and the housewife who visits this cooking school will profit in many ways.

RAILROAD BILL GIVEN APPROVAL OF SENATE BODY

Measure for Broad Government Control of Roads Passed Without Record Vote.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(AP)—The administration bill granting power to a federal co-ordinator to work out economies in railroad operations was passed by the senate today and sent to the house, where it will encounter opposition because of senate amendments to prohibit dismissals of employees in effecting retrenchments.

A similar measure before the house commerce committee is expected to be reported next week, but democratic leaders at that end of the capitol said it would not carry the labor clauses put in by the senate at the request of the railway labor unions.

House leaders intimated strongly the bill would fail if these clauses remained, holding economies could not be effected unless some employees were dropped.

Authorized Economies.

As passed by the senate after a six-hour day amendment had been drawn on announcement that President Roosevelt was against it, the measure suspends the anti-trust laws for one year and authorizes a federal co-ordinator to effect economies in co-operation with three railroad regional committees by:

Eliminating unnecessary duplication of services, arranging for joint use of terminals and tracks, taking steps to avoid waste and promoting financial reorganizations to reduce fixed charges and improve carrier credit. This section is for a two-year emergency period, but it could be extended another year if the president desired.

The bill has two permanent sections, one repealing the reciprocal clause of the transportation act retroactively and the other placing railroad holding companies under federal control.

Rate-Making Provisions.

Although the co-ordination could not fix rates, the bill sets up a new basis for rate-making by declaring broadly that the interstate commerce commission shall give consideration, in fixing rates, to their effect on traffic movements, the need of adequate, efficient railway service at the lowest cost consistent with furnishing it, and the need of revenues sufficient to enable the railroad to maintain its property.

Roosevelt Leaves For Potomac Cruise

QUANTICO, Va., May 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, accompanied by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, boarded a yacht late this afternoon for a week-end cruise down the Potomac.

The president and his party motored 40 miles through alternating calm and thunderstorms from the capital to this marine station where the presidential yacht, Sequoia, was tied up.

In the party was Mr. and Mrs. Woodin, Admiral and Mrs. C. T. Grayson and Miss Margaret Lehman. As the president went up the gangplank marine barracks officers greeted him. Laying to, out in mid-stream, were two coast guard cutters, their crews drawn up at the rail for inspection as the Sequoia cruised slowly by.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to return to Washington tomorrow afternoon.

Senator Couzens Charges 'Subtle Campaign' Being Conducted Against Ferdinand Pecora.

By NATHAN ROBERTSON.
(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 27.—(AP)—Profits of untold millions to the House of Morgan through security flotations and syndicate operations were disclosed today in documents obtained from the innermost files of the banking house by senate investigators.

They showed the Morgan firm reported to the investigators gross profits of $18,284,908 from the sale of securities alone during the five-year period from 1927 to 1931, inclusive, in addition to untold millions on other operations.

Bare details of stock pool or syndicate operations in which the Morgan house participated, hinted at untold millions of additional profits, but the total could only be guessed because of the form in which it was reported.

Committee investigators have gone back of the figures presented by Morgan and found additional profits which will be totaled and submitted later to the inquiry committee. The Morgan reports showed them only as shares still held.

A joint account in Procter & Gamble Company common stock from July 1929 to June 1930, in which Morgan's profits were $1,833,850, revealed the size of some of the operations. A total of 186,000 shares were bought and sold for the account.

The period covered by the figures included two and a half "booms" and the same number of "depression" years.

Testimony before the committee has shown that the 20 partners in the firm paid total income taxes of $11,000,000 in 1929; $48,000 in 1930, and none in 1931. But the profits revealed today were not divided into years.

One of the most interesting documents was a summary of the operations of the so-called bankers' pool, which went into the market in 1929 shortly after the collapse. It showed the pool, listed under the name "special suspension account," made a total profit of $1,067,355, of which Morgan's share was $170,776.

'Subtle Campaign' Charged.

As these disclosures were made today, Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, a member of the investigating committee, charged a "subtle campaign" was being conducted against Ferdinand Pecora, the counsel who has been conducting the inquiry.

Couzens said charges had been submitted to him designed to "discredit" the aggressive committee agent and Secretary Hull had asked that the embargo resolution be approved by the senate in the form in which it came from the house, allowing the president to embargo munitions shipments to Japan and the Philippines. It was indicated, however, that he assented to the Johnson amendment.

operating costs reduced to the minimum, and in which two persons can run the business that would require six clerks in an old-line store—without a single customer ever having to wait to be served. And stores mind you, which by large-scale cooperative buying can offer their goods so cheap as to meet the sharpest competition of the biggest chain organizations.

But here's more good news—the main feature, I think, of this remarkable development in the grocery field. A Hom-Ord store is more than just another food store, and I say this with confidence.

Everyone knows the importance to a community of a strong, well-managed, locally owned business enterprise, keeping in the community the profits earned in the community. That is just what a Hom-Ond or "M" system store does.

I am remembering a conversation with Mr. Walter D. Couch during a visit to our city. "You ask me about chain stores," he said.

"But," continued Mr. Couch, "you know and I know why so many of our communities are being sapped of their vitality. It is the diverting of profit on business done in the community away from the local merchant, into the large cities where the chain systems are owned. A chain store leaves the least money possible in the town; it does business in, and sends away, the largest amount possible. The reverse is true of the independent Home or "M" System store—it sends away the least possible, keeps in the community the largest amount possible, thus contributing to the town's advancement and prosperity."

"You must not be surprised," he said. "The past 12 months has been a record-breaking year for us, in the 22 states we operate in. Here's the reason: People want to trade where they can get the most for their money and they prefer to trade with a home enterprise. We win on both points.

What an opportunity, I thought. And thinking out loud, I said: 'I Franchises are available in every Georgia city not already serviced by one of these stores but they are being taken up rapidly. detailed information about the plan, and if you ask it, to give you the names of hundreds of owners and operators of these successful stores in many states. If you or any friend of yours would be interested in such an attractive business opportunity, by all means write Mr. Couch at once.)—adv

UNMITTLED PUSH S. GOLD ACTION

Resolution, Twice Approved, Expected To Get Consideration Monday.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(AP)—The administration's move to abolish the gold clause in existing and future contracts and to make public and private obligations payable in legal tender money today received speedy congressional approval and plans for completion for action on Monday.

Despite the swift action on the resolution, introduced only yesterday, the proposal was assailed by some in the Senate who argued that it constituted "rank repudiation" and nullification of government and private obligations amounting to approximately $10,000,000,000.

Shortly after the house banking committee reported the measure voted 9 to 3. Then, to expedite house action Monday, the rules committee provided procedure giving the resolution the right of way.

The resolution would make all contracts, heretofore and hereafter made, payable in legal tender coin, regardless whether they contain a clause providing for their payment in gold.

Covers All Obligations. This would cover mortgages and bonds of all kinds, including Liberty bonds, all forms of securities, and other debts, most of which have carried a clause in the past providing for their payment in gold.

Action in all three committees came on executive sessions. Dean Acheson, treasury undersecretary of the treasury, explained the measure before the Senate committee. He said about 10,000,000,000 of the government's gold on the $22,000,000,000 in outstanding federal bonds and war bonds due the United States from foreign countries.

Payment in Currency. As the measure now stands, foreign governments may pay $11,000,000 in war debts in United States dollars instead of in gold as contracted, and the United States must pay its bonds in currency instead of gold.

"It is just rank repudiation and it's all there is to it," the senator said. "They are talking themselves blue in the face and they can't do anything else out of it."

Glass joined Kean, republican, New York, and Gore, democrat, Oklahoma, in voting against the bill. In the Senate committee, representatives of republicans, Massachusetts; Wallcut, republican, Michigan; Brown, democrat, Michigan; and Kelly, democrat, Wisconsin, voted against the measure.

Earlier the house group defeated, 5 to 1, an amendment by which the measure from becoming retroactive. Luce contended that the gold clause in existing contracts could not be abrogated.

In a statement, Luce said the measure "impairs the obligation of contracts; it is unfair, and undermines the whole business as well as our legal structure."

"The worst part of this proposal is the breaking of faith with those who have invested money in the gold standard," he said.

"From the practical point of view of action," he said, "has two very serious objections. First, it restricts the freedom of our delegates to the London economic conference by not intimating what will be the policy of the United States, and second, it still further discourages merchants, manufacturers and all men of affairs from attempts at immediate shipment of activities."

Chairman Stengall of the house banking committee, said the measure affirms, reaffirms, confirms and makes legal a situation now existing.

"This bill will put us on a managed currency basis. It will broaden our currency basis," he said. "It is as at home and abroad of dependence on gold. It is a declaration of economic independence. It will restore prosperity."

Rainwater and Brownlee Promoted by Coca-Cola Co.

W. M. BROWNLEE.

C. V. RAINWATER.

Declaring quarterly and semi-annual dividends on stock, directors of the Coca-Cola Company Saturday elected C. V. Rainwater, prominent figure in the Coca-Cola Bottling Company for many years, a vice president of the Coca-Cola Company.

A quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on common stock was declared, as was $1.50 semi-annual dividend on Class "A" stock of the company. A financial report showed the company is still making large earnings, the total before the reserve for income taxes for the first quarter of 1933 was $2,092,282.71. After deductions were made for taxes and dividends for Class "A" stock, the net earnings for the first quarter and applicable to the common stock were $1,301,333 as compared to $1,803,435 for the first quarter of 1932.

Mr. Rainwater is a director of the First National bank and is active in other leading business enterprises. Mrs. Rainwater is the former Miss Blanche Brown Edmondson, of Abbeville, Ala.

Mr. Brownlee, now a resident of East Hartford, Conn., from which point he supervises the operations of a number of Coca-Cola bottling plants, is former managing director of the Coca-Cola Company of Canada, Ltd., and prior to holding that post was president of the Cable Plant Company, Atlanta. While a resident here he was president of the Rotary Club and has many friends who will welcome his return to Atlanta.

Vacation Joys To Begin This Week For 85,000 Students in Atlanta

Vacation days begin this week for about 85,000 students attending colleges, preparatory institutions and public schools in Atlanta.

Books will be forgotten as boys and girls begin the summer romp. Swimming pools, which superseded the old swimming hole, have been opened; resorts will become popular, camp will be inviting and alluring spots; the mountains and seashores will draw its quota.

School work will be replaced by outdoor activities by the youth of Atlanta and Fulton county. Vacation is a happy time for the youngsters, but it grows irksome and the ringing of the school bell and the reunion with schoolmates will be a welcome diversion next fall.

More than 2,000 will get diplomas from preparatory schools and colleges. Some of these will continue their education in higher or more specialized branches. Others will begin the battle of life and the effort to carve a name for themselves.

Virtually all the educational institutions which have not already held their exercises will do so this week. Atlanta public schools will release about 50,000 and 1,300 of these will get diplomas from high schools or junior high schools. Several hundred will be sent from elementary grades to junior highs.

Fulton county will release another 20,000 and will award about 400 diplomas.

Agnes Scott College will graduate about 90 at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning from a student body of 500; Georgia Tech will graduate 300 at 10 o'clock Monday morning from a student body of 2,200; Emory will award 282 diplomas Monday, June 12, from its student body of approximately 1,400; Washington Seminary graduated 39 Thursday night and had 300 students on its roster; North Avenue Presbyterian school will award 38 diplomas Thursday night at the Woman's Club auditorium; Georgia Military Academy will graduate 90 Wednesday night from a group of 225 cadets.

Atlanta schools will complete their graduations by Friday, the same time they are concluded by the Fulton county system.

A total of 1,100 will finish the grade schools in the Fulton county system and be eligible for high school next fall and between 350 and 400 high school seniors are getting their diplomas this year.

Graduation exercises will begin Wednesday night and continue until Tuesday night. North Fulton High will hold its exercises on Wednesday night of this week, Fulton High Thursday night, Russell High Friday night, Milton and Roswell High on Monday night of next week and Campbell High the Tuesday night following.

Sights in Gold and Diamond Fields Described by Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby

Pictures of strange sight in the other half of the world and vivid descriptions of diamond and gold mines in Africa were drawn in a letter received last week by Atlanta friends of Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, Atlanta psychologist and lecturer. The letter was posted from South America.

Mrs. Ashby also related how the value of the American dollar tumbled in value "when the United States left the gold standard." She said the rate of exchange in Capetown dropped to four shillings for the dollar.

Describing visits to gold and diamond mines, Mrs. Ashby said she held in her hands a brick of gold worth $20,000, and added that she had to use both hands to lift it. Her description also included "the beautiful sight of molten gold pouring into ladles."

Mrs. Ashby also visited the famous Kimberly diamond mines and held in her hands a diamond worth $15,000. She said the attitude of the people there—the mines are closed now—is that "when America gets back on her feet everything will be all right all over the world."

Her description of the famous Great Kimberly mine, now an abandoned hole of water 5,000 feet deep, was vivid. The mine during its long operation yielded a billion dollars in wealth.

Following her tour through Africa, Mrs. Ashby went to South America, from which country she proceeded to New York, landing last week. The tour carried her around the world through the southern hemisphere. Several years ago she circled the globe in its northern section.

Florida House Votes New Kidnapping Bill

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 27.—(AP)—The Florida house today passed a senate-approved bill to make kidnapping for ransom a capital offense. As originally introduced by Senator Chowning, of New Smyrna, the measure provided electrocution as a penalty. The house amended the bill to make the penalty life imprisonment when juries recommended mercy.

The bill will be sent to the senate for concurrence. It was recommended by the attorney-general.

Florida Makes Bid For Picture Industry

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 27.—(UP)—Florida made a bid for California's motion picture industry today, or at least a significant start toward making a positive offer.

A bill was introduced in the state house of representatives to exempt the industry from taxation in this state—an obvious gesture to induce film folk to Florida.

NOTED EXPLORER COMMITTS SUICIDE

Capt. Rodney Hey Ends Life After Wife Tells of Love for Another.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 27.—(AP)—Captain Rodney W. Hey, 48, South American explorer and owner of an 800,000-acre ranch in Peru, which he was seeking to colonize, committed suicide today, police said, by swallowing poison after his wife's disclosure that she had ceased to love him and had found another ideal.

Captain Hey, who had a strange hobby of collecting copper, deadly knives from far places of the world, died at the feet of his wife—a striking brunet, formerly known as Carmen Velasquez, pianist of the European concert stage.

Detectives said Mrs. Hey told them she informed her husband yesterday that she loved another man and intended to leave him.

The widow said she had been drinking heavily while awaiting the outcome of negotiations with motion picture people for colonization of the ranch in Peru.

Early today, while Joan N. Hartung, herb expert, friend of the family and associate of the husband, was at the Hey home, Hey suddenly died of his wife's disclosure.

"I do hereby certify and testify that on this date I have swallowed four poisons. In case of my death it is due to my own action and I hereby absolve all from blame or having anything to do with my death."

Hey scrawled his name on the note and collapsed.

The widow said his death ended a "month of terror" at their home. She said he had become morose and threatening, often stalking about the apartment waving a heavy-bladed machete or a sword.

Once, she told detectives, he struck her with the flat side of the machete blade.

Mrs. Clyatt Is Named Music Club Director

MINNEAPOLIS, May 27.—(AP)—A proposal to tax or debar foreign musicians as a protective measure to American artists was rejected today by the board of directors of Music Clubs in biennial convention.

The federation adopted a resolution deprecating that it welcomes all foreign artists to America "as heretofore, but that American artists be given equal recognition on all artist series."

Federation directors elected included Mrs. J. E. Hall, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. W. Carruth Jones, Baton Rouge, La.; Mrs. John D. Hutton, Lawrenceburg, Tenn.; Anabel Morris Buchanan, Marion, Va.; Mrs. O. C. Hamilton, Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. O. G. Hiestand, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Cora Cox Lucas, Greensboro, S. C.; J. F. Jeter, Jr., Memphis, Tenn.; D. Moore, Mississippi, and Mrs. J. Clyatt, Georgia.

AVIATOR BAILS OUT FROM FLAMING SHIP

CHICAGO, May 27.—(AP)—Lieutenant Norman Burnett, of Selfridge field, Mt. Clemens, Mich., floated safely to earth beneath his parachute today while his army airplane, which had caught fire, plunged to the ground.

Lieutenant Burnett was one of 54 army pilots who had flown in formation over Chicago while the Century of Progress received its first guests.

He was leaving for Michigan when the plane caught fire at an altitude of less than 2,000 feet. Lieutenant Burnett, who was alone, jumped at about 700 feet and the plane buried itself in the ground.

AGE FORCES ARKANSAN TO LEAVE TREE HOME

HORATIO, Ark., May 27.—(AP)—Age has forced the mysterious Horatio to abandon his "tree home," where he lived in seclusion for several years.

Weighted down by his 70 years, Fred Brown found it difficult to reach his unique sleeping quarters—an old tank perched high up in a tree. So he moved his bed into his little shack near by and cut the tree down.

In his 30 years of residence here, Brown has revealed nothing of his early life.

SLAMS AND OVERCALLS That is a fine idea the West End Golf Club inaugurated at the inception of their popular tournaments of having an honor guest at each tournament. But while the honor guest always has a good time, as does every one who attends these tournaments, the said honor guest seldom distinguishes him, or herself, at the bridge table on that particular evening.

The latest example is Henry Chong. The brilliant Henry was honor guest Thursday evening and in a magnificent gesture to top the field he lived up to the reputation of honor guest he paired with Mrs. Humphrey Waggar. Result, they came fourth.

Looks like Kate Daniel and her son, Don, are getting in some fine practice for The Constitution tournament. They have done especially well in this past week. I predict they go well in that race to see which pair gets the free trip to the World's Fair and an opportunity to play in the national tournament going to be held there.

John Hardisty, who has been absent from recent bridge tournaments, returned to the war Friday evening and in company with Mrs. Helen Thompson walked away by a large margin with the top score. Hardisty was the same old John in every particular. At every stage of the tournament he was yelling blue murder on a terrible score he and his partner had up to the same school of thought as does the well-known football coach, Gil Dobie, of sainted Cornell fame. This practice of always saying you have a good score in a tournament, when, as a matter of fact you have a very fine one, has ceased to be either original or clever. Mr. Hardisty's attention is called to that last sentence.

Mrs. W. J. Bone is holding a series of progressive contract games at her residence each Friday evening. Play is based on non-duplicate lines and is fashioned more or less on rubber bridge.

ANOTHER TEAM-OF-FOUR TOURNAMENT The Atlanta Bridge Club, that battleground of many hard-fought pair and individual tournaments in the past, is now going to hold a weekly team-of-four tournament.

While there may be some slight changes in final plans, the present idea is to hold a series of ten tournaments, the winning team of four at the end of the series will get permanent possession of the handsome Baxter cup, which the popular Dr. J. O. Baxter Jr. has donated for this series.

With interest always keen in any tournament the Atlanta Bridge Club runs and with team-of-four play being the most popular form of duplicate in Atlanta, this series is bound to be a tremendous success and the play is going to be exceedingly fine.

This series will probably not start until The Constitution tournament to select the pair to go to Chicago has been held. More definite information will be given a little later. But keep in mind that the Baxter cup tournament will furnish plenty of fast competition. Start forming a strong team.

As usual the Cavendish Club will hold its regular team-of-four tournament Monday evening. Eight teams went to the post last Monday and there will probably be a larger number this Monday. Those not having team affiliations, yet wanting to play on some team, are requested to phone the Cavendish Club and either Mrs. Black or Mrs. Waggar will be only too glad to help them get on a good team.

CONSTITUTION TOURNAMENT NEAR In another part of this paper you will get more information on the big Constitution tournament which will have its elimination rounds this Saturday afternoon and evening.

Never in the history of Georgia has a newspaper staged a bridge

Inflation Causes Judge To Impose Big Fines

BILLINGS, Mont., May 27.—(AP)—Explaining the "currency has been inflated" since they were fined $50 each April 4 for similar offenses, District Judge Robert C. Strong imposed $100 fines on four Chinese who admitted lottery violations.

event which carries such a fine price to the winner. Whether you are a good, bad or indifferent bridge player a trip to the World's Fair and an opportunity to play in the national championship is certainly worth taking a chance on when the entrance fee is only $1 for the qualifying round. If you fail to qualify you are out no additional expense.

When court adjourned yesterday, the prosecution was in the midst of the third and final phase of its drive to convict Mitchell of evading $550,000 in income taxes. This relates to the charge he failed to report $688,666 received from the management fund of the National City Company. Mitchell holds it was an advance and not a payment.

Mitchell Case Gets Long Week-End Rest

NEW YORK, May 27.—(AP)—A week-end rest that will stretch out until next Wednesday brought welcome relief today to heat-burdened prosecutors and defenders of Charles E. Mitchell, former international banker.

When court adjourned yesterday, the prosecution was in the midst of the third and final phase of its drive to convict Mitchell of evading $550,000 in income taxes. This relates to the charge he failed to report $688,666 received from the management fund of the National City Company. Mitchell holds it was an advance and not a payment.

BROOKHART SEEKS TRADE EXPANSION

Negotiations Between U. S. and Russia Revealed by Former Senator.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(AP)—Former Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, said today after his appointment as special trade adviser to administrators of the farm adjustment act that he has negotiations under way for expanding trade between Russia and the United States aimed "to greatly enlarge the output for American farm products."

Brookhart, defeated last year for re-election, has long advocated recognition of Russia, but said that negotiations he has undertaken "do not necessitate recognition, nor are efforts dealing with recognition part of my job." He asserted that Russia is a potential market for five times the present surplus of American live stock production and a potential annual consumer of 2,000,000 bales of cotton.

Brookhart said that the Amtorg Trading Corporation, Russian trade agency with offices in this country, "will be among those with whom I will take up trade arrangements as a part of my new post."

He said Russian cotton mills have been running at about 60 per cent of capacity because they lack cotton and added that "Russia could make use of at least 2,000,000 bales of our cotton each year which would be a real help in handling the cotton surplus problem."

Meanwhile, the department of agriculture reported that exports of American wheat in April reached a record low point for recent decades. While exports during April, 1932, were 31 per cent over the 1900-1914 pre-war level, in April of this year wheat exports dropped 80 per cent below pre-war.

Exports of all farm commodities during April were 41 per cent below pre-war. They dropped 8 per cent under March of this year, 12 per cent under February and 21 per cent under April of a year ago.

Educator's Condition Is Reported Weaker

GASTONIA, N. C., May 27.—(AP)—Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, president of Furman University, Greenville, S. C., critically ill in a hospital here, was reported tonight to be "in a very weakened condition."

A hospital announcement said the Baptist leader, suffering from complications arising from an automobile wreck May, 16, was "gradually growing weaker."

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, school commissioner from the sixth ward and oldest member in point of continuous service, will not offer for re-nomination in the September 20 primary because of ill health and pressure of personal business, she announced Saturday. She has headed many important committees, including the rules, building and grounds and teachers and principals, during her service.

Veterans of all wars will hold a mass meeting at the Ansley hotel room at 8 o'clock Tuesday night and ceremonies will be broadcast over WGST from 9 to 9:30 o'clock. Speakers will include William G. McRae, commander of the Atlanta post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Robert P. McLarty, commander of Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion; General James A. Reeves, of the United States army, and others.

A. M. (Lennie) Smith will speak at the Fairburn Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock tonight in behalf of the Baptist Orphan's Home. Mr. Smith is a prominent layman of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church and is prominent in orphanage work in the state.

Officials and members of the staff of Eastern Air Transport, Inc., whose main office shortly will be moved to Atlanta, will be welcomed to the city at a luncheon at the Ansley hotel Friday. Mayor Key will deliver the speech of welcome and Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, will give the invocation. The luncheon is to be given by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Annual graduation exercises of the Shearith Israel Religious school will be held next Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock and will be featured with an address by Rabbi Morris Max, of New York. Special music will be given. The exercises will be held at the synagogue, 500 Washington street.

Blackfriars, of Agnes Scott College, will present the play, "Quality Street," by J. M. Barrie, at 8:30 o'clock Monday in the college gymnasium.

Professor W. L. Wallace will direct the music in a two-week revival, beginning at 11 o'clock this morning at the Meritt Avenue Baptist church. The Rev. H. J. Aycock, pastor, will preach.

Rev. J. M. Walker will speak to the St. Luke's Men's Club at 8 o'clock Monday night in St. Luke's church.

U. S. GOLD ACTION PLEASES EUROPE

Capitals, However, Express Varied Views on Effect of Dollar Change

By the Associated Press.

Foreign countries reported the following reactions yesterday to the news of American action to remove the gold clause from all obligations payable in gold.

LONDON.—The British public expressed relief that the American action will substantially reduce the size of the British war debt to the United States.

PARIS.—The value of the dollar shrank upon receipt of the news in Paris markets, but the reluctance to make the war debt payments to the United States appeared to be unchanged.

BERLIN.—German authorities were uncertain what effect the gold measure will have upon the reich's interests, but expressed the view that if the United States intends to inflate her currency the result will be favorable for Germany, which can repay her American debts in cheaper dollars.

ROME.—While the government studied the American gold measure, bankers called the action a welcome gesture but said that if Italy is unable to pay a reduction of approximately 15 per cent in her debts is unimportant.

BRUSSELS.—In the Brussels money markets dollars lost ground, following the Paris reaction, while government officials declined to comment until they learned the results of the American action elsewhere in Europe.

MADRID.—Chiefs of the banks of Spain said that the action of the United States would have little effect in Spain, where few American securities are held; they do not foresee any great effect upon foreign exchange.

GENEVA.—The news from Washington was interpreted here as signifying the desire of the United States government to bring about a balance of trade by improving domestic prices of raw materials.

STOCKHOLM.—The sanctity of all contracts is endangered by the Sten-gall resolution abolishing gold payments on all obligations, Professor Gustav Cassel, international economist and member of the Swedish monetary committee, asserted.

room. His subject will be "Murder by Motor."

Rev. L. C. Prater will preach in place of Dr. A. F. Hess at this morning's service at the United Liberal church on West Peachtree street. His sermon subject will be "Religion Expressed in Honesty."

Invitations have been issued to a demonstration and recital to be given by the younger pupils of Elizabeth Barlow of the Washington Seminary faculty. The recital will take place at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night, June 1. Those taking part will be Louise Bird, Lillian Hopkins, Laleah Sullivan, Sally Pat Connolly, Clara Jones, Anne Thornton, Dorothy and Francis Bird, Anne Owens, Jacqueline Verno and Betty Regenstein.

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer, announces the following baby health centers for this week, for babies under 4 years of age: Thursday, Grant Park school, and Friday, Pryor Street school.

Two student recitals will be given at 8 o'clock Friday night and the following Wednesday night at the Morgan Stephens Conservatory of Music, 779 Juniper street.

Dr. H. L. Turner, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian church, will speak at 7:45 o'clock tonight at the Central Presbyterian church. His subject will be "Adventurer's Life."

Harold C. Smith, minister of the Woodlawn Presbyterian church, will speak to the John R. Wilkins lodge, F. & A. M., at this morning's service. A special program of sacred music will feature the evening service.

Dr. S. T. Senley, pastor of the First Methodist church, will preach the commencement sermon at the LaGrange College for Women this morning, June 4, at LaGrange. At the evening hour he will preach the commencement sermon at the high school of LaGrange.

Atlanta Baptist Sunday School Association will meet at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the First Baptist church, in College Park. Dr. W. H. Fayst will preside.

Rev. E. A. Hardgrove, of Copperhill, Tenn., will begin a two weeks' series of revival services at 11 o'clock this morning at the Hemphill Avenue M. E. church. Meetings will be held at 7:30 o'clock each night.

In the absence of the pastor, Dr. A. F. Hess, Rev. Leonard Prater, the Universalist minister at large for the city, will speak at the United Liberal (Unitarian-Universalist) church at the regular 11 o'clock service this morning.

Members of the Congregation of Shearith Israel, on Washington street, their families and friends will hold an all-day barbecue and picnic at Dixie lakes today. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock.

Wengrow & Wengrow, a law firm in the First National Bank building, announces that A. D. G. Wilkins has associated himself with them for the general practice of law. Mr. Cohn has been connected with various charitable organizations and received his education at the University of Maine and Atlanta law school.

Graduation exercises of the Samuel R. Young kindergarten will be held at 8 o'clock Monday night in the Samuel R. Young school auditorium in College Park.

Cadet W. M. Daniel, son of Thomas H. Daniel of 1354 Peachtree road, a student at Culver Military Academy, has gone to Chicago with the Culver Black Horse Troop, to participate in the opening of the Century of Progress there.

Rev. Henry E. Marlow will speak at both the morning and evening hours today at the Whiteford Avenue Baptist church. His morning sermon will be "Possibilities and Spiritual Obligations of the Church" and his evening subject will be "Choose This Day Whom You Will Serve."

Georgia College of Chiropractic, said to be the only institution of its kind in the south, will hold its second graduating exercises at 8 o'clock Monday night in the Georgian room of the Henry Grady hotel. Dr. J. Spore Lyons will deliver the invocation.

G. T. Dowling, president, will give the opening address and Anton L. Etheridge will deliver the commencement address.

Drama group of the Studio Club will meet at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the clubrooms on Forsyth street for election of officers and plans

COPIES RISE IN HEAVY TRADING

By the inflationary fervor. The weekly report of the movement of freight showed an unimportant gain of only 523 cars over the previous week, but the total was 15,990 cars, or more than 3 per cent, over the like week of last year, the first time any week has topped a comparable week of the year earlier by such a margin since the depression set in. The freight movement was dwindling sharply at this time last year. A moderate decline in automobile production from the previous week was estimated by Cram.

Slump Signs Lacking.

On the whole, however, signs of the usual summer slump ordinarily visible at this time were lacking, lead to high hopes that the administration's credit, monetary, farm and industrial program would keep business on the mend during the period of the normal mid-year lull. Some conservative quarters in Wall Street were again inclined to warn, however, that improvement in share prices may be outstripping business improvement now in sight.

The little inflationary flurry had but little adverse effect upon highest grade bonds, although these fixed income bearing investments are theoretically made less attractive by shrinkage in the buying power of the dollar. A few of the United States government and other prime issues recorded slightly, but second grade bonds rallied along with stocks. Price averages of domestic corporate bonds this week have reached the best level since last September.

The dollar again plunged in foreign exchange dealings, losing much of its recovery of the past fortnight, but it failed to get down to the levels of a year ago. The French franc closed at 4.66 cents, up .09 of a cent, but .09 of a cent under the peak of 4.75 reached early this month. Today's level of the principal gold currency indicated a depreciation in the dollar of about 15 per cent, or an 85-cent dollar in terms of gold.

Regulation of the price of gold at $20.67 an ounce, as fixed by the gold standard act, has as yet not been influenced by any of the measures taken or proposed by the administration. In a free market, however, as exists in London, the price here would presumably be around $24.50 under current conditions.

15,000 TEXTILE WORKERS WILL GET WAGE HIKES

BOSTON, May 27.—(UP)—Wage increase of 10 to 12 1/2 per cent, affecting approximately 15,000 cotton textile operatives, were announced today by four New England mills. The increases are effective Monday and benefit employees in three states.

The Pepperell Manufacturing Company, which employs 3,500 at Biddeford, Me., 850 at Lewiston, Me., and 600 at Fall River, announced increases of 12 1/2 per cent.

The B. B. & R. Knit Corporation, Inc., which has three mills at East Warwick, R. I., granted a similar increase and mills at Woonsocket and Manville, in the same state, operated by the Manville-Jencks Manufacturing Company, did the same.

Another Rhode Island textile firm, the Lorraine Manufacturing Company, with mills at Westerly and Pawtucket, ordered increases of 10 to 12 1/2 per cent.

The 7,800 striking employees of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, largest cotton textile mills in America, voted on the question of returning to work Wednesday at 15 per cent increase. It was believed the vote would be favorable.

for the next season. Cyril Smith, chairman of the group, urged a full attendance.

Revival services will begin Sunday, June 4, at the Edgewood Baptist church. Dr. E. A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, will preach.

Annual election of officers has been held by the Asa Warren Candler Post No. 65 of the American Legion. John F. Bass was elected commander; James Bly, first vice commander; C. A. Tinsley, second vice commander; Thomas Spencer, adjutant; J. H. Woodall, finance officer; Harry Ray, chaplain, and C. M. Yeats, historian.

Evangelical meeting, which has been in progress at the West End Church of Christ, will come to a close tonight. The minister, H. C. Hall, will speak at both morning and evening services today. His subject this morning will be "The Goodness and the Severity of God."

Inman Park Baptist church will hold a commencement service for high school graduates at 10:45 o'clock this morning. Pastor S. F. Lowe will speak on "Wise Investments of Life Assets."

J. Sherrard Kennedy, vice president, and J. Freeman Strickland, special representative of the First National Bank of Atlanta, Saturday returned from the Georgia Bankers' Association convention at Miami. Both men had high praise for Walter N. Harrison, of Lavinia, newly elected president of the association, and were enthusiastic over widespread reports of restored confidence.

Garrard Glenn, former New York attorney and now professor of the University of Virginia law school, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Atlanta Bar Association, Robert C. Alston, chairman of program committee, announced Saturday. Date of the meeting will be decided this week. Mr. Glenn is well known in Atlanta.

Suit of several Georgia cotton cooperative association members against the American Cotton Co-operative Association to prevent disposal of cotton holds advance. The suits have been made will be discussed Monday at a meeting in Washington of A. C. C. A. officials with Henry Morgenthau, chairman of the Federal Farm Credit Association. This was announced Saturday in New Orleans by E. F. Crenshaw, general manager of A. C. C. A.

E. I. Gandy, 21, of 299 Woodward avenue, was arrested by police Saturday night after an altercation in which A. H. Traxnum, of 470 Woodward avenue, was cut about the left arm and left leg with a knife. Traxnum told police, the latter reported, that Gandy thought he was attacking another man.

Members of the West End Choral Club will give a number of spirituals at the 7:30 o'clock service tonight at the East Point Presbyterian church.

N. A. P. S. To Present Pageant

WORLD EXPOSITION OPENS AT CHICAGO

emeritus of Yerkes, and who conceived the idea of a cosmic touch for the exposition inaugural, acted as master of ceremonies.

Despite threats of clouds, he said impulses came from each of the observatories on schedule.

Rufus C. Dawes, president of the fair, said the act was fitting for an exposition that had as its theme man's achievements, especially in the scientific field. Dawes, with Postmaster-General James A. Farley, was one of the speakers at the nighttime dedicatory ceremonies.

Solemnity and the spirit of carnival marked the opening day. Crowds surged through the turnstiles like water through a broken dike. They began coming in at 9 o'clock in the morning, many of them after vigils that began last night.

Inside the grounds, the throngs split, thousands going into mammoth Soldier field for the dedicatory exercises; other thousands swarming into the exhibition halls of blue, yellow, green and white.

The opening ceremonies were brief. Then the assemblage filed out to the amphitheater to join those who had come earlier for oratory, but to watch and wonder.

This is what they saw: A moving drama, world-wide in scope and based on the achievements of man during the past century.

A stage for this drama that was a spectrum of architectural wonders. Exhibition halls of various shapes and sizes sprang over the 424-acre site, rearing high, bristling pylons and angular towers.

The visitors saw a combination of science and circus, one occupying the main ring of the big show, the other the wings.

They figuratively stepped from continent to continent, from century to century, and from one geological period to another—from buildings of ultra modernity to reproductions of old Fort Dearborn and Abraham Lincoln log cabin.

Through the general exhibits group, housing the products and processes of present-day industry, they passed into a panoply of the earth recreated in a remote geological period, complete with extinct vegetation and dinosaurs.

They entered serpentine buses which sped through the exposition grounds. They climbed to the 64-story observation platforms of the sky ride which "rocket" cars were not yet in operation.

The visitors passed from the laboratory atmosphere of the hall of science to the sights and smells of a street carnival—balloons, roller coasters, popcorn and hamburger odors.

At the south end of the exposition city, visitors entered the travel and transport building housing vehicles— from wagon to electric locomotive—utilized by man in his attempt to conquer space.

One of the most popular places, as evidence of the size of the crowds, was enchanted island, the children's paradise, where fairy tales came to life.

An elaborate electrical device designed to record the passing of the crowds through the turnstiles was in operation today, and late official estimates of the number of visitors were not available. By noon, however, officials said 60,000 persons, including paying customers, and concessionaire and exhibitors' employes, had entered the grounds.

RICH WIDOW SLAIN; SON, 17, IS SOUGHT

Donald was known to have had in the house, was missing. Officers would neither affirm nor deny the report. Word that young MacDonald and a companion in an automobile stopped at a gasoline filling station at 4 a. m. today and sought protection from police authorities to notify police in that city. The search also was extended to Topinabee, Mullet lake, north of here, where Mrs. MacDonald had a summer cottage. She had planned to leave for the cottage today.

The operator of the gasoline station said the young man he identified as MacDonald had a large roll of bills when he paid for gasoline this morning.

Mrs. MacDonald's husband was the late Bruce J. MacDonald, for 32 years cashier of the old First National bank here. He died about 12 years ago. She came here from Portland, Ore., as a bride in 1906, and became one of the leaders of local society.

She was one of the organizers of the Flint Y. W. C. A., one of the founders of the Flint Art Institute and the Flint Concert Association, contributing heavily to the support of these organizations.

Although Flowers and his wife slept in the MacDonald home, they said today that they had heard no unusual sound during the night. With young MacDonald and his mother they played bridge until midnight when they retired.

The Flowers found Mrs. MacDonald's body at 8:30 a. m. Death had occurred several hours before, the coroner said.

Rare Flowers Found.

COURT WILL AIR ROW OVER PROB

Judge Humphries Hear Committee Injunction Plea Monday.

Judge John D. Humphries will hear injunction proceedings sought against the citizens' committee, now prob county affairs, at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning, it was decided Saturday when the case was called before Judge.

Henry Beaman, through the injunction, is seeking to halt the work of the committee and stop payment any debts incurred on county credit. He charges the committee was illegally appointed by the last grand jury, and the present jury in a prob county affairs. He alleges that committee will amass a large indebtedness if allowed to continue to spend county money for expenses of investigation.

The committee Saturday through attorney, Willis Thompson, filed its formal answer to the charges set out by Beaman. The committee's answer admits that it has his help to conduct their probe and that their expenses will be for this he $1,230.96 until the end of the present grand jury term.

It admits that a stenographer has been employed at $15 a week; clerks with salaries at $20 and $25 a week; one investigator at a salary of $40 a week, and two senior clerks at a salary of $30 each a day. The committee, however, presses itself that such is necessary for a proper probe and that the defendants are in thorough sympathy with the instructions of the last grand jury which called upon these defendants in making their investigation to hold their expenditures to a minimum and are not incurring any expense whatsoever except what they believe to be absolutely necessary, they are to perform their duties in thorough manner.

Clear Skies Today To Follow Rain

The weeping skies of Saturday probably be clear by this morning, according to George Minding, United States meteorologist, who predicts a fair day for Sunday in Atlanta with temperatures ranging between 62 and 84 degrees. Saturday's range was from 67 to 79 degrees.

Friday night and Saturday rain were heavy enough to bring the rainfall amount for the month to about normal, said Mr. Minding. Slightly less than an inch was recorded for the month. The total rainfall for the month to date is approximately 2 inches.

Loved ones need you!

—you dare not fail them

NO ONE has to tell you that mental distress and nervous strain, overwork, colds, "flu," sickness or a deficient diet weaken the body. You can feel it.

Now medical science attributes that tired-out, low-down, deficient hemoglobin and tissue purifier in the blood—so necessary for carrying the vital oxygen from the lungs to all parts of the body—even to the skin and in throwing off body poisons.

Even a sufficient and well balanced diet cannot properly nourish the body, unless the blood contains sufficient hemoglobin.

Today tens of thousands take a course of S.S.S. Tonic once or twice a day to regain lost strength, restore the appetite and to clear up the skin.

Take S.S.S. just before meals. No need to change your diet. S.S.S. will not interfere with any other medicine you may be taking. You will be happy with the beneficial results obtained. Start taking it today. At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The larger size is more economical.

HIGHWAY CORPS IS STILL UNPAID

Talmadge-Commission Dispute Over Engineers Remains Unsettled.

Officials and employees of the highway department will complete their second payless month June 1 with the cause of the pay holiday—dispute between Governor Eugene Talmadge and the highway commission—no nearer settled, apparently, than the day it began early in April when the department submitted its second quarterly budget to the governor for approval. However, chiefly because it is becoming more and more apparent that the commission must do something to relieve the situation, the governor having made it definitely certain that he intends to do nothing further, there was a feeling at the capital Saturday that by June 1 the commission will make some sort of arrangements to meet its past due pay roll. Whether or not the governor's demand would be met, the demands including the firing of five engineers, including Chief Engineer B. P. McWhorter, could not be learned.

Meanwhile, funds to the credit of the highway department in the state treasury neared the $2,000,000 mark. No one cent has been drawn from the approved budget for the quarter. The governor will not sign a warrant for funds, which will include pay for the engineers in question and the majority of the commission, composed of Chairman J. W. Barnett and Commissioner W. C. Vereen, of Moultrie, has made it known that it will not make out a warrant for any funds that will not include money to pay McWhorter and his associates. Commissioner J. P. Wilhoit, of Warrenton, the third member of the board, has already announced that he is willing to carry out the demands of the governor.

Commissioner Vereen is in Baltimore undergoing treatment for his eyes. At one time it was widely reported that he would change his stand and vote with Wilhoit to carry out the desires of the governor, but thus far that vote has not been cast.

BLIND BENEFIT SHOW AT FOX THEATER TODAY

The fortitude of the blind will be exhibited at the Fox theater at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in a concert arranged to raise funds for the Fifth District Chapter, Georgia Association of Workers for the Blind. Prominent concert and radio artists will be presented on the stage, including Henry Mullins, Miss Ruby Waldrick and others, with Mrs. James H. Little, of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, which group will sponsor the show, and Miss Nana Tucker directing the program.

A feature of the concert will be a demonstration of his uncanny memory by Paul Donehoo, noted blind cornet and lawyer of Atlanta. Miss Hettie Higgins, gifted blind soprano, also will be featured on the program. The box offices for both white and colored people will be open at the theater at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon.

NEGRO GRADUATES TO HEAR REV. NIXON

The Rev. Justin W. Nixon, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church of Rochester, N. Y., has accepted the invitation of Atlanta University, Morehouse College and Spelman College to deliver the sermon at the baccalaureate service of the three institutions. The service, which will be held in the chapel, Spelman College, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 4, will be preceded by an academic procession starting at 2:45 p. m. composed of members of the combined faculties, members of the graduating classes of Morehouse College and Spelman College and graduate students of Atlanta University who are candidates for master's degrees on June 7. A special musical program will be offered under the direction of Professor Kemper Harrell, director of music at Morehouse and Spelman Colleges.

FARMERS' EXCHANGE MOVES ITS OFFICES

The Farmers' Exchange, sponsored by Forward Georgia, Inc., has been moved from 82 Poplar street to the ground floor of the Volunteer building at Luckie and Forsyth streets, according to announcement by Roy LeCraw, president. The exchange, directed by Mrs. R. M. Barnes, handles only articles which bear the "made in Georgia" label.

Invitations to show exhibits have been issued to many manufacturers and businessmen in the state and several have been set up, including articles which show Georgia agricultural and industrial activities. Inquiries and exhibits should be addressed to Ted Toddy, director of the Forward Georgia Exposition.

WOMAN, MAN KILLED IN CRASH AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., May 27.—(AP)—Gordon Carr, 30, attorney, and Mrs. Harold S. Withers, 34, socially prominent, died late last night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through a bridge railing and plunged them into a canal.

Mrs. Withers' body was recovered soon after the accident; that of Carr at sundown today. Mrs. Withers was formerly of Columbus, Ga.

On the Air Today

Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, of New York, will talk on "The Public and the Lawyer" from 4 to 4:15 o'clock this afternoon over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST. La Guardia's talk will be a discussion of the American Bar Association's series of programs heard during the time period every Sunday since February 12.

The third presentation of the Columbia Dramatic Guild, to be broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST from 7 to 7:30 o'clock this afternoon will be a dramatization of Guy De Maupassant's short story, "A Piece of String." The adaptation has been made by the Columbia continuity department under the direction of Ferrin Fraser, head of the staff.

Herbert Rawlinson, English actor widely known on the American stage and screen, will take the stellar role in the episode of "Roses and Drums," over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST from 4:30 to 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Rawlinson will play the role of General Ambrose E. Burnside in this episode of the American historical drama series, sub-titled, "Fort Saunders."

Eugene DuBois, concert master of the Columbia Symphony orchestra, will be heard as soloist in Beethoven's violin concerto in D when Howard Barlow presents the Symphonic hour from 1:15 to 2 o'clock this afternoon over WGST and the Columbia network. DuBois will be heard with the orchestra in the first movement, Allegro ma non troppo.

Selections from the Beethoven "Mass in C" will be featured when Channon Collinge presents the Cathedral hour over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST from 2 to 3 o'clock this afternoon. Soloists will include Mildred Rose, soprano; Theo Karle, tenor; Barbara Maurel, contralto, and Crane Calder, bass.

With Vincent Sorey conducting and Tito Guizar as tenor soloist, the Gauchos will present another of their intimate musical glimpses of South America from 6:15 to 6:30 o'clock tonight over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST. Solos by Guizar will include the romantic serenade, "A la Luz de la Luna" (By the Light of the Moon) and the popular Brazilian love song, "Por Eso te Quiero."

Mary Eastman, soprano, and Evan Evans, baritone, will be the featured vocalists on Andre Kostelanetz's varied presentation of musical highlights from 7:30 to 8 o'clock tonight over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST. Other talent will include the Columbia mixed chorus and symphony orchestra.

Jacobson's tragic "Song of Marie Antoinette" will be Miss Eastman's solo contribution, while Evans sings the amusing aria "Largo al Factotum" from Rossini's "Barber of Seville."

Mary Sue Pollock, of Smyrna, and Morris Stron, of Atlanta, will give a two-piano recital over WSB at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon on the regular Federation of Music Clubs' program.

Clifford Skipper, Atlanta tenor, will feature the musical program from 9:10 to 9:30 o'clock this morning on the Call to Worship program from the Peachtree Christian church. Mrs. Victor B. Clark will be at the console.

GIRL HARMONY TEAM WINNING NEW FRIENDS

Two popular favorites of the air found a good reception to a new type of program more than a month ago, and now the tri-weekly song concert by the "Tuneful Apothecaries" over WGST are among the most popular of its kind on the air. Programs are given at 7:15 o'clock on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

Though the team is billed under the title of "Tuneful Apothecaries," their identity is no secret to audiences who have heard them for more than two years as a harmony duo. They are Margie Bullard and Dolly Jernagin, who formerly sang as the "Tuneful Twosome."

Backed up with a miniature instrument ensemble, Margie and Dolly sing popular and blues songs. Working together for two years, they have developed an almost perfect accord and a haunting rhythm in the melodies.

Poppies To Be Sold

State-Wide Contest on Georgia Will Close Wednesday Midnight

Contestants in the Forward Georgia, Inc., state-wide contest to select the 10 outstanding tourist attractions in the state were issued a final admonition Saturday by Roy LeCraw, president, that the contest will close at midnight Wednesday, May 31, and that entries mailed after midnight of that date will be disqualified.

Daily the contest mail increases in volume, bringing in hundreds of suggestions which the contest judges will begin culling out as soon as the contest closes, in order to announce the winners on June 11, Mr. LeCraw said. Prizes which will be awarded, including an Austin automobile, a silver trophy pitcher and other valuable merchandise, are on display in the Forward Georgia exhibit on the Florida constitution.

FLORIDANS WILL MEET TO FIGHT REPEAL MOVE

ORLANDO, Fla., May 27.—(AP)—For the purpose of "reaffirming our belief in the cause of temperance and prohibition," a state-wide "emergency prohibition convention" has been called for Orlando by Paul Crank, president of the Florida Federation of Patriots, Inc., for June 20. The convention, Crank said, will "reannunciate our unalterable stand in the retention of the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution and the nineteenth amendment to the Florida constitution."

GOOD FISHING NEWS IS GIVEN IN CANADA

MONTREAL, May 27.—Despite occasional adverse reports regarding trout fishing in the Laurentians, George Elder, of Hudson, Que., brought back cheering news to fishermen from the Lac Archambault district in the form of a nice catch of reds weighing about one pound each. Elder's anglers also reported "good fishing" nearly everywhere in the Mont Laurier and Gatineau districts the waters are now normal.

The trout are taking artificial flies and worms, the wet fly proving more effective than the dry variety. Montreal, Silver Doctor, Royal and ordinary coachmen, Brown Hackle and Farmhouse Belle proved the most popular killers. The tourist department of the Canadian Pacific railway will be glad to assist anglers in planning fishing trips in Canada.

CANADIAN TRAVELERS MAY VISIT CHICAGO

Through train service to and from Vancouver and Chicago, via the Canadian Rockies, will be resumed for the season on June 1. This year the Chicago & Northwestern railway will be employed as far as St. Paul and the Soo line and Canadian Pacific railway thereafter. Through sleepers for Vancouver leave Chicago via C. & N. W. at 10 a. m., arriving in Vancouver three days later at 9 a. m., which schedule enables the passenger to see the beauties of Banff and the Canadian Rockies by daylight.

By using the above service, travelers to and from the Canadian Rockies can stop over in Chicago and see the World's Fair.

$199,100,000 LOANED TO FARMS BY R. F. C.

Total of 146,000 Applications Approved During 9-Month Period.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Corporation, during the nine months its regional agricultural credit corporation, were in operation, loaned American farmers $199,100,000 to aid them in marketing their products and carrying on their business generally.

This was shown today in telegraphic reports from the 12 corporations showing the result of their work up to last night when they were formally transferred from the Reconstruction Corporation to the farm credit administration.

A total of 146,000 applications for loans were authorized in every state of the union and Puerto Rico. Of these loans $135,000,000 had been disbursed when the farm credit administration took over the work. Repayments totaled $5,127,000.

The loans ranged from a $25 "barnyard loan" up to $750,000 loaned to a large corporation. 28,268 were for less than $250 each; 42,328 between $500 and $1,000. There were 37 loans of more than $100,000.

The largest number of loans was made to Minnesota farmers who received 17,516 loans; North Dakota, 17,121; and Texas, 13,071. In total amount, however, North Dakota was first with $17,068,000 and Nebraska second with $16,838,831.

GOVERNOR TO ADDRESS RIVERSIDE GRADUATES

GAINESSVILLE, Ga., May 27.—The twenty-fifth annual commencement exercises of Riverside Military Academy opened Saturday and will continue through the 31st.

The feature of this year's exercises, according to Colonel Sandy Beaver, president, will be the graduation address to be delivered by Eugene Talmadge, governor of Georgia, on May 31. Colonel Beaver, chief of staff to Governor Talmadge, has indicated the probability of the presence of the governor and a large number of his staff at the academy's graduation parade earlier that morning.

Commencement exercises began Saturday with the annual minstrel show. On Sunday at 3 p. m. a final concert will be given by the academy's band. At 3:45 the Rev. George M. Acres, pastor of the First Methodist church of Gainesville, and chaplain of Riverside, will deliver the commencement sermon. At 5 the same day a dress parade will be held on the main drill fields, following which warrants will be issued to the cadet non-commissioned officers.

On Tuesday at 3 p. m. junior school class exercises will be held and at 5 p. m. a final military demonstration is scheduled. Following this the final review and inspection of the battalion by Colonel Beaver will take place to be followed by the presentation of athletic awards. At 9 p. m. the final dance of the year will begin.

On Wednesday the early forenoon will be devoted to a military tournament including competitive drills. At 10:30 a. m. the graduation parade will take place, after which the corps will form the Riverside "R" and sing the Alma Mater. At 11:30 a. m. Governor Talmadge is to deliver his address to the graduating class in the auditorium of Elkin hall. Following this address the academic and military awards of the year will be made and diplomas will be granted.

122D WILL SELECT NEW CHIEF ON JUNE 7

Officers of the 122d infantry of the Georgia national guard will not elect a successor to Colonel Gerald P. O'Keefe as commanding officer until June 7, it was announced Saturday. It was freely predicted Saturday that Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp would be elected colonel of the regiment despite his announced desire not to take on additional duties. The election of General Camp is expected because officers of the regiment have been unable to agree on any one else for the post.

Atlantans Win Scholarships In Civitans' Essay Contest

For the first and second best essays on "Good Citizenship: the Safeguard of the Nation," E. Clyde Henry, of Tech High school, and Miss Nellie Margaret Gilroy, of Girls' High school, will receive respectively a year's scholarship at Emory and a course at Draughton's School of Commerce, awards of the Atlanta Civitan Club.

The citizenship contest is sponsored annually by Civitan clubs in the United States and Canada. International Civitan offers a silver loving cup to the essay chosen from club winners and the presentation this year will take place at Memphis, Tenn., June 11-14. Young Henry's essay has been forwarded to the contest committee.

Judges of the contest were Julian Harris, of The Constitution; Dudley Glass, of the Georgian, and Mrs. Melora F. Perkinson, of the Journal. Clark Harrison is chairman of the local committee.

Atlantan, Mourned as Dead, Found in West, Memory Gone

An Atlanta sailor, Thomas Shelnut, mourned as dead for two years by his family, the navy and his friends, has come back to life apparently as mysteriously as he "died" two years ago.

The 26-year-old sailor's father, J. M. Shelnut, 236 1/2 Georgia avenue, S. E., and other members of his family believe he is a victim of amnesia, caused by blows on the head he is reported to have received when he was beaten and robbed three weeks before his disappearance from the San Diego navy yard in July, 1931.

The story of Shelnut's "death" and his reappearance in a city in which an uncle and some cousins reside shows again that truth is stranger than fiction.

The story begins late in June of 1931, when young Shelnut cashed in a $5,000 insurance policy and laid plans to marry Miss Billie Warden, a young woman from Seattle, who temporarily was living in Livermore, Cal. One night shortly after receiving the insurance money he reported to his naval comrades and the San Diego police that he had been slugged and robbed by two highwaymen, who beat him into insensibility and stole the $5,000 from his pockets.

Three weeks later, he went to a San Diego beach and after exchanging his sailor's suit in the locker room for bathing trunks he plunged into the surf and disappeared.

A naval court of inquiry held a hearing and found that the missing seaman had come ashore his disappearance. His name was removed from the navy yard muster and his personal effects sent to his father in Atlanta.

Insurance companies only recently agreed to pay a policy which his father held on his life.

Last week, the sailor's uncle, A. B. Shelnut, who formerly lived in Atlanta but who moved with his family to Colorado Springs since his nephew's disappearance, said what he thought was the nephew as he came out of a store on one of the Colorado resort's main streets.

"Aren't you Tommy Shelnut?" the uncle asked.

"I'm sorry, but I don't know who I am," the man replied. Then he uttered an amazing story of "waking up" in San Francisco several months ago, how he had tried to remember his past and could not and how in the months of wandering he had encountered no one who could aid him in solving the dilemma of his past.

The uncle took him to his home where he was immediately recognized by his cousins who with their father communicated with the sailor's father at Atlanta.

"I'm overjoyed to know that my boy is alive," the father said Saturday. "We had long given up hope that we would ever see him or even his body again. It's been almost two years now since he disappeared into the ocean and we were like the navy, for that we surely must have met his death."

Shelnut's uncle took him to a navy recruiting office in Colorado Springs where he was fingerprinted and the prints forwarded to the bureau of navigation at Washington to be checked in order to make doubly certain that the man with the lost memory in Colorado is the same man who disappeared.

The elder Shelnut said he Saturday that he did not know if his son would return home immediately. "If he is actually alive, he still is under the jurisdiction of the navy," the father said. "They navy may want to send him to a hospital."

The father said he was not acquainted with the sailor son's intended bride.

In the personal effects of the sailor, forwarded to his father after the naval board had found that he drowned, there were a number of intimate letters signed by Miss Warden.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP TO FORESTRY CAMP

STATESBORO, Ga., May 27.—The Bulloch county forestry scholarship to the state forestry camp at Young Harris was won by J. W. Donaldson Jr., of Register, according to announcement received today from B. F. Lufburrow, state forester.

Young Donaldson's training in vocational education in agriculture enabled him to score a grade of 95.96 in the county-wide contest. He is not only a good forestry student but an excellent student in all of his work. Professor H. McRae Saunders, his vocational teacher, stated. As a student in the tenth grade at Register, he carried six subjects during the recent school year.

James Hendrix, of Brooklet, with a grade of 95.96, was chosen as the county alternate for the camp.

APPROPRIATIONS BILL AMENDED IN FLORIDA

House Seeks To Increase Measure by Slight Margin.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 27.—(AP)—The important biennial appropriations measure, already approved by the senate, was amended by the house today to call for annual expenditure of $6,168,124. A final vote on the bill, however, was not taken.

As passed by the senate the measure provided for annual expenditure of $6,098,052 for general operations of the state government, but the house has changed most of the itemized appropriations. The minor provisions of the bill were considered today following yesterday's approval of the major items.

Sholtz today signed the Kanner bill, passed by the senate yesterday. It allows purchase of road bonds with gasoline tax revenue so as to retire them quicker and cheaper. The house approved bill to create a state board which will supervise the handling of all federal funds coming to Florida was given senate approval, 26 to 3.

The motion picture industry would be exempt from taxation in Florida under a proposed constitutional amendment offered by Representative Rogers, of Broward county.

The senate adjourned until Monday, but the house was in a late Saturday afternoon session.

SOCIAL WELFARE GROUP ISSUES YEAR'S REPORT

Serving as a clearing house for this city's community problems, the Social Welfare Council of Atlanta was instrumental in effecting several important welfare projects during the past year, according to the organization's annual report.

One of the most notable of these achievements was the establishment of eight active recreational centers for the unemployed. Maintained in neighborhood churches, schools and Y. M. C. A.'s, the centers, directed on a volunteer basis, were designed to provide entertainment and pastimes for Atlanta's depressed jobless, who felt a need for such diversion. Funds were obtained from churches and individuals. Books, magazines and games were donated by other big-hearted citizens, and talented magicians and musicians were recruited from the ranks of the unemployed. The recreational centers are meeting with such a wide response, according to officials, that it is planned to broaden their scope.

Crash Halts Wedding.

Minister Loses Home, To Begin Fast Today

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 26.—(AP)—The Rev. A. J. Vallery, 65-year-old minister, prepared today to begin a fast by which he hopes to regain jurisdiction of a training home he established in 1916.

Beginning tomorrow, he said, he plans to eat "only one orange daily until I die or am justified."

Meanwhile, directors of the Bethany Training Home, and of the community fund, who, Vallery says, have the power to reinstate him as superintendent, withheld comment concerning his plans.

"I will eat my last meal this evening, a light repast," Mr. Vallery said.

Mr. Vallery was dismissed as superintendent of the Bethany Training Home for Girls in 1924 after the community fund took over its support. Mr. Vallery lost a court fight to regain control.

ROMANCE SHATTERED BY CRASH FATALITY

R. C. Herren and Miss Ann Dennis Had Planned To Be Married Today.

Fatal injury of R. C. Herren, 20, of 759 Jefferson street, Friday night came almost on the eve of his proposed marriage to Miss Ann Dennis, 21, of 823 Jefferson street, who received serious injuries as a passenger on the tandem seat of Herren's motorcycle, it was learned Saturday.

Herren and Miss Dennis were returning from a search for a friend whom they intended asking to attend their marriage, when the motorcycle ran into an automobile driven by James Faulkner, 18, of 1300 Hill street, it was said. The couple had intended to get married Friday night, but decided to postpone the wedding until Sunday after they failed to locate their friend, according to Miss Dennis.

The accident happened when Faulkner attempted a left turn from Fair into King, turning into the path of the motorcycle, according to police reports. A case of reckless driving against Faulkner is set for June 5. Funeral services for Herren will be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon from the residence. The Rev. James E. Egan, officiate. Interment will be in Elliott cemetery, Cobb county.

Over Seas

By SYRON DARTON
Associated Press Cable Editor.

The searchlights of international attention have been turned again on Geneva, where delegates of many nations are trying to draw up a pact for peace and disarmament.

A succession of suggestions and proposals, some of them made public, followed the announcement in Rome last Sunday that the four big powers of western Europe had agreed informally on the principles of a revised Mussolini peace pact.

This proposed 10-year agreement would place the responsibility for peace in Europe on Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy. It is based, the preamble states, on the Briand-Kellogg pact for outlawing war, the agreement not to resort to force signed last December at Geneva, and the League of Nations covenant.

It recognizes the possibility of revising the post-war treaties in order to remove sources of friction. This has caused an outburst of criticism by nations which were created or gained territory as a result of the war. France is the leader of this group. Italy and Germany want revision. Great Britain appears in the role of arbitrator. As rewritten, the pact stresses that no revision would be undertaken except through the League of Nations, where all anti-revision nations would have a voice.

At Geneva the working basis for armaments reduction has been the schedule proposed some weeks ago by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain. France, however, indicated unwillingness to reduce armaments or guns unless satisfactory measures of security were substituted. A French proposal of being destroyed, should be turned over to the League of Nations for use in policing the nations.

The league succeeded in pacifying a far-off dispute when Peru and Colombia consented to cease hostilities in border territory on the headwaters of the Amazon river. Another South American conflict—the declared war between Paraguay and Bolivia—was entering a stage of more active military operations with the coming of dry weather to the Gran Chaco.

Great Britain proposed at Geneva a system of consultations applicable in such cases.

This would permit a nation to call others into general consultation to prevent a threatened breach of the Kellogg-Briand pact, or, if things had gone further, to use good offices for the restoration of peace. If that could not be done, the nations would proceed to determine on which party the responsibility for war rested.

The American delegate offered the participation of the United States in conferences to determine the aggressor in case of conflict. If the nations came to an agreement in which the American government concurred, it would avoid any hindrance to what the League might decide to do to enforce the treaties.

A definition of an aggressor nation, more inclusive than that suggested by President Roosevelt in his international peace message, came from the security commission of the disarmament conference. President Roosevelt's criterion was the sending of armed forces across a nation's border. The Geneva formula would fasten blame on a nation which first did any of the following as well: Declared war, attacked by land, air or sea; formed a naval blockade; aided or abetted armed bands invading another state.

Exact definition of aggression was opposed by the representative of Great Britain, which said each case must be judged on its own merits.

In a five-point declaration of policy at London, recognizing the validity of demands for security guarantees such as are voiced most strenuously by France and Poland, the British government indicated willingness to consult with the other powers to promote security. It declined, however, to assume further obligations on the continent beyond those undertaken in the Locarno pact.

England also pointed out she could not be expected to make further reductions of armaments without a general agreement among the nations of the world.

The proposed international agreement under discussion at Geneva was objected to by Japan, which insisted it must not mention the League and Washington naval agreements. Japan served notice that when the London treaty expires in 1936 she will insist upon a larger navy in proportion to those of Great Britain and the United States.

DR. KELLEY WILL SPEAK AT SERVICES TODAY

Dr. Robert L. Kelly, executive officer of the Association of American Colleges, will speak at the vesper service at Spelman College at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The public is cordially invited to the service in Sisters' chapel.

Family Row and Republican Plots Beset Monaco's Grimaldi Dynasty

By RICHARD MASSOCK.

MONTE CARLO, May 27.—(AP)—Monaco's royal family, beset by difficulties political and private, is seeking to work out the destiny of the Grimaldi dynasty with the princely throne at stake.

A movement to transform the roulette-staked principality into a republic under French supervision has arisen, along with a dispute over the succession to the crown.

Count Aynard de Chabrillon, pretender to the throne of Prince Louis II, renewed his claim when Princess Charlotte, daughter of Louis, renounced her right of succession.

There also have been side-plots for the royal family following the recent divorce of Princess Charlotte and her husband, Prince Pierre de Grimaldi, formerly the Count de Polignac.

Disagreement regarding the custody of the children, Prince Rainier and Princess Antoinette, has just been terminated by an arrangement whereby they will be with their father during the summer months. They are to winter with Prince Louis.

Prince Rainier, who will be 10 years old on May 31, is the crown prince since his mother abdicated her rights.

The 64-year-old Count de Chabrillon, however, in a note to the French foreign office, claims that he inherited the right of succession from the family branch headed by the German Duke of Urach.

The Count de Chabrillon, who claims descent from Honoré III, of Monaco, ancestor of Louis, lives in France.

Meanwhile there has been political agitation for a republic. At the same time, however, the Monégasque assembly and the communal delegation, both appointed by Louis after he suspended the constitution several years ago, have proclaimed their loyalty to the reigning prince and to Prince Rainier.

BRITISH FASCISTS LED BY PAROX Sir Oswald Mosley Fights Class Which Bore and Bred Him.

By FREDERICK OESCHNER.
LONDON, May 27.—(UP)—The leadership of the British fascist movement by a man like Sir Oswald Mosley is a complete paradox as can be imagined.

His bitter fight is against the class which bore and bred him, and in favor of the class from which he is separated by every tradition.

The fact primarily is that causes the vast conservative element in British life to question Sir Oswald's sincerity, and to label him a political dabbler.

The fascist leader's championship of the working classes is, in a way, incidental to his major purpose of remodeling the British state. The simple truth is that he is passionately convinced that Britain's class alignment not only is unjust, but politically and economically unsound.

Different Lines of Approach.
To compare Mosley with the two other fascist leaders of the day, Mussolini and Hitler, mainly is to realize how rare and how unique has been his line of approach to fascism.

Mussolini and Hitler were rebels from the beginning. Mosley first was a conservative, then an "independent liberal," and finally a laborer; disaffected from all three, he formed a new party and finally, only a year or so ago, openly espoused fascism.

Mosley and Hitler grew up in the rough and tumble atmosphere of financial uncertainty, fought at times for their bread, knew persecution and physical combat for their cause.

Mosley has known none of these things. Born of an aristocratic family, and heir himself to an old title, he had all the advantages of upbringing and education that such a background implies. And in fighting to assert his political individualism, the harshest blow he knew was ridicule.

Mosley still has a limp from war wounds, and the chase of 1914-1918 seared his mental attitude as deeply as it did that of the Italian and German fascist chiefs. It brought to him with clarity the knowledge that things were scarcely as right with the world as some of the elder statesmen preached.

'BASIC ENGLISH' NEW LANGUAGE

LONDON, May 27.—(UP)—A new language "Basic English" may be the international auxiliary tongue of the future.

It is the invention of C. K. Ogden, director of the Orthological Institute at Cambridge, and it is based on the elimination of all superfluous words.

Ogden has taken a blue pencil and reduced the 500,000 words of the English language to 850. It has taken him 10 years to do it, and now he has the whole English language on a sheet of paper.

His 850 words include 600 names of things. One hundred and fifty words supply all the necessary adjectives. Eighty-two words cover all the prepositions, pronouns, conjunctions, and some essential adverbs. There are only 18 verbs which Ogden calls "operators."

The whole of the grammar could be summarized on a postcard as follows: (1) plurals in "s" (2) derivations in "er," "ing," and "ed" (3) 300 nouns (4) adverbs in "ly" from the adjectives (5) degree with "more" and "most" (6) questions by inversion or "do" (7) conjugation of nouns and the 18 verb forms. Measurements, numerals, currency, calendar, and international terms are used as in English.

Ogden contends that these 850

BIG BUSINESS HIT BY GERMAN SHOPS

Nazi Government Urged To Break Grip of Larger Corporations.

BERLIN, May 27.—(AP)—Middle-Germans who keep shops or engage in small industries, after being persecuted for several years on the milk of Nazi campaign speeches are beginning to demand meat.

The demands are in the form of scores of resolutions passed by trade organizations and asking the government to dissolve the industrial trusts, chain stores and department stores.

Some of these resolutions mention campaign speeches made by Adolf Hitler and other party leaders when the chancelor was trading the long road from Munich's beer cellars to the Wilhelmstrasse.

Without showing outward signs of it, the big industrialists who depend upon domestic markets for considerable of their business, are trying to stiffen the government to resist the attempts to curtail the department stores and retail chains.

Their interest lies in the difference between billing one house for 100,000 pairs of rubbers and getting prompt payment, or in selling and billing 100,000 corner shops for five pairs of rubbers each and taking chances on the credits.

Newspapers Print Warning.
Dr. Felix Pinner, one of the nation's leading writers on economics, in the Nazi-controlled Berliner Tageblatt argues that the time for dissolution of big business enterprises has not arrived.

Similarly Der Deutscher, organ of the Catholic trades unions, described the movement as based on an "erroneous economic belief" which would tend to protect lazy or incompetent shopkeepers.

Dr. Pinner's article, a lengthy one, argued that decentralization of large commercial combinations was no more practical today than was the splitting up of the federal railway system. He added:

"The enemy against the large concerns, which now is so strong because of political evolution, must not be allowed to tear apart functioning organizations before the strength and plans are available to set up something in their places."

Politics Must Go Slow.
"It simply is not sound to press political channels to carry through economic demands under the guise of political action."

A political system, desirous of economic success as well, dare not disturb conditions until it has something fundamental upon which the new construction can begin."

Address Air Mechanics.

O. E. Perry, president of the state Federation of Labor, and A. Steve Vance, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, Saturday night addressed the newly organized Atlanta Chapter No. 733 of the Aircraft Mechanics' Association at the old city hall building in East Point. J. L. McFarland, president, presided.

Words supply man with all he needs for intercourse with his fellow-beings. Nor does the language sound or read stilted. Indeed, in several instances, where the classical English literature has been translated into Basic, the style has been improved.

Here is an example from a speech by Mussolini:

Ordinary English version: "I fought in the war as a soldier in the ranks. I know what war means. Terrible memories of those years when whole generations of the youth of so many countries were laid low by the war have been etched in my mind."

Basic English version: "I was in the war, not as one in authority, but as a common man. That gave me a knowledge of the effects of war. Sad memories of those years when the young men of all countries went down in such numbers under the rain of lead are even now in my mind."

It is claimed for Basic English that the normal intelligent foreigner between 16 and 21 can master it in 30 days. For the English-speaking person, who has to learn to eliminate and not add new words, the time is slightly longer.

GANDHI A SHADOW AS HE APPROACHES END OF LONG FAST

Physicians, However, Voice No Anxiety for Health of Mahatma Despite Weakened State.

POONA, India, May 27.—(AP)—The nineteenth day of the Mahatma Gandhi's three-week fast ended at noon today, and there was no anxiety about his physical condition, although he was described as "the merest shadow."

This description came from Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, poet, lecturer, philosopher and revolutionist, who is serving as his nurse during the ordeal. She said that she was "privileged to witness a great victory of the spirit over the frail and failing flesh."

The Mahatma started his fast at noon May 8. His purpose is to protest against the discrimination against the members of the lowly class of "untouchables."

"His body is now the merest shadow," Mrs. Naidu said. "His breath is feeble and failing, his strength is sinking moment by moment, but his smile is serene, his gesture as expressive, his courtesy as exquisite, his mind as luminous, his humor as keen and his will as invincible as in the days of his health."

"His radiant faith never has flickered throughout the long ordeal. In his presence all doubts are transformed into hope, all fears are transmuted into courage, and uncertainty becomes knowledge and certainty that victory will be his, not merely over his body and his breath, but also over the deadly wrong-doing for which, in this sublime and terrible matter, he has offered himself as a triumphant sacrifice."

Mr. Gandhi is troubled only by a slight return of recurring nausea.

JAEGER DEFENDS MODERN GERMANY IN SPEECH AT CLUB

The fair-mindedness of the American people will enable them to see the true picture of modern Germany, asserted Dr. R. Jaeger, German consul at New Orleans, speaking on the "New Germany" at the opening of the German-American Club gardens at 80 Fourteenth street, N. E., Saturday night.

Dr. Jaeger asserted that in the evolution of the present Germany it is impossible to avoid exaggeration of conditions and equally impossible to avoid injury to some individuals. However, he said, the government was threatening Germany as a great menace.

The annual opening of the gardens was presided over by Robert Hecht as master of ceremonies. He introduced former Governor John M. Slaton, who made the opening address. The closing address was made by J. D. Von Dohlen, of Charleston, S. C. The evening's program opened with a Dutch supper served in the pavilion and after a program of speeches, dances and music concluded with an open-air dance. H. F. Linder is president of the club.

Fascists Not Wholly Pleased By Course of Germany's Nazis

POINTS OF AGREEMENT.
1—Strong central government.
2—Death of the parliamentary system.
3—Control of press.
4—Women removed from politics.
5—Fascists in state jobs.
6—Corporate state.
7—Control of big trusts.
8—Friendships with the church.

POINTS OF DIFFERENCE.
1—Italian system approaches state capitalism; Hitler's system favors vital effort.
2—Hitler imposes heavy taxes on labor income, but Italian taxes his during business; Mussolini taxes large and small business and individuals.
3—Hitler grants free press; Mussolini formally grants them freedom of worship.

Friendliness with the church. In Italy Mussolini produced the reconciliation with the Vatican, and Italian-Vatican relations are most cordial.

In Germany, Hitler's declaration that Germany's foundation rests on the two great churches, Protestant and Catholic, brought a revocation of the anti-Hitler pronouncement by the Catholic bishops meeting at Fulda.

Von Papen's visit to the Vatican in April brought the Vatican still closer to the new government.

Mussolini and Hitler differ on certain points of business and taxation: The Italian system has sometimes been likened to state capitalism, with the government regulating business in many ways, providing subsidies, offering credit, and at the same time dictating business policy, wages and prices.

Hitler's system seems to favor individual effort, but restricts the accumulation of profit so as to eliminate the super-rich.

Hitler's fiscal policy is to impose heavy surtaxes on large incomes, but to reduce and, if possible, eliminate all taxes that hinder business.

Mussolini's fiscal policy is to tax everyone, rich or poor, to spread out the burden of taxation over as large an area as possible. Everyone in Italy pays a heavy percentage of taxation in some form or other. Persons with wages get a weekly pay income tax.

Hitler's anti-Jewish campaign is based on no Italian example. Mussolini formally guaranteed the Jews full freedom of worship at the time he signed the Lateran accord with the Vatican.

Italy takes pride in reviewing the many points in which Germany has imitated her example. Her newspapers boast that Mussolini is showing the world how to act.

On the points in which Germany differs from Italy the press is not so talkative.

GERMANS ELECT BODELSCHWING AS REICH BISHOP

Protestant Church Bodies of Fatherland Defy Hitler in Selection of Ecclesiastical Head.

BERLIN, May 27.—(AP)—The Rev. Friedrich Bodelschwingh, widely esteemed German social relief worker, was tonight elected first evangelist bishop of the reich by the German Protestant church groups which resisted determined efforts of the Nazi church organization to name a Nazi candidate.

Herr Bodelschwingh was chosen by the Landeskirchen, widely respected Protestant organizations, despite the fact that they were informed that Chancellor Hitler would never accept their selection, and the popular pastor and relief director.

The leaders of these 29 organizations, including the Lutherans, the reformed churches and the United Methodist church, through thick and thin to their candidate, Herr Bodelschwingh, who is known throughout Germany for his social settlement work.

With equal determination the German Christians, who are Nazis, insisted on the selection of the Rev. Ludwig Muehlen, they formed the Landeskirchen, the church of Jesus Christ, which the chancellor never would approve the Von Bodelschwingh nomination.

This statement, issued after the German Christians had threatened "most dire consequences," resulted in another meeting of the Landeskirchen leaders. They canvassed the situation once more, and again declared for Dr. Bodelschwingh.

Meanwhile Chancellor Hitler was saying nothing.

The churchmen published a plan to amalgamate all the groups of the Landeskirchen in one church of the reich, for which there will be a common creed on which all factions will be united, with each individual church at the same time retaining its individual creed. The common creed:

"We place our entire faith in almighty God, our father in heaven: to Him and His will we are responsible every moment and everywhere."

"We confess that before God we are lost with our evil and sinful ways. In our confidence, however, we look to our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who on earth fought and suffered for us, died and was resurrected. He has made for us a new life and freedom, life and eternal bliss."

"God's holy ghost is the spirit of truth and strength. He foreordains us as members of the church of Jesus Christ by our words and mode of living everywhere to be adherents and champions of our Savior, especially in our families and callings, among our fellow men and women."

"We believe in the resurrection of the dead and in the life of the world to come. Christ will return and bring eternal perfection in the kingdom of His glory."

PINE ASSOCIATION TO SET SALES CODE
NEW ORLEANS, May 27.—(AP)—The Southern Pine Association, through H. C. Berkes, secretary-manager, today called a meeting of all southern pine producers to be held here June 7-8 to agree on a "code of sales practices" for the industry to become operative under the national act.

The code, Berkes said, would include "maximum hours of labor, minimum wages, minimum prices, a system of protection of southern pine against insect and other pests, and a code of ethics." He described the meeting as "the most important ever held by the southern pine industry."

PEIPING IS UNDER CONTROL OF JAPS

Events in City Parallel Situation in Shanghai 18 Months Ago.

PEIPING, China, May 27.—(UP)—Japanese forces took over virtual control of Peiping tonight, without actually occupying the city.

The Japanese commandant informed the commanders of United States, British and other foreign troops that their troops intended to patrol the city day and night, because the situation arising from a recent attack on a Japanese legation sentry was still "serious" and because the Chinese had not fulfilled their promise to demilitarize the city.

Foreign commanders were apprehensive, pointing out that events here were paralleling the situation in Shanghai 18 months ago, which led to Japanese storming the city, with resulting bloodshed and chaos.

Japanese legation guards largely appropriated Peiping police powers, forcibly entering homes in search of Chinese troops and questioning even prominent persons on whether they were connected with anti-Japanese movements.

Military activity continued on the various fronts to the north and east of the city, and the status of the supposed "verbal truce" was obscure. The Chinese apparently were unable to agree among themselves.

The Chinese generals, Feng Changhai and Fang Chen-wu, continued their internecine warfare at Huang-shan, on the Peiping highway to Kalgan, on the northwest, while severe fighting was in progress at Kuyuan, north of Kalgan.

There, Feng Yu-Hsiang, former Chinese general, who has been in obscurity for two years, again emerged as a factor in the Chinese military-political scene by revolting and seizing Kalgan because he opposed the efforts to conclude a truce with the Japanese at Peiping.

The postmaster at Kalgan telegraphed cryptically to the postal commissioner here that "important political changes are taking place and all Peiping-Suiyuan railway traffic is suspended."

Feng ordered the disarming of all the vanquished troops of Tang Yu-lin, former governor of Jehol, who lost the province to the Japanese. General fighting ensued.

TRUCE WITH CHINESE DENIED BY JAPANESE
TOKYO, May 28.—(Sunday)—(UP)—Flatly denying a truce had been reached with Chinese military authorities, the Japanese war ministry today reiterated its previous statements that peace in northern China was dependent solely upon actions of the Chinese.

Negotiations for an armistice are being arranged, the war office said, but success of such a movement will rest upon the sincerity of the Chinese.

Japan has no desire to occupy Peiping or Tientsin, but will order its armies to continue advancing southward if Chinese troops show evidence of renewing hostilities or if renegade forces harass Japanese warriors, it was indicated.

"The army has not entered either city although it could do so easily since it is within a stone's throw of each," the ministry statement said.

SENIOR BANQUET HELD BY LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Epsilon Beta chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity at Emory University held its annual senior banquet Saturday night at the Frances Virginia tea room with John Milledge, senior in the school of business administration, as its honored guest.

Speakers were E. G. Fields, University of Rhode Island; R. E. Merriam, of North Carolina State; the guest of honor and Tom Morgan, of Emory. Members attending included Hardy McCallum, Harrison Wiegler, Robert Walker, Harry Samff, Nelson Spratt, Eugene Gillespie, Jack Hollister, Donald Kent, Tom Keithley and Wideman Dobbs.

Expert on Church Affairs in U. S. New Papal Legate at Washington

ROME, May 27.—(AP)—Pope Pius new "ambassador" to the United States, Archbishop Amleto Cicognani, takes a deep knowledge of the United States and a thorough acquaintance of English with him. He succeeds Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, created cardinal March 13.

"Now that the Holy Father has chosen me as apostolic legate," he said, "I am glad to go to America where I know so many people, even though I am sorry to leave Rome, where I have spent so many years."

Since the United States and the Vatican do not have diplomatic relations, the apostolic legate is not accredited to the government like the ambassadors of other states.

At religious ceremonies he takes precedence over the American hierarchy.

The short, sturdily-built prelate, with dark eyes, high-browed forehead and short-cropped black hair has been in the United States twice on extensive tours.

The first was in 1924, when he inspected the chapters of a religious order. He was in New York, Chicago, Providence, Syracuse, New Haven, Hartford, Kansas City and St. Louis.

In 1931 he was in the United States again to co-ordinate the work of the Near East Welfare Association. He went across the continent to San Francisco.

Archbishop Cicognani was for 14 years assessor of the consistorial congregation, to which American bishops and archbishops refer their special problems. He has come to know every American high prelate personally and has read hundreds of American newspapers, particularly the religious press.

The new envoy is the sixth apostolic legate from the Vatican to Washington. All his five predecessors became cardinals.

TOTAL ABOLITION OF PRACTICE URGED AT GENEVA PARLEY

General Commission of World Arms Conference Hears Hugh R. Wilson Outline America's Attitude on Issue.

U. S. WILL PUSH FOR AGREEMENT

British Asked To Withdraw Reservation Permitting Air Bombing as Police Measure.

By STEWART BROWN.
GENEVA, May 27.—(UP)—The United States today called for total abolition of the "crime" bombing from the air, opposing the British reservation permitting bombing under certain specified conditions.

Hugh R. Wilson announced at a meeting of the general commission of the world arms conference that the United States opposed any exception to abolition.

"The United States," he said, "believes that abolition of bombing from the air should be unconditional, absolute and universal. . . . We believe aerial bombing is a crime."

He pleaded with the British to withdraw their reservation permitting air bombing as a police measure in outlying regions. He said the United States support of the British arms plan "has been such that we hope they will not take our observation amiss."

Arguing that there should be no exceptions, he said he hoped the British would allow the moral advantages to outweigh administrative advantages, "in order to let the world know that it is no longer menaced by bombing from the air."

Wilson's intervention came shortly after Captain Anthony Eden, of Great Britain, had explained almost with embarrassment that the British insistence on an exception was based on the military necessity of maintaining peace cheaply among "well-armed hill tribes in certain regions under mandate."

"We do not want war merely for the purpose of reuniting to the German fold people who don't want to be nor can be Germans."

"Therefore, we are all the more loyal to those who belong to us, who are of our blood and our language."

"The great mission of national socialism is to build a bridge between all co-nationals beyond our borders, because they belong to us."

RULES OF CONTEST

1. All Jinkys for these prizes must be entered Wednesday, May 31st, at 137 Peachtree Arcade.
2. Any person (except employees of The Constitution and their families) regardless of age, is eligible to enter the Jinky contest.
3. Any contestants may cut or make as many Jinkys as they wish, but Jinkys may be entered in the contest only with 10 Jinky receipts. (Example). If a person has 100 Jinky receipts, he or she may enter 10 Jinkys in the contest.
4. Contestants will be given 1 Jinky receipt by co-operating firms with each 25c purchase or payment on account. (Example). If a contestant buys $1 worth of merchandise at any of the co-operating stores he or she will receive 4 Jinky receipts. If a contestant pays $2 on account, he or she will receive 8 Jinky receipts.
5. Each Wednesday there will appear a free Jinky receipt in The Constitution. Contestants may use this free Jinky receipt along with 9 paid receipts to enter a Jinky in the contest.
6. A list of the official stores giving Jinkys and Jinky receipts will be published in The Constitution each Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. You may ask for and get Jinkys and Jinky receipts any day in the week, but JINKYS MAY BE ENTERED IN THE CONTEST ONLY ON WEDNESDAYS, AT 137 PEACHTREE ARCADE.
7. Prizes will be awarded according to rules announced each Wednesday.
8. This week's contest will close promptly at 6:30 p. m. on Wednesday, May 31st, and winners names for the week will be published in the following Sunday Constitution.
9. All Jinkys will be judged according to:
  - a. Oddity.
  - b. Originality.
  - c. Artistic Merit.

SUGGESTIONS: For this contest, small lacy figures are not as desirable as bold, easily recognized designs. Make your Jinkys so the Judges will be attracted at once. Don't compel them to study out the design—in other words, make it odd, make it original, and make it as artistic as you can—BUT ABOVE ALL, MAKE IT. You have just as good a chance as anyone.

EXTRA: TWO FREE TRIPS TO THE WORLD'S FAIR WITH ALL EXPENSES PAID TO THE PERSON ENTERING THE MOST JINKYS DURING THE CONTEST

Crackers Rained Out; Move to Memphis for Twin Bill Today

Line Up Your Sights and Squeeze It Off—It's A Great Sport

Funny how the memory goes back. Watching them lying here at the firing points yesterday on the Fort McPherson range, where the North Georgia rifle tournament was in progress—

The marshy smell of Parris Island came back and the smell of the sand and feel of the sun on the back as a company of boots went forth to learn to shoot. The marines take their shooting seriously and they go about it methodically.

There was a boy from Georgia who adjusted his sling, but could not get that left elbow turned under far enough. A sergeant kept kicking it with his foot. "Sergeant, my arm will break," he wailed. "No, it won't," said the sergeant, and kicked viciously until the elbow was under there.

Great things—the slings. One feels fitted into them, becomes a part of his rifle.

"Line up your sights, hold your breath and squeezeeeeeeee it off."

"A good rifle shot never knows when his rifle is going to fire. Squeezeeeeeeee it off."

Long hours spent in learning to contract the hand so that here might not be any "pull" of the trigger. The entire hand contracts and when it has gone so far the plunger goes, the rifle spits and the bolt bounces.

The heat always dances in front and the bull's eye at 600 and 1,000 yards looks like a very small dime down there.

At that distance if one breathes ever so slightly at the pull he will miss the entire target or at best catch it somewhere in the corner or at the edge. It is distressing to see the red dish-ag wave.

And at 1,000 yards, peering through a telescopic sight—the target is small even then.

"Line up your sights, hold your breath and squeeze it off." Great things—rifles. One gets sort of attached to them.

One gets a healthy respect for them, working in the butts, hauling the targets up and down. The bullet breaks through the paper with a quick "spat" and a whine. Now and then one will ricochet from the parapet and drop down, a piece of hot, battered lead and brass.

It's queer working there while the living death whines and spits over one's head.

Great things—rifles. One gets to love the feel of one.

And the first time a fellow handles a power rifle—and feels the throb of the explosion in the tube and feels the rush of power out that small muzzle—it's quite a feeling.

A fellow never forgets that first time—especially if it were at old Parris Island, with the heat monkeys dancing over the sand and the rotten smell of the tide coming in and a monotonous voice saying, "Line up your sights, hold your breath and squeeze 'em off."

The shoot at Fort McPherson is rather grand, with three of the international match men here and some of the great shooters of Georgia there. Today's matches, when the 30-30 pieces really begin to shoot, will be well worth seeing.

PITY THE SAILORS ON A NIGHT LIKE THIS. Charley Moore, feeling like the ancient mariner, herded his Crackers aboard train last night and set out for Memphis, Tenn.-O-See, home of the fierce and man-eating Chickasaws.

Charley Moore's pitching staff, which has been a one-man staff to date, composed of Theodore Klein-hans, will be tossed in there today in one of the two games scheduled on the bluffs. Klein-hans is getting lots of work, but he does not seem to be tiring.

The Crackers set out with prospects very dismal, but with hope, that grand sentiment, still occupying a cell in the many breasts of the officials. Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson is to pack up this week and go to New York and points east to plead directly into the nude ears of the major league owners. He thinks the pleas may bring some players.

Loss of the games has about put Your Uncle Wilbert out of the game. He suffered so much that he wept salty tears onto his chest. This caused a severe cold to develop and he is treating it with mustard plasters and footbaths.

The cold germs are groggy and hanging on the ropes. Within a few days the grand old gentleman will be ready to start east. Meanwhile he is practicing his pleas before the mirror.

Meanwhile the Crackers are all at sea—heaven pity all the poor sailors at sea on a night like this!

SKEET TO REPLACE TRAPS.

Skeet shooting, which is growing in popularity, will likely replace the trap-shoots as tests of a scatter-gun handler's ability. Trap-shooters themselves are turning to the new form of traps, called skeet.

In skeet, one trap is located in a small room on ground level. Another is built 10 feet off the ground and some 40 feet from the other. The pigeons come both ways. And when the shooter is standing between the traps he gets one bird directly at him and that bird is traveling about 60 miles an hour. He has just 20 feet in which to get it and he has to have his gun below his elbow when the trap is sprung.

It is simply variety. The trap-shooters have become so good at busting them that the skeet shoot, with its new problems, is luring them from the old game.

THE IRON DERBY.

The iron Derby, which is to be run on Tuesday at Indianapolis on the big two-and-a-half-mile brick oval, will out-draw the Kentucky Derby about four or five to one. The Kentucky Derby is packed into a little more than two minutes. The iron Derby goes on for four hours.

And any minute a car may burst into flames—any minute a car may hurtle from the brick track into the infield or over the wall—any minute they may pile up in the track—

And yet it isn't morbid curiosity which draws them. There is consummate skill, courage, daring and color in the great whirling drama. The horse race gives a few seconds. The iron Derby gives hours. And out of the brick track at Indianapolis has come most of the improvements on the stock car which the wife drives every day.

Two Baseball Games Baseball and Polo Today at Almand Park Slated at McPherson

Another of the Sunday afternoon double-header baseball games for Almand park will be staged this afternoon. In the first game, which starts at 1:15 o'clock, Hapeville meets Oakland City and Exposition Mills plays Juman Yards in the nightcap at 3:30 o'clock.

DEMPSEY GIVES MAXIE SAVAGE ONE-ROUND TEST

Mauler Finds Schmeling Punches Carry Dynamite in Exhibition.

LAKE SWANANOA, N. J., May 27.—(AP)—Deep in the woods here, Jack Dempsey, the old "Manassa Mauler," tied on the gloves again this afternoon and fought a brilliant exhibition round with Max Schmeling.

Some 3,000 spectators packed into the little pine sanatorium to watch the old champion throw punches with the powerful young German, who meets Max Baer in a 15-round bout June 8 at Yankee stadium.

For three full minutes the pair, encased in headgear and wearing bulky mittens, battered and slugged each other about the ring while the crowd yelled itself hoarse and half dozen movie cameras preserved the scene for posterity.

Dempsey, getting around surprisingly well for his years of inactivity and the fact he packed plenty of fat about his waistline, gave the crowd a thrill by piling into his young, well-conditioned opponent from the start.

Even in a publicity bout, where he was pitted against the man who is to fight for him two weeks hence, the old mauler didn't seem to know how to "pull" his punches.

He tossed that left hook of his into Schmeling's body a half dozen times and his right whistled when he launched it at the German's head.

And Schmeling fought back. He met Jack's rushes with stinging blows to the face, and at close quarters ripped both hands to Dempsey's middle. It was a better fight than anybody expected to see. If either had an edge it was the younger man, but he gained his margin after Dempsey tired.

"I wanted to see if he could take it," puffed Jack after the round had ended.

"I hung a right on his jaw with everything I had behind it, and he only grinned and threw a left into me that hurt clear to my heels."

"I'm glad it only went one round," he told the grinning Max. "If it had been another round, I wouldn't have been here to tell the story."

Examined by an official of the New York state athletic commission immediately after the workout, Schmeling was declared to be in perfect condition for his battle with Baer. Weighing 190 pounds, the German looked better, more keenly drawn than when he dropped his crown to Sharkey last summer.

That Dempsey still is the game's greatest drawing card was attested by the crowd that swarmed to this almost inaccessible spot. All day the usually placid training camp bore an air of excitement, an atmosphere of tense expectancy. An hour before the bout was due to begin hundreds of fans had picked out choice seats in the sun.

Dempsey's faithful retainer, "Jerry," the Greek, was like an old fire hose that smelted smoke. The little trainer who followed Dempsey's banner from the start of his career, and to whom Jack ever will be "de champ," crouched in the ropes, punching and shouting encouragement.

The only mark either bore of the bout was a slight skinned place on Dempsey's nose.

VINES IN FORM; WINS CUP MATCH

CHEVY CHASE, Md., May 27.—(UP)—The United States concluded its Davis cup play-off with Argentina by winning one of the remaining two singles matches here today; the other being unfinished.

Ellsworth Vines, American ace, experienced a little difficulty with Hector Pietrangola, but won, 7-5, 6-4, 5-7, 6-1.

In the other singles match, Wilmer Allison was leading Adriana Zappa, 6-2, 6-1, 2-2, when rain interrupted play. The match will not be completed, so the score of the United States' victory in the play-off was recorded as 10 to 8.

After being extended to win the first set, 7-5, Vines set a faster pace in the second to win with ease.

Cattaruzza rallied, however, in the third and played spectacular tennis. Vines took the first four games, but began to err frequently while at the same time his opponent improved in accuracy as well as speed. The Argentine also made some remarkable "gets" during this time.

Cattaruzza tied the count at 4-4, then tied it again at 5-5, but broke through Vines' service in the 11th game and won the 12th after the score had been deuced four times.

The final set, however, saw Vines at his best and he had little trouble winning by 6-1.

Helen Hicks Beats Maureen Orcutt, 2 Up

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., May 27.—(AP)—Rallying from a three-hole handicap she gave her opponent on the first 18 holes, Helen Hicks, former national golf champion, today defeated Maureen Orcutt, two up, in a 36-hole final for the women's metropolitan golf championship.

It was the second victory for Miss Hicks in the event and in defeating Miss Orcutt she conquered a four-time winner of the title.

From the first hole of the afternoon round Miss Hicks began to pick up the margin she has tossed away by erratic play in the morning, ended the 27 holes only one down, squared the match on the 28th and took the 29th hole to lead for the first time.

She lost the next when she three-putted the 30th, but she won the 31st, where Miss Orcutt was bunkered and made her victory secure by holing an eight-foot putt for a 3 on the last hole.

Peachtree Baptist Loses to Tucker, 8-7 TUCKER, Ga., May 27.—A tenth-inning rally enabled Tucker to beat Peachtree Baptist, of Atlanta, 8 to 7, here this afternoon.

Both teams made several costly errors that added materially in the scoring.

The score: Peachtree Baptist—410 002 000—8 7 5 3 2 1 0. Tucker—410 002 000—8 7 5 3 2 1 0.

Scenes at Fort McPherson Range as Rifle Matches Open!

More than 200 rifle and pistol shooters from all parts of the south gathered at Fort McPherson yesterday for the start of two days of competition. At the top, left, is W. J. Summerall, of Waycross, who won the individual 100-yard match with the small bore rifle. At the right is an interesting group, each of which is a member of the International Dewar team. Left to right, Charles Hamby, Atlanta; F. J. Paffe, St. Augustine; Harry M. Paschal, Atlanta. Hamby won the 50-yard match. Below is a typical scene at the firing points on one of the ranges. ## M'CORD, CARTER MEET FOR CUP

R. A. McCord and Hugh Carter Jr. will meet today on the Capital City Golf Club in the final of the annual President's Cup tournament.

Both advanced to the finals early in the week with well earned victories in the semi-finals.

Summer greens at Capital City were opened Saturday afternoon and will remain in use all summer.

The course, despite the last few days of hot weather, is in good condition and was greatly benefited by the downpour Saturday.

Opening Rounds At Druid Hills.

Opening rounds of the "challenge" league for members of the Druid Hills Golf Club will be played this week.

The "teams" were drawn Saturday afternoon and others will be added to the list as they enter and there will be two matches between each of the two teams.

Handicaps will apply and two points will be given for each win and one point for each tie and one or two matches will be played each week, to be determined by the players.

The league is scheduled to continue for at least two months and should the interest keep up it will be extended for a longer period.

Those players included in the Saturday entries were: Joe Horacek and Russell West, Jimmy Wilson and Bill Ferrell, Vexxy Rainwater and Bowie Martin, Julius Hughes and Bobby Chambers, Colonel Meehan and Major Ely, Bob Stubbs and Ned Roberts, Louis Lean and Edgar Dunlap, Garrison Ballenger and Harvey Hill, Jack Bothamley and Stanley Holditch, Joe Horacek Jr. and Albert Stubbs, R. H. Dobbs and Dr. J. Rowan and L. D. McMath and T. E. McKeithan.

Dog Fight Today At East Lake.

Another of the regular Sunday afternoon dog fight tournaments for members of the East Lake club will be played at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon on the new course.

Pairings for this afternoon's play will be made shortly before the round starts.

Ansley Park To Be Busy.

A busy day is scheduled for members of the Ansley Park Golf Club for all first-round matches in the annual President's Cup tournament must be finished by tonight. Finals in a two-day match against par and a Scotch foursome, will be played this afternoon.

Tommy Wilson, professional at the club, announced Saturday that play on the summer greens will start Monday and continue through the remainder of the summer months.

Carlton Smith In Golf Tie.

Carlton J. Smith, former co-holder of the southern doubles tennis championship, was one in a seven-way tie for first place Saturday afternoon in

Cast-Offs Are Averaged As Bayne, Blethen Star

Other Clubs Have Regrets, Too; Waddey and Scrappy Moore Play Great Ball.

Although the 1933 Southern league junket has yet to reach the calendar marking that indicates the half-way point, it is already giving signs of being a magnificent vindication of the cast-off ball player.

There are, to date, no less than a half-dozen of the wandering minstrels who have come back to disrupt the slumbers of ex-employers with a bit of serenading under their windows that smacks of Bronxian origin. And some of it is coming just when some of the old employers are not sleeping too soundly, anyway.

That it is a bumper season for the cast-offs there is not the slightest doubt. Four out of five clubs have one.

Atlanta's citizenry received a rather heavy jolt that could not be attributed to the new 3.2 beer during the week when "Climax Blethen," a steady toiler in the vineyard of the Crackers for five seasons, drew his release only to ankle over to Knoxville and win two games in rapid succession for that outfit.

In letting Chattanooga have only six hits in his first start and then rudely holding the slugging Nashville Vols to seven in his second, old Climax burst out like a three-year-old and began kicking up his heels.

COULDN'T WIN HERE.

Needless to say, when Climax got his second wind and did a right-about-face, it caused your Uncle Wilbert Robinson a great deal of pain and mental anguish. It is even being said that it was Climax, and not a cold, that caused him to lose his job for four days. This is not surprising, since the Crackers lost five ball games to Nashville when Climax was on the roster, only to have him step out and make monkeys of that slugging crew immediately after becoming a Knoxville.

On the other hand, the Smokies have a castaway of their own who is causing Colonel Bob Allen to wrinkle his brow in treacherous and frequent frowning in the person of Frank Orum Waddey, the outfielder, who is going great for Chattanooga. Colonel Bob gave Frank, a former star Tech end, a pink slip, only to read in the papers where he is batting around .300 for his neighbors, the Chattanooga Lookouts, and doing some fancy fielding the meanwhile.

In fact, Bert Niehoff, who has taken a deep interest in Waddey, is confident he is going back, to the big leagues, having given him a few pat on the back.

The Lookouts have another expatriate in Andrew G. (Scrappy) Moore, the former University of Georgia quarterback of drop-kick fame, who is doing a fine job of center-fielding after having been cut adrift by the Birmingham Barons.

Wally French, the fleet outfielder, caused the Little Rock Travelers, who are in a terrible rut, no end of embarrassment by going to Knoxville and setting the hitting pace for that club within the space of two weeks, improving his average from around .260 to .310.

Other of the so-called "forgotten men" who refuse to be forgotten is Bill Bayne, the slim southpaw, who has just turned in the season's first no-hit, no-run game for Memphis.

SUMMERALL WINS IN RIFLE SHOOT

By Jack Troy.

The participants were saying that W. J. Summerall, excellent marksman from Waycross, Ga., was in a slump yesterday afternoon as the opening day's firing in the first annual North Georgia rifle and pistol tournament ended.

However, Summerall "stole the show" with two firsts and two seconds in the four small-bore rifle matches.

All afternoon Summerall looked through the sights with "bull-eye eyes." He almost took four out of five firsts, having a 199, including 15-X's in the first event, individual 50-yard any-night match.

This was the same total that Charles G. Hamby, Atlanta, had, but Hamby made his X's or dead center bull-eyes, on the first target, thus taking first place.

Hamby gave the next best performance on the rain-swept range at Fort McPherson with a first, second and third. Harry M. Paschal, Atlanta, was next best with a first and second.

It was the first time that a small-bore rifle and pistol tournament has been attempted here. Rain held down the first day's turnout of shooters, but at least 150 are expected to participate in the high-power rifle matches today.

There were three shooters of international renown in yesterday's matches. They were F. J. Paffe, St. Augustine; Hamby and Paschal, Atlanta, all representatives of the United States in the international Dewar team match of 1932, fired against England. Paffe had only a third place to show for his efforts yesterday.

Summerall, in practically sweeping the boards, cracked down for first places in the individual 100-yard any-night match, the individual long-range any-night match and the grand aggregate. He was second in the 50-yard match and the individual Dewar rifle match.

Summerall returned to Waycross. Continued on Third Sports Page.

Vines, Sutter, Wood, Lott, Grant in Memphis Tourney

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 27.—(AP)—Cliff Sutter, chief hope of the south for the first Dixie invitation tennis championship, arrived today for a few workouts in advance of the tournament, which opens Monday at the University Club.

The New Orleans star expressed belief that Ellsworth Vines Jr., the national singles champion and tournament favorite, will find stiff competition in the impressive field, which includes Argentina's Davis cup team.

Sutter and Bryan Grant of Atlanta, will carry the claims of the south against Vines. George Lott Jr., Chicago ace; Sidney B. Wood Jr., and Berkeley Bell, of New York, and Argentine trio, Adriano Zappa, Hector Cattaruzza and Adelman Echeverria.

Although Sutter outranks Grant in national ratings, the New Orleans star has never defeated the Georgian.

TED KLEINHANS, AUBE TO PITCH AGAINST CHICKS

Dashiell Returns to Line-Up Today; Dudley Not Considered.

By Jimmy Jones.

Showers of blessing descended upon the storm-torn area of Ponce de Leon park, habitat of the Atlanta Crackers Saturday, preventing any further risks of prestige with the Chattanooga Lookouts.

The Redcaps, with but one player left at his regular position from the 1932 team which won the pennant, have taken exactly four out of six games played with the Crackers this season. In fact Atlanta might have lost its fifth-place position to Niehoff's men if the series had lasted longer.

When the concluding game of the series here was washed out by the day's schedule, the Crackers packed their luggage and caught a rattler for Memphis, where a double header is to be played today. It seems that every time one looks at the schedule the Crackers are playing Memphis.

TOUGH SERIES.

There will be four games with the Chickasaws on this trip, probably involving a little blood and thunder since Prothro's Tribe is said to be a little ticked with the Crackers. The latter rest Monday, play Tuesday and Wednesday and then shuffle over to Little Rock to finish out the week's playing through Sunday.

The wandering boys are at home Monday, June 5, for a run of 21 games, starting with Nashville.

Manager Charles Moore, who is hard pressed for fresh pitchers, was not greatly aggrieved over the raining out of the final contest with Chattanooga. He announced before leaving that he would pitch Hornsby Aubrey, the stocky ex-Fordham University star in the first game with the Chicks today with Theodore Klein-hans, the iron man of the staff, probably on the seven-inning nightcap. Klein-hans is pitching with a maximum of three days rest, but has won six straight games for the Crackers.

Another change in the Cracker line-up, which, it is hoped, will get the team back on the winning path is the return of Wally Dashiell to second base, replacing Bobby Barrett, who has been sent back to the Newark Bears from whence he came.

Dashiell, although not hitting up to standard, was playing a good defensive game for the Crackers when he was suspended on May 18. He was in the club's lineup when it started its eight-game march to go into fourth place on May 5—the highest peak the Crackers have reached. During Dashiell's suspension the Crackers barely played 500 ball, therefore any change should be for the better.

Moore also spiked the report that Cliff Dudley would go back on the roster by announcing he would not be taken on. Dudley's pitching, like that of Rufus Meadows and a few others on the staff has been a little too fat for the opposition. The Crackers cannot take further chances on losing games if they expect to stay in the race.

Meanwhile, President Wilbert Robinson plans to make a tour of the northeast sometime soon in a scouting expedition for some pitching help and possibly a little more batting punch. Robby says there are some players at Charlotte that the Crackers can use later on, but not now, since that club is on top in the Eastern league race and to deprive it of any of its strength would be like borrowing from one pocket to put into the other. There is lots of baseball talent in Charlotte and Uncle Robby, who has a financial interest in the club, is very proud of this. What he wants now is to get the Crackers up to a similar position in the Southern.

A. A. U. Sanctions Lakewood Bouts

All amateur boxers registered in the A. A. U. are eligible to fight at Lakewood in the Southeastern A. A. U. tournament which begins Friday night under the direction of Harold Beall, East Point matchmaker. Amateurs wanting to compete for the titles can sign up at Trammell Scott's store on Broad street or by calling Bell at Calhoun 1721.

These bouts, under the official sanction of the A. A. U., will draw the best talent in and around Atlanta and real action and thrills are promised fans. Beall is looking up some real scrappers for his opening card. These bouts are the only ones in Atlanta sanctioned by the A. A. U. High school and college fighters are especially invited to participate.

Manitoba Favored In English Derby

LONDON, May 27.—(UP)—Lord Woolavington's Manitoba has been made favorite for the Derby at Epsom Downs, at 15 to 2. He is secondary choice at 10 to 1 several days ago. Lord Derby's Hyperion, erstwhile favorite at 15 to 2, is now 8 to 1.

The French horse, Rodosto, owned by the Princess May De Faucigny-Lucinge, remained third at 100 to 1, and Sir A. Butt's Young Lover fourth at 100 to 1. King Salmon was still fifth at 100 to 1.

Otis Crisman Wins Montgomery Play

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 27.—(UP)—Otis Crisman won the Montgomery Country Club's invitation golf tournament here today, defeating Preston Watson, 3 and 2.

Drawings for the event will be made tomorrow. Tournament officials indicated Vines will be seeded number one, with Sutter second and Wood, Lott, Zappa, Grant, Cattaruzza and Bell following in order.

Other doubles pairings haven't been announced, but it seems likely that Lefty Bryan, of Chattanooga, and Jack McDermid, of Chattanooga, will work together. Grant may pair with Mahlon Courts, another Atlanta entry.

Although Sutter outranks Grant in national ratings, the New Orleans star has never defeated the Georgian.

ATLANTA STARS ENTER RADIUM TITLE TOURNEY

Fifteen Players Will Compete in Southern Women's Meet.

ALBANY, Ga., May 27.—(AP)—Mrs. M. Fishbaugh, of Vicksburg, Miss., won the title a year ago, and Miss Margaret Maddox, of Atlanta, champion in 1929, likely will rank as the twin favorites in the twenty-second annual southern women's golf championship on the Radium Springs course here starting June 5.

Four of the younger players also looked upon as title threats. They are Miss Mary Rogers, of Jacksonville, who recently won the Florida championship; Miss Estelle Lawson, of Chapel Hill, N. C.; Miss Kathryn Campbell, of Columbia, S. C.; and Miss Margaret Smith, of Birmingham, the Alabama champion.

Others regarded as sure qualifiers for the match play contests and potential contenders are Miss Dean Vandenberg, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mrs. C. Kersten, of Richmond; Mrs. Marion Rodwell, of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. David Gaut, of Memphis, four times southern champion; Miss Jane Shuman, of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. M. Solomon, of Memphis; Mrs. Frank Lumpkin, of Columbia, Ga.; Mrs. S. B. Lippitt, of Albany.

Atlanta probably will have the largest entry. Among those from the Georgia metropolis are Mrs. O. B. Keeler, Mrs. H. B. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. J. C. right, Mrs. Guy Butler, Mrs. Jim Burns, Mrs. Ashby Taylor, Mrs. S. Meunier, Miss Dorothy Kirby, 13-year-old star; Mrs. Charles Mack Jr., Mrs. Oliver Healey, Mrs. Rudy Black, Mrs. W. O. Miller, Mrs. E. Williamson, Mrs. Wayne Patterson and Miss Evelyn Sheffield.

OTHER ENTRIES. Miss Elizabeth Duncombe, of Memphis; Mrs. Floyd Alford and Mrs. Price, of Albany; Mrs. Roy Jones, of Columbia, Ga.; Miss Aline Smith, of DeLand, Fla.; Mrs. Robert Miller, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; and the Frances Owens, of Greenville, S. C., are others expected to enter.

The 18-hole qualifying round will be played Monday, June 5. The 32 scorers qualify for match play starting Tuesday. Winners in the first-hole matches form the championship flight and the losers are listed in the first flight. Eighteen-hole matches will be played every day until the finals Saturday, which will be the 36-hole route. The team trophy will be decided in the qualifying round, the three lowest scorers from any one club winning.

Atlanta Boston Scores Triumph

Mrs. E. W. Holtzendorfer's prize-winning Boston, Sweet Personality, won the Atlanta show, being away at Eastern shows at that time. She is one of the best Bostonians in the game and her victory last week indicated that she will soon be a competitor for national honors as queen of all Bostonians.

Popular Champions in Shoot Here

Paul Earle, left, of Starr, S. C., won the Southern Class A singles championship with 494 breaks out of 500 targets fired at in the Capital City Gun Club shoot, which ended yesterday. J. W. Collins, right, of Dayton, Ohio, manager of the American Trapshooters' Association, was the popular winner in the Class C singles in a thrilling extra shoot with J. R. McKibben, of Orlando, Fla. ## METRO OPEN WON BY MACFARLANE MAMARONECK, N. Y., May 27.—(AP)—Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., national open titleholder in 1925, reeled off a couple of birdies just when they were most needed today and beat a crack field for the Metropolitan open championship.

He sank six and eight-foot putts for birdie three on the last two holes for a fourth-round score of 72, a 72-hole count of 291 and a lead of one stroke over Paul Runyan, White Plains star who has been named to the 1933 Ryder Cup team.

Finishing a surprising third with 293 was Dick Metz, of the Hollywood Club, Deal, N. J., two strokes in front of California's Olin Dutra, defending champion. National P. G. A. titleholder and like Runyan, a Ryder Cup team member.

Eight strokes behind the leader at the end of the first 36 holes, Dutra made a spectacular bid to retain the title by sinking a 70, two under par for the Winged Foot Country Club course, in the third round this morning.

That score, materially aided by a hole-in-one at the short tenth, gave Dutra a tie for the lead with MacFarlane at 219 but the Californian faded to a 76 in the final round and wound up in fourth place.

'Y' Schedules Swimming Program

The members of the Y. M. C. A. life saving corps met and completed the organization of the board of examiners last week. The local board was granted a charter last year and did considerable work toward its program of instruction in swimming and life saving. The program will be expanded for the current year and the Y. M. C. A. welcomes all non-swimmers and would-be life savers to join its ranks.

The instructors have entered into a seven-day period of special training for the approaching season and are discussing the latest and most technical methods as well as the most practical for use on such occasions as are bound to come up with the advent of summer in the many unguarded swimming pools.

A tentative program has been mapped out for classes in advanced swimming, beginners' swimming, junior and senior life saving, and special attention will be given to men who have not yet learned to swim.

The board of instructors and examiners is composed of the following men: Frank Huff, field agent; Sammons, Oscar Brock, Comer Finch, E. S. Jones, Lynton Upshaw and Gene Baylis.

Ruff-Anglin Bout Lakewood Feature

After a week of intensive training, Bull Anglin, Atlanta fireman-wrestler, last night declared himself in splendid condition for Monday night's comeback match against Tiny Ruff, popular Atlanta boy, in the feature match of Bill Corley's card at Lakewood park.

Ruff, who recently defeated Jack Ross, of West Palm Beach, in a charity match at Lakewood, always stays in the best of condition and is confident of halting Anglin's plans.

This ranks as the best match Corley has arranged for the entertainment of the Lakewood patrons. It will be for two hours, best two out of three falls.

Oscar Williamson, popular city hall employee, who admittedly wrestles because he gets a keen enjoyment out of it, meets Ben Jordan, arch-rival, in the semi-windup.

Corley hopes to get the Atlanta fireman's hand to play at the matches. Popular prices will prevail.

Amateurs To Meet At Cain Arena

Friday night the southeastern amateurs will shift the scene of battle from Lakewood park to the Cain street arena located at Cain and Courtland streets. Promoter Buice announces that the Cain street arena is more centrally located and that there will be no conflict on his Friday night dates.

Frank Adams, Atlanta boy and New York heavyweight champion, will headline the card with a suitable opponent to be announced later. Glenn Lawson and Homer Leatherwood will be rematched. These boys put up a great scrap on opening night. Sam Cowan will meet Paul Dent, last year's champion, in another bout. All the boys are requested to be at the arena at 6:30, so as to be matched up in time. All of last year's entries and this year's boys will be on hand to do battle. All boys wishing to enter can do so by calling at Ring Side cafe and leaving name, weight and address. The Atlanta boxing commission is co-operating with Promoter Buice in every way possible to help make this tournament a bigger success than last year. Fat Elrod will do the announcing and Mr. Martin will be timer. Ted Carroll will referee. Judges will be selected from the three Atlanta newspapers. Prices will be the same as usual, adults 25 cents, ladies free when accompanied by paid escort, and children 10 cents. First bout starts at 8:30.

Colored Baseball Opens Here Monday

Atlanta's Lucky Strikes, colored baseball team, will open its season here Monday with the Birmingham Barons at Ponce de Leon park. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

On Tuesday the Lucky Strikes will meet the same club on the Morris Brown diamond. A small admission of 15 and 25 cents will be charged. Special seats will be reserved for the white fans.

GREAT SHOOTING BY EARLE WINS HANDICAP TITLE

Sensational Performance Wins Major Prize at Capital City Gun Club.

Paul Earle, the delightful gentleman from Starr, S. C., won the Southern amateur handicap trap shoot Saturday afternoon at the Capital City Gun Club to add this to his victory of Friday in the 500 target class championship.

Earle's shooting was easily the most sensational ever seen here. He smashed 248 out of 300 on Thursday, having an amazing string of 177 to close out the day. He concluded the 500 target event to win with 494x500, another startling bit of shooting. When a trap shooter loses only six pigeons in 500 he is really shooting.

Earle faced some handicaps in the weather on all three days. A rather skippy wind worried them all on Thursday and Friday was hot. On Saturday showers swept the club grounds during the shoot, twice delaying the event.

GRAND SHOOTING. Yet Earle finished with a convincing victory in the 200 target handicap Saturday, scoring 194x200. It should be pointed out that Earle was handicapped back to 25 yards, which is really just as far back as the law allows a shooter to be placed. The usual distance is 16 yards.

Earle was against good shooters, many of them at 19 and 21 yards. Yet he broke all but six of his 200 targets in another great bit of handicap shooting.

The South Carolinian was, of course, high-over-all for the shoot. He fired the entire program, 500 targets in the class shoot, 200 in the handicap and 50 pairs of doubles, a total of 800 targets and dropped only 22, 10 of which were missed in the doubles. He is not a doubles shooter but entered the event just to get in the entire program.

Harry Johnson, who was tied for second place in the class championship, finished second in the handicap shoot, breaking 191x200.

SHOOTING COP. Homer Freeman, "the shooting cop" of Atlanta, was third amateur. Joe Hightower, American professional, was in third place.

The tournament was a complete success, the class championship proving unusually attractive to all entries.

E. E. Bishop, of Bradenton, was winner of the Class B championship, with Jack Tway, of Atlanta, second. Class C was won by J. W. Collins, of Dayton, Ohio. Collins is manager of the Grand American shoot, conducted by the A. T. A. at Vandalia, Ohio. It was his first visit to the south and he expressed himself as being charmed with the club and the hospitality.

Tway, president of the Atlanta Gun club, conducted the tournament in a most efficient manner. Tway will be one of several Atlantans going to the Grand American.

Squad 84 will be headed by M. E. Hicks, of Atlanta, and will include Jack Tway, of Atlanta, and J. R. McKibben, of Orlando, Fla.

Most of the shooters here will participate in the state shoot at Radium Springs this week.

The scores of the Saturday handicap shoot of 200 targets were: Paul Earle, Starr, S. C., 194; H. Johnson, Bradenton, 191; J. Hightower, American professional, 188; E. E. Bishop, Bradenton, 188; R. M. Jenkins, Orlando, Ind., 184; J. W. Collins, Dayton, Ohio, 183; M. E. Hicks, Atlanta, 182; W. S. Evans, Bradenton, 181; J. R. McKibben, Orlando, Fla., 180; D. A. Gaston, Bradenton, 180; Jack Tway, Atlanta, 177; H. C. Jenkins, Orlando, 174.

Water Program At Ponce de Leon

An interesting program of water sports has been scheduled today at the Ponce de Leon swimming pool, starting at 3:30 o'clock.

Captain J. N. Seymour Jr., in charge of the pool which has been completely made over, announces a program for each Sunday during the summer months.

Nationally known stars will appear. Katherine Rawls, Olympic champion; Peggy and Sonny Rawls, Pete Desjardine, former Olympic diving champion; Mary Horger, youthful star; Ish Williams and other well-known swimmers will give exhibitions.

Today's program includes a water comedy, diving exhibition, under-water swimming, a race for Atlanta boys and other events.

Donald Grubbs, southeastern and middle Atlantic amateur diving champion, will give a diving exhibition and will be assisted in the water comedy by Gordon Russell, well-known southern swimmer. Grubbs has put on the comedy with Johnny Weismuller.

There is a complete change of water every eight hours in the pool. Captain Seymour announces, and he extends a cordial invitation to the public to take advantage of the facilities offered.

Grant Leaves Tonight For Dixie Tournament

Bryan Grant Jr., 13th national ranking tennis star, will leave the city tonight for Memphis, Tenn., where he will participate this week in the first annual Dixie invitation tournament.

Following this week's play the young Atlantan, former winner of the national clay court championship, will continue play in preparation for the tri-state tourney at Cincinnati June 25, the national clay court championships at Chicago July 3, and the southern, here on the Biltmore courts, July 12.

Grant plans to enter a number of other tournaments of lesser importance during the summer and early fall.

Grant has declared that he is in better condition now than during the past few months. He suffered a temporary nervous breakdown more than a month ago in a tournament at Pinehurst, N. C. and was ordered to take a month's rest. The Atlantan has been practicing regularly of late and is eager to get back into active competition.

Ties for High Honor

Alf Anderson, son of Frank Anderson, of Oglethorpe University, who tied with Roger Hackett, of Rome, for the J. M. Harden cup awarded by faculty and student vote to the best all-around athlete at Darlington school. Anderson is a three-letter man. He is the third of the Anderson boys to attend Darlington. All have been outstanding in athletics.

Sanford To Consider Boys' Plea for White

By Al Smith.

ATHENS, Ga., May 27.—The movement to retain Bill White, veteran of 13 seasons as Georgia baseball coach, gained momentum today as President S. V. Sanford, guiding figure of university athletics for 25 years, told a group of students that he would consider their suggestion that Coach White be made director of an intramural athletic program and be retained as baseball coach.

President Sanford asked the students to present a statement setting forth the sentiment of the student body in regard to Coach White and to the intramural program.

That he would be in a position to give them a definite statement by next Wednesday.

The students called attention to Coach White's long years of service, his great baseball record and the high esteem in which he was held by his players, the entire student body, and the alumni of the university. One student added that Bill White was a part of Georgia traditions, that students and alumni considered him an integral part of the university.

President Sanford told the students that he regarded White as the best baseball coach in the south.

The student committee which talked with the president included Virlyn Moore, star first baseman and president of the Chi Phi fraternity; Harry Steine, president of Blue Key council; Marion Gaston, head of the "C" Club, university service group, and a regular outfielder for three years; Morton Hodgson, president of Senior Round Table; Hamilton McWhorter, Jr., president of Phi Kappa literary society, and Harold Martin, former editor of The Red and Black, student weekly.

The group told President Sanford that the period of usefulness at Chattanooga had ended.

Nashville offered Pitcher John Krier to the Crackers for nothing on their last trip here. Then John dropped out and won three straight, and now the Vols wouldn't part with him for the world.

Thus is the way of castoffs. The crowning blow would come to Atlanta if Art Weis should suddenly burst out and start hitting the ball lustily for Knoxville after being exiled there. Kicking a ball player off the pay roll undoubtedly has a sort of nothing effect on his pride. It is often the surest way of making him a star.

The change of scenery helps some, too. Perhaps if some of the clubs would swap players they would all benefit. Clark Griffith, the old fox of the Senators, believes in trading around. Maybe that's why they call him the old fox.

FRAME FAVORED TO AGAIN WIN MEMORIAL RACE

Old Record Expected To Fall in Spite of New Restrictions.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 27.—(UP)—When Gar Wood, from his little tower over the track, drops the green flag on Tuesday morning, the greatest field in the historic Memorial Day classic will start the 500-mile whirl around the speedway.

With the qualifying deadline set for sundown tomorrow, indications to-day were that some 35 drivers would go to the post. Thirty already have met the qualifying requirement of ten laps at better than 100 miles an hour, with a dozen or so still to take the examining sign.

Four former champions—Fred Frame, Louie Schneider, Louie Meyer and C. G. (Slim) Corum—will go to the post tomorrow to join Tommy Milton as the only two-time winner of the race. One of these four, Fred Frame, who whammed down in front last year, is the favorite. Frame will depend upon the same stream-lined Miller-Hartz special he used last year.

Second only to Frame in the betting are Wild Bill Cummings, former Indianapolis grocery boy, and Ernie Triplett, twice former coast champion. Cummings will hold the post of honor in the start, having topped all the qualifiers with an average speed of 118.421 for 25 miles.

In his first qualifying test, which he was forced to abandon because of a faulty tire, Cummings turned one lap at 120.919, a track record for two-seaters. Cummings would be the favorite, were it not for the general feeling he will shoot the works from the start and probably wear his car out within the first 250 or 300 miles.

Triplett, who qualified with 117, is rated as the finest driver in the race. While every bit as daring as Cummings, Triplett is a master of power and prefers to do his driving in the closing, not the opening stretches of the race.

The record of 104.144, established by Frame last year, is expected to go by the boards Tuesday, despite the fact that because of the restriction on gasoline tanks of more than 15-gallon capacity, more pit stops will be made. The motors this year are tuned to speed believed impossible for two-man cars—a few years back.

Given first-class track conditions, the race will draw upward of 100,000 spectators.

Howell Mill A. C. Schedules Match

Action apenty in anticipated Monday night when an all-star wrestling and boxing card is presented at Promoter F. P. Owens' Howell Mill Athletic Club. The arena is located in Howell Hill road and DePoe avenue. The first match will start at 8:15 o'clock.

"Whittie" Patterson, Pantherville, and Eddie Wagner meet in the feature wrestling match.

Jack Newsome, of Marietta, will headline the boxing. He meets the veteran Battling Madrox, local heavyweight, in an eight-rounder, which promises to be another thriller. The "Masked Marvel" is slated to meet Dave Terrill, of Dallas, Texas, in a one-hour, two-out-of-three-falls match. A 15-minute match between two local amateurs will start the program.

Robert Montgomery Is Clever In 'Made on Broadway' at Grand

How a man created a fake lady so convincingly that he himself fell in love with his own illusion is shown in "Made on Broadway," the irresistible Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, now to be seen at Loew's Grand theater. Robert Montgomery is seen in an ideal role—a super press agent; Sally Eilers is the girl he lifts from obscurity and poverty to fame on Broadway, and Madge Evans is the press agent's estranged wife.

Jeff Bielwell, fixer de luxe, has a bar instead of an office. Here his clientele assemble, the famous people who depend for their livelihood on the public's approval. When an actress' public becomes cold, when a shady politician is about to be shown up, they come to Jeff, and he knows how each of them can square himself with the public.

Jeff is clever, but, unfortunately, Claire, his wife, was every bit as smart, and that caused them to separate. Jeff missed the adoration a more stupid, or a more deceptive woman would have given him. Claire loved him, but she laughed at his methods, too.

But presently Jeff finds a distraction. It is Mona Martine, Mona's name, like everything else, except her beauty and her shrewdness, is assumed. Under Jeff's tutelage she has become a famous revue star, a sought-after beauty of the night clubs. Jeff knows that all this elegance is pose and sham, but the result is so perfect, so provocative that Jeff himself falls in love with his synthetic lady. But Mona cannot let well enough alone. She and a gigolo quarrel over money, and Mona shoots him. She is in a jam, and only Jeff can save her. Jeff still half-influenced, undertakes to save Mona's life. He creates a new role for her—a part which will win the public's sympathy, and his efforts get Mona off with a verdict of "not guilty." But the experience has been a harrowing one, and Jeff at last sees his creation for the fake that she is. Then he is only too willing to return to his sensible wife.

Featurettes on the program include a Laurel and Hardy comedy, "The Music Box," which won the Academy of Motion Picture Sciences award as the funniest short comedy of the year; a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "The Mail Pilot," a Traveltalk on Norway and the latest issue of Metrophone News.

Irene Dunne in 'The Silver Cord' On Fox Screen, Santley on Stage

Irene Dunne, beautiful featured player of "Back Street," is the star of "The Silver Cord," which opened a week's engagement at the Fox theater yesterday. Miss Dunne is admirably supported by Joel McCrea, as the young husband; Laura Hope Crews, as the mother-in-law; Eric Linden as a younger son, and Frances Dee as the fiancée of Linden.

On the stage another beautiful young woman holds the spotlight in the Fanchon & Marco vaudeville offering. Zella Santley, an internationally known mimic, headlines the vaudeville with impersonations of Helen Morgan, Zasu Pitts, Jimmy Durante, Maurice Chevalier and others, and closes her act by singing the song "I Can't Help Loving That Man."

An act which is bound to add to the popularity of the show is that of the Monroe brothers, trapeze artists, who intersperse their bounding on the tautly stretched trapeze with hilarious comedy capers. This act will appeal especially to the children.

Other acts on the bill are the Carres, in "Memories of Yesterday," featuring old-fashioned dances, with an unusually agile stout lady as one of the highlights; Billie and Babs, the

'She Done Him Wrong' Returns to Buckhead

Starting Monday the Buckhead theater offers a return engagement of that delightful comedy, "She Done Him Wrong," starring Mae West. This picture was banned from showing in Atlanta by the Atlanta board of film review. On its first showing in the Buckhead theater some weeks ago enormous crowds attended, and it was the almost unanimous opinion that the picture is entirely free from anything objectionable and that it affords a tremendous amount of fun and entertainment. ## S. R. O. by Ralph T. Jones Tragedy of the prohibition era: Young folks who have lived all their lives under the so-called "bone dry" regime declaring, last week, that they preferred home-brew to 3.2.

Monday night, at the Erlanger theater, the most successful of all stock company operators, C. D. Peruchi, presents his company for the first time before an Atlanta audience. The play is "What Price Woman?" The leading woman is Mary Ann Dentler. The leading man is Grant Gordon. The orchestra is a novelty aggregation of eight pieces. The intermissions between acts are occupied by vocal numbers from the pit. The ladies are admitted free and the prices at the box-office are astonishingly low. Box-officers speaking, in fact, the Peruchi Players bring just about the cheapest entertainment in the city. But there is nothing cheap about the production or the performance on the stage. Go to the Erlanger and see for yourselves.

Film row is welcoming home, this week, one of its brightest luminaries. Sam Moskowitz, southern division manager for Columbia, is back from Boston, where he went weeks ago to recuperate after a nervous breakdown that had his friends seriously worried for a while. Sam looks better but if he follows friendly advice he won't work too hard during the summer season.

Colonel Ed Schiller, vice president of Loew's, Inc., is paying one of his periodic visits to his Atlanta home and his company's local theater, Loew's Grand. He arrived Saturday.

If you'll take a genuinely valuable tip—go to the Paramount theater this afternoon. There a benefit performance brings to the city, for delightful Sunday afternoon entertainment, a dance recital by the pupils of the Menzies-Solomonoff School of Dancing. Lola Menzies, herself one of the greatest dancers the world has known, is a magnificent teacher and her pupils include many of the greatest young dancers in the south. In addition to the dance program there will be a new feature picture, "Luxury Liner," and music by Perry Bechtel and his orchestra.

And "She Done Him Wrong" is back at the Buckhead this week for a return engagement. Mae West outdraws 'em all, whether at the Buckhead or at the Roxy in New York.

Manager Jett, of the Tenth Street, is enthused over "Oliver Twist," the first-run picture his theater, with others of the neighborhood group, are to show next week. We plan to see it at a private showing tonight and will report in this column next Sunday.

Diary of a Pre-Viewer.

TUESDAY—At the Georgia. James Cagney in "Picture Snatcher." An exceptionally entertaining production, perhaps the best vehicle Cagney has had. As an ex-gunman, just released from Sing Sing, he finds an opportunity to "go straight" (so to speak) as a chaser after hot pictures for an utterly unscrupulous tabloid exorcism upon the field of journalism. Cagney is smart and, by dint of utter lack of decency, makes good in his new game. But he doesn't understand women as well as he might and old associates, women and

James Cagney at Georgia In Fast 'Picture Snatcher'

Moviegoers recognize that there is no faster entertainment these days than a James Cagney picture. His latest Warn Brothers hit, "Picture Snatcher," playing all this week at the Georgia, is no exception. It is probably the fastest-paced film he has ever made. In so far as action, story, punch, clever dialogue, brilliant acting by Cagney and the fine supporting cast, superb direction and unflagging pace, "Picture Snatcher" is outstanding among the many virile pictures which have made Warner Brothers the producers of the most entertaining pictures the current season.

"Picture Snatcher" is a fast-moving story which fits Cagney like a glove and which keeps an audience howling with glee at the pugnacious actor's antics, and his crisp crackling lines.

Cagney is a newspaper photographer. As a reformed gangster just out of Sing Sing, he gets a job on a yellow tabloid newspaper, a paper on which no self-respecting reporter will work. He assumes the job of getting news pictures in cases where other staff photographers fail to get them by legitimate means. Particularly interesting are the scenes in which he steals a picture from the wall of a fireman's burned house, right under the nose of the fireman who is guarding it with a gun, and another where he snaps a woman in the electric chair, an incident based upon a sensational murder case of a few years ago. Those who have been wondering what happened to Cagney's socky prowess in "Hard to Handle" will find him bigger and better in this respect in "Picture Snatcher." For women and an assortment of men on the receiving end of the Cagney fists.

'Hold Me Tight,' at Paramount, Ideal Dunn and Eilers Vehicle

There seems to be no let-up in the triumphs that James Dunn and Sally Eilers are achieving as one of the screen's leading romantic teams. In "Hold Me Tight," their latest Fox production that opened at the Paramount theater yesterday, they add another notable one to their long list.

In "Hold Me Tight" they have brought the types of roles that first made them popular in such films as "Bad Girl" and "Dance Team." It is a story that concerns a search for happiness over almost insurmountable barriers. These two young people win their fight, and victory is sweeter for all of the hardships of the struggle.

They are both employed in a large department store, where they meet and fall in love. Sally is ambitious and attractive and Jim is also ambitious. But they reckon without the desires and ambitions of others. With an unscrupulous store detective who is attracted to Sally and is also in a position to get Jimmy out of the way, the fight is made all the more strenuous.

The background of the film, so typical of New York in both mood and structure, is just what this pair of young players needs. The department store with its teeming population exactly suitable to their talents. In addition to Dunn and Miss Eilers, special mention must be made of Frank McHugh and June Clyde, the company's young people. The story is by Kenneth Thomson, the detective at Noel Francis is highly attractive in a clothes model.

The second picture to be released with the wide range sound apparatus an innovation in sound, which has caused so much comment. The Paramount is the first theater in Atlanta to install this new system.

Bob Hess, the young organist at the Paramount, is this week offering popular tunes which will show the quality of the fine Wurlitzer organ. The short subject program is composed of a Vitaphone short entitled "Modern Cinderella," which features Ruth Etting, a "Screen Souvenir" and Paramount Sound News.

George O'Brien Now at Rialto In Zane Grey's 'Smoke Lightning'

The ideal western combination, George O'Brien starring in a story written by Zane Grey, is the current feature offering at the Rialto theater. This is another specially selected booking for the "Spring Festival of Joy," marking a series of picture chosen for their exceptional entertainment value and their ability to lift people out of the blues into the sunshine of optimism.

"Smoke Lightning" is the title of the picture, made from Zane Grey's story, "Canon Walls." It opens with O'Brien and his cowboy chum, Frank Atkinson, landing in a crooked poker game in a strange town. By out-cheating the sheriff, O'Brien wins all the stakes and starts to return a valuable ranch and a big money roll to the innocent loser, when the man kills himself. O'Brien goes out to the ranch and finds an only daughter of the suicide, a wild young girl of about 10, who has had no schooling but is a wizard on a horse.

The sheriff then tries, by accusing O'Brien of murder and by hiring a crook to pose as the girl's uncle, to steal the ranch. He is, of course, neatly foiled at the end, but it is only after some marvellously entertaining sequences that bring wonderful riding, desperate shooting and some beautiful photography to the picture. The climax is reached when O'Brien swings from a galloping horse to a speeding train and stages the last desperate battle with the crooks on the swaying rods of the box cars. The lovely blond schoolma'am who provides the love interest is played by a newcomer, Nell O'Day, while Bets King Ross is the tomboy who doesn't know how to put on girl's skirts but who can pretty nearly run a $500,000 acre ranch all herself when her father dies.

On Wednesday the Rialto brings to Atlanta one of the season's outstanding pictures in "Humidity," with Ralph Morgan, Boots Mallory, Alexander Kirkland and Irene Ware heading the cast. It is a beautiful story of the faith and sacrifice of an honest old physician for his son, who he strayed far from the ideals of the medical profession and who would have come to irretrievable ruin but for the devotion of his father and a girl, a trained nurse who loves him and watches over him even when he goes haywire over a richer—but unworthy—woman. It is a heart-moving story that brings a smile after a tear and a chuckle after a heart break.

Manager W. T. Murray has no neglected the short subjects on his two programs, which are of types that, in the past, pleased capacity audiences to the nth degree at the popular downtown theater. The Rialto has installed a new and improved cooling system for the summer, with washed air sweeping through the theater at all times.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 26, 1935.

VIRGINIA POINTS THE WAY.

Recognizing the unnecessary burden upon the taxpayers occasioned by waste and extravagance in the conduct of county governments, the general assembly of Virginia in 1932 passed an act in which is outlined two modern and economical types of county governments, and which authorizes the holding of elections by the counties in which the voters may express their preference as between the present antiquated and expensive manner of directing county affairs or one of the new plans.

Albemarle county, the first in which one of these elections has been held, recently voted by a large majority to do away with the old political feed-trough type of government and substitute one of the businesslike, up-to-date forms recommended by the legislature. Other counties throughout the state have already laid plans for similar elections and it is predicted that in the great majority, if not in all, the result will be the same as in Albemarle.

The necessity for the reorganization of county government in Virginia, if better public service was to be had and unreasonable and unnecessary costs reduced, was recognized by the state government in 1930, when the appointment of a commission on county government was authorized.

The duties imposed upon this commission were to study comparative county government forms in Virginia, their cost and effectiveness, and to draft and recommend to the 1932 session of the general assembly a general law setting forth optional forms of county government under which the people could receive better and more economical conduct of their local governmental affairs.

The commission's report holds that "the chief weaknesses and defects of county government in Virginia are attributable mainly to the form of organization through which counties are endeavoring to function."

The report points out that "county government as now constituted in Virginia is complicated, over-elaborate, unduly expensive and largely removed from popular control. These governments usually consist of some 30 or 40 administrative offices. These offices depend upon varying sources of authority. They are partly constitutional and partly statutory; partly elective and partly appointive. . . . To add to the confusion, there is no central authority; little or no unifying financial control. . . . The county boards have little direct control over the affairs of the county as a whole. They function side by side with numerous officers who are elected in the same manner as the members of the board."

Waste and inefficiency, the commission found, were inevitable under such conditions, arising in the main from unnecessary duplication of functions and the employment of too many officers and deputies; from the lack of organized purchasing and accounting control, and from the absence of systematic planning and management from the point of view of the county as a whole.

The commission further pointed out that "the government machine has broken under the new demands for a higher standard of community life" which have arisen during the past two decades.

The commission therefore recommended the adoption by the counties of either the county administrator or county manager type of government as a direct way in which to eliminate the evils of the then existing system of government, and the general assembly promptly passed an act authorizing popular referendums in each county.

Under the county administrator, or county executive form as it is now called, the entire legislative and administrative authority of the county is vested in a county board of supervisors of not less than three nor more than seven members to be elected, one from each district, by the voters of the whole county. This board is required to appoint a county executive to act as the administrative head of the county government, within the scope of the policies laid down by the board.

The county manager form differs from the executive form only in that the subordinate administrative officials of the county are appointed by the manager instead of by the board upon his recommendation, as is the case with the executive form.

The report of the findings of the Virginia commission might well be a page out of the record of the inexcusable and indefensible county government situation in Georgia.

The waste and inefficiency, over-elaborate and disintegrated administrative mechanism and the overlapping and useless offices and agents characterizing the worn-out Virginia system, exist to an even greater degree in Georgia. Although the area and population of this state are only slightly greater than those of Virginia, we have 159 county governments against 100 for Virginia.

Thus it would be necessary to abolish more than a third of these local governments in Georgia before we could get down even to the plane which Virginia has found to be "over-elaborate, unduly expensive, and largely removed from popular control."

What Georgia needs to relieve the overburdened taxpayers is a reduction, through state-wide consolidations, of its counties to one-half the present number and the reworking of the framework of county administration so that it will be conducted in a businesslike manner in keeping with modern conditions and requirements.

The only thing standing in the way is a powerful oligarchy of county officeholders who are slowly but surely choking to death the economic life of the rural counties of the state in order that they may continue to feed at the public trough.

If the farms of Georgia and the business property and homes in the smaller towns are to be made safe from confiscatory taxation, Georgia must follow the example of Virginia and go about putting its county government on an economical, efficient and businesslike plane.

CATTLEMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

In an article on the opposite page the editor of the Southern Cultivator announces the launching of a movement to organize an association of beef cattlemen in Georgia, the success of which will act to speed up an industry in which the state is woefully lacking, yet which, in point of natural advantages, it is particularly qualified to be one of the leading states of the nation.

Starting with what might be termed "idle talk" among cattlemen at the Savannah livestock show this spring, the idea took more definite form at the recent cattle show in Macon, and the leaders asked the Southern Cultivator to join in sponsoring the preliminary activities to an eventual organization of the pioneer beef cattlemen and progressive farmers of the state into an association, the purposes of which would be to act co-operatively in promoting the livestock industry of Georgia.

Constructive aims of the association would be to improve pasture conditions, procure laws and regulations pertaining to the betterment of the livestock and cattle industry, direct public opinion regarding the consumption of Georgia livestock and meat products, co-operate with all agencies working towards the control of contagious and infectious diseases and all other conditions detrimental to the livestock industry, work for the establishment of local slaughter houses for the processing into meat of Georgia-produced livestock, thereby insuring to producers a fair price for their cattle.

The advantages of Georgia for the production of high-grade cattle have been exploited in these columns so frequently that it would be useless repetition to again recite them, and the advantages to the people of Georgia in keeping within the state the millions that are sent north every year for western beef should be apparent to all.

That Georgia can raise as good beef cattle as any state in the nation was conclusively shown at the Savannah and Macon cattle shows. From the latter the Rogers stores in Atlanta purchased a large number of the prize winners, had them slaughtered and placed on sale in their Atlanta markets. Those who were so fortunate as to secure supplies of this beef had ample evidence that importation of western beef would terminate when the time comes that Georgia farmers and beef cattlemen can supply sufficient high-grade cattle to supply the demand.

That is the primary object of the proposed association, and those who are interested in promoting the beef cattle industry in Georgia should give all aid possible to the speedy formation of the association.

A CHILDREN'S PARADISE.

The Enchanted Island at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago has been designed especially for children. Every child from 6 to 12 years is eligible to visit this magic isle, and will thrill with delight over the program planned for their entertainment.

Three story-telling hours will take place daily in the Story Cove, a cool, sheltered spot near Lake Michigan. Small tables and chairs, intriguing maps and books and pictures of ships riding the crest of sea-green waves, all executed by children, will decorate the place.

A story teller will relate fascinating tales. Little boys, dressed as sailors and fishermen, will pace up and down the Enchanted Island, advising children visitors to follow them and hear the wonderful tales of many lands.

Holidays will be observed, with July the Fourth leading the list of the celebrations. Bands will strike up the stirring strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner," the playing of the national anthem causing the little folks to thrill with patriotic pride for their native land.

The Stars and Stripes will wave a gay salute from stately standards, and the story teller will relate the glorious story about Independence Day.

Bastille Day in France is celebrated on July 14, and upon that day a little French boy and girl, dressed in their native costumes, will act as hosts to the children. The story-telling hours will be devoted to tales concerning France, its flags and the meaning of Bastille Day.

Parents need have no fear to park their children on the Enchanted Island when they visit the exposition in Chicago this summer, and perhaps the parents themselves will be fired with the desire to linger to hear a story or two when they take their children to the Enchanted Island at the Century of Progress Exposition.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR IDLE.

Intensive programs for outdoor entertainment and amusement of the unemployed, in order to counteract the demoralizing forces of idleness, are being undertaken by practically all American cities, according to a statement of the National Recreation Association.

So widespread is the movement, it is reported, that the situation is comparable to the community co-operation of war days in providing wholesome recreation for soldiers and sailors.

Schools, churches, garages, warehouses and vacant residences are being utilized as community recreation centers, and reports from all sections of the country show that eager advantage is being taken of the opportunity presented to while away the dreary hours of enforced idleness.

In Birmingham, the records of the park and recreation board show that attendance at the various facilities under its control exceeded last year the total of any two previous years.

Programs of gymnastics, games, gardening, handicraft, reading, community parties, dances and music are being given by the thousands in various cities, being taken part in by both employed and unemployed and being witnessed by large crowds of those who have no money with which to provide amusement for themselves.

These activities directed to the upkeep of the spirit of those who have, through no fault of their own, been forced to depend for long periods on public charity, are little less important than the emergency relief work which is charged with the keeping of body and soul together.

THE PROPOSED CELEBRATION.

Looking at it from the standpoint of its practical, dollars and cents value, Atlanta's proposed Georgia bicentennial celebration looms as a medium for business revival comparable with such events, as for instance, the old Cotton States Exposition. Add to this the revival of enthusiasm and spirit certain to attend a celebration commanding world-wide attention, and the potentialities of the proposed event are evident.

Tentative plans for the proposed celebration, to be held in the fall, were discussed during the past week by a group of men and women representing many activities, who met in response to an invitation extended by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. It was proposed that Atlanta stage a Georgia bicentennial celebration of a magnitude in keeping with the importance of the city and the unique opportunity afforded at this time to let the nation know that the south will be in the forefront in the return to normalcy.

Robert Troutman, well-known attorney, was chosen temporary chairman. The suggestion was made by the Georgia bicentennial commission that governors of the 13 original states be invited with their staffs to participate in the events, and that President Roosevelt be invited to head a group of distinguished guests from all over the world.

Atlantans, generally, should enthusiastically and actively support the celebration. Speakers at the preliminary meeting viewed the proposed celebration as an unrivaled opportunity for focusing the attention not only of this nation, but of the civilized world upon Atlanta and foretold a revival of the Atlanta spirit far-reaching in its beneficial effects.

The measure of success which will attend the celebration will depend only on the extent to which active co-operation is given by citizens generally.

The task of organizing for an event of such importance is a tremendous one. It involves not only the appointment of numerous committees with well-defined tasks, but demands active attention to detail and procedure according to a carefully planned program in order that the event may be staged upon the magnitude now proposed. But Atlanta can "put it over" if she goes at it in the right way.

Atlanta owes it to Georgia and to herself to stage the celebration proposed. Nothing else could bring more definite, far-reaching and beneficial value, both spiritual and practical, than the consummation of such a well-considered program as that proposed. By all means, let all Atlanta rally to the support of a great celebration of the founding of the colony of Georgia.

Of course there is a lot of faith left. Every farmer thinks his neighbors will be the ones to cut acreage.

The beef tax is the closest we have come to a tax with its own anesthetics.

Still, inflation out of control couldn't be much worse than that kind of deflation.

Darwin must have been wrong. Monkeys are never a lot of trouble to themselves.

A wise man asks questions in order to learn something, a fool in order to start an argument.

This economic conference won't sink any battleships, but something tells us that somebody will be sunk.

Anyway, we have learned that a good substitute for gay night life is sleep.

Then, too, when a man gets corns on his hands building forests, he won't be so apt to set one afire.

Note to diplomats: "Don't sell American shorts" was a good slogan. Now let's leave off the last word.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN.

Repeating History.

There was once a great land, a mighty land, an imperial land. One day in the middle of the summer this land sent its legions across the frontiers into a small, weak country, where it broke resistance without much trouble. Yet how little effort the subjugation of that weak and small country involved for the great land, it did itself immeasurable harm. That effort which seemed superficially so courageous and unafraid was counted an evil act. It brought the whole world into conflict with the mighty land and in the end the mighty land had to be in the end chased back across the frontiers and the great land was covered with ignominy and shame.

All that is past. All that is forgiven. The World War and its horrors is beginning to efface itself from human memory. Time heals all wounds. But then the great country set about to raise new legions one day and the frontiers. They attacked and again they attacked a weak body, a body which did not offer the slightest resistance. (There is only one case on record in which a Jew resisted the Nazis.) And again, as was the case on the previous occasion, there was great rejoicing throughout the great land and the bells were rung and the people played and again the great land had done itself incalculable harm. For its act of aggression was deemed an evil act.

The world, which had tried to forget the previous aggression, and which had stretched out the hand of friendship to the great land, drew back in horror and indignation. Germany will again rue the day when she thought she could with impunity resort to brute force. She will pay for it in a material way. And now Germany burns books. The Germany of the great free spirits of mankind burns books, like the barbarous heretics of the middle ages burnt books. Ah, what a pity—not for the books, but for Germany. What a shame!

The heretic-hunters never destroyed heretical thought. The persecutors never exterminated new faiths. New faiths flourish in catacombs. Never yet has the blood of martyrs not proved a fertilizer of faith, whatever its name and whatever its texture.

French Post Attacked.

Deep in the Sahara desert in the vicinity of that mysterious Lake Tschad a French column succeeded in establishing a post last year. A block-house was built and a small garrison installed. In the blistering heat and the dry, parched earth, the troops were replaced every six months, even a few weeks ago the second relief took place. But when the relieving patrol of 200 men and their equipment and camp they found that the garrison had been wiped out. Somehow or other, dispatches say not from whom or how, the French learned that a tribe of well-armed desert warriors had attacked the post three months ago, overwhelmed the garrison and killed every man.

That is the price of empire, say the papers. How? What empire is composed of sand and rocky aridness? The war for the conquest of Africa goes on. Hundreds of Frenchmen die every year, not to mention the natives who die in the millions. Curiously enough, the periodical treated to a bombing raid. Rebels, it is called. Rebels against what? If I defend my home against an invader, whether he is a bum or a gentleman, am I a rebel?

Purity of Race.

To travel in France and strike an entire district where not a word of French is spoken may sound incredible. Nevertheless this may happen in the near future. Curiously enough, the periodical treated to a bombing raid. Rebels, it is called. Rebels against what? If I defend my home against an invader, whether he is a bum or a gentleman, am I a rebel?

Southern Comment on News of World

A Digest by the United Press

Revelations of the House of Morgan inquiry this week provoked stern editorial comment on Southern newspapers. (S. C.) Daily Mail: "Let's get the whole picture and then frame it so a pattern may be laid for securing a 'square deal' as part of the 'new deal'."

Chattanooga (Tenn.) News: "And over the country the sentence on even the 'new deal' is a 'square deal' must pay, but the greatest banker need not."

Miami (Fla.) Herald: "Although the assets of the banking house total hundreds of millions of dollars, no income taxes have been paid since 1930. Which ought to interest little Americans with salaries of $3,000 a year, who have paid such taxes."

Dublin (Ga.) Courier-Herald: "If the senate investigating committee could get J. P. Morgan for income tax evasion it would be news—a regular newspaper reporter's dream come true. His conviction on such a charge would take up more space than the Lindbergh baby kidnapping. But it is improbable."

Birmingham (Ala.) Post: "Just how Mr. Morgan slipped through the income tax net is not yet clear. Presumably he did not resort to the alleged 'practices' for which his friend and debtor, Mr. Mitchell, has been indicted."

Winston-Salem (N. C.) Journal: "America rode the merry-go-round for a dizzy period. Now it is taking it apart to find the defective parts that helped to stop its whirl. We have had so many disillusioning shocks in the past few years that we are beginning to get over our hero worship."

Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer: "There is a reassuring aspect of the situation. That is the very appearance of Morgan and his partners before the committee. That means an administrative willingness and even determination to know the truth and the whole truth about big business."

Everyday Questions

BY DR. A. PARKES CADMAN.

Bridgeport, Conn. Who selected the books of the Bible and placed them in their present order?

The 66 documents contained in the Bible of 1611 were first issued in separate form and circulated among the Jewish people and in the early Christian church. Their selection was largely dictated by their influence upon the spiritual life of humanity. The Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures known as the Septuagint was made at Alexandria between 300 and 150 B. C. But it was not accepted as an authoritative compilation until the Jewish council met at Jamnia in 90 A. D. This translation also retained the 14 books known as the Apocrypha.

The Christian Council of Carthage met in 397 A. D. and selected the books of the New Testament, together with those of the Old and of the Apocrypha, as the accepted canon of the church. The choice was confirmed by the Roman Catholic Council of Trent held in 1541, and by later Protestant councils, some of which, however, rejected the Apocrypha. These official decisions were ratified by the powerful indorsement of the general body of believers whose religious experience was vitally related to the chosen books of faith, whatever their own merits.

In the last analysis they stand on their own merits. Whatever may be the various theories of its divine inspiration, the Bible, as a whole, is a supreme in sacred literature because it speaks of the depths of the human soul and satisfies its desire for pardon, purity and peace. For further information read "The Background of the Bible," by Henry Kendall Booth, and "Where Did We Get Our Bible?" by George L. Robinson.

Atlanta, Ga. I am convinced that our first duty is to rethink Christianity instead of debating Christian missions. What is your opinion on the issue?

I agree. Far more serious problems confront the churches today than even those created by its worldwide influence. What is the essential nature of the religion for which we make universal claims? Are our presentations of its basic verities such as guarantees of eternal life, and of a heaven, to have to be answered sooner or later, and the sooner the better.

The authorized conception of Christianity is the life of Jesus, the life of the Father and the Holy Spirit, the life of the Church, the life of the individual. It is a life of love, of mercy, of pardon, of sin, and of a conscious reliance on God's favor which controls the believer's entire being. A web of words was soon woven around this amazing revelation. Theologians and philosophers endeavored to explain its Divine mysteries and to relate these to those assumptions which must always be made for any supernatural revelation. Theologians and philosophers endeavored to explain its Divine mysteries and to relate these to those assumptions which must always be made for any supernatural revelation.

Effect of Conditions on Younger Generation

Editor Constitution: I have just read with interest your editorial in the May 12th issue of The Constitution in regard to the "legalization" of beer sales in cities of Georgia. It seems to me that our governor, for reasons best known to himself, is not going to call an extra session of the legislature and if he does not, what is going to be the final outcome of the situation? It seems to me it is getting pretty serious and it certainly is not going to help the younger generation just growing up to remember the conditions which exist now.

TEXT AND PRETEXT

BY M. ASHBY JONES.

Preparation for Peace.

It was on the eve of the anniversary of Christ's birth, 1814, that the American and British commissioners signed the treaty of peace between their two nations in the city of Ghent, John Quincy Adams laid down his pen with the fervent prayer "that this peace may last for a hundred years."

Christmas Eve, 1914, came and found this prayer of the great American answered. These two great English-speaking nations had lived together in peace for a century. But when we would have celebrated this significant event we found it impossible to the discordant roar of European guns which threatened to drown out our mutual congratulations and destroy the significance of our songs. But now when peace has been secured, we have been so busy with the search for the significance of that shocking contrast between peace and war, dramatically staged in 1914.

Eighteen hundred and fourteen found England and the United States busy building warships on the Great Lakes, with the deliberate intention of preparing for a future fight. That time-honored counsel which has been the fertile mother of wars, "in time of peace, prepare for war," was dominant in the minds of men. But in 1918 the nations quietly took the most revolutionary step in the history of international relations. By mutual agreement they turned their warships into commercial vessels, and destroyed those which could not be used in missions of peace. It was all so simple and sensible. Having agreed that there should be no fight along those frontiers, they refused to prepare for a fight.

A Daring Experiment.

More than a hundred years ago these pioneer Americans, three thousand miles away from the traditional hatreds of Europe, were enabled to see clearly what it still seems impossible for nations to see today, that rivalry in armaments is a species of political and economic suicide. They saw that armaments were forcing frontiers of neighbors, and guns pointed at each other's peace and prosperity. It is a constant international irritation. They came to believe that preparation for war was in itself a proclamation of the possibility of war and became an invitation to discord. The war, a daring experiment in the century ago, and without precedent among the nations. Today it is the only proven pathway for peace. For more than a hundred years nothing but an imaginary line 4,000 miles long has separated two growing, ambitious, sensitive peoples. Innumerable vexations and irritating questions have arisen between them during this

Georgia Fungus Expert, Dr. Julian Miller, Writes On Venezuelan Mycology

(From the University Gazette.) "Dr. Julian Miller, professor of botany, University of Georgia, is a collaborator and will furnish a chapter in a new volume, 'Mycological Explorations of Venezuela,' to be published in the near future by the department of agriculture of Porto Rico. His contribution will be on the Xylariaceae, a family of fungi. 'Mycology includes the study of all fungi, which are the chief causes of diseases of plants and also somewhat of animals, for instance, many skin diseases. Dr. Miller is the authority on the Xylariaceae family, and specimens are sent to him from all over the world for identification and classification."

"The Venezuelan study covers preliminary work; the discovery of different fungi, their collection and classification. A similar book was recently brought out by Colombia with Dr. Miller one of the contributing authors. "Dr. Miller's work in this field includes 'British Xylariaceae,' a series of three papers in the transactions of the British Mycological Society, reprinted by the University Press of Cambridge, England; and 'Notes on Hypoxylon Species' in the French publication 'Annales de Cryptogamie period. There have been controversies about boundaries, fishing rights, navigation, rich mines and fertile lands. Demagogues and jingoes, on both sides of the border, have repeatedly appealed to national prejudice and aroused hostile emotions over conflicting interests. And yet today every ancient controversy has been settled in the arena of reason and not a sword has been drawn nor a gun fired.

There is a psychology of nations, as there is of individuals, and our leaders are stupid to ignore it. Nations which prepare to fight each other will eventually fight. The man or the nation who goes armed inevitably provokes the distrust of others. One's attitude is the prophecy of one's actions. The psychic suggestion of a gun is for him who carries it, the premise that a fight is possible, and to him for whom it is carried it is a dare and a warning to be on guard.

Appeal to the Best. This disarmament along the frontier was in itself an appeal to the peace-loving side of these American peoples. There is a war side to every man. The ancient instincts of self-defense and the struggle for existence developed through centuries of contest will live for many generations yet to come and under favorable conditions will flame into a fight. I am simply repeating the old truth that there are dual possibilities in men, and so in nations. There is kindness and cruelty, justice and injustice, love and hatred, peace and war. There is a best and there is a worst. As to which of these conflicting possibilities of human nature will find expression, depends upon which is appealed to. When our fathers broke down the middle wall of suspicion and left an unguarded line between them it was an appeal to the chivalry and the sportsmanlike spirit of the people. It was a best and was answered by the best in human nature.

It is significant, and at the same time, to the credit of human nature, that governments in order to ease their peoples in a war, have nearly always found it necessary to appeal to their nobility. They have called upon them to defend their lands and loved ones, and to fight for the honor and ideals of their country. The degrading part of it has been that they have been able at the same time to picture the enemy nation as seeking to destroy their sacred values. Thus have they aroused sufficient hatred for a fight, and it is in the fight itself that the best within us is aroused. I am convinced that if we are going to prepare for peace that we must appeal to that same chivalry to defend home and loved ones, honor and ideals. But we must show, as it can be clearly shown from history, that war is the destroyer of these priceless values and that they can only be preserved by peace. In such a cause we may see the courage of the nations to at last begin to tear down their forts and their tariff walls, and to destroy their war alliances and their war debts.

Exotic covering material in Paris gardens. A paper entitled 'Some New Species of Hypoxylon' will soon appear in Mycologia, the organ of the American Mycological Association published by the New York Botanical garden.

"Mycological studies are in progress in many parts of the United States, according to Dr. Miller. The east and middle west have been covered rather intensively, but no thorough study has as yet been made in the south due to lack of funds and lack of men in this field.

Dr. Miller is a collaborator for the United States department of agriculture in plant disease work in Georgia.

"The Xylariaceae family includes Xylaria, Hypoxylon, and other genera, fungi which are found all over the world, and many of which cause diseases of trees."

Plenty of Shoes in South, Says This Atlanta Man

Editor Constitution: I think Miss Perkins, before attempting to create a market for shoes in the south, should learn definitely what she is talking about. Should our only source of returning prosperity in the south be the putting of shoes on the south we are now in the midst of universal prosperity.

Association of Beef Cattlemen To Be Organized in Georgia

By HIRAM R. ROMANS
Editor of The Southern Cultivator.

A movement is being launched for the formation of a beef cattlemen's association in Georgia, being sponsored by leading cattlemen of the state and the state's foremost agricultural publication, The Southern Cultivator.

The idea of forming an association in Georgia, similar to that in Florida and several other states, was first mentioned at the fat stock show in Savannah this spring, and has been encouraged from cattlemen at the recent cattle show in Macon. The Southern Cultivator was requested by leaders in the industry to begin sponsoring the preliminary organization.

Governor Talmadge, who is taking great interest in advancing the beef cattle industry in the state, and Commissioner of Agriculture George C. Adams, have endorsed the movement and will give assistance in forming the association.

While the fine young cow is now practically obsolete in Georgia and herds of pure bred good grades are no longer a novelty, beef cattle production has not advanced in equal measure with the dairy industry, which has had the advantage of numerous associations and organizations of dairymen drawn together by common interests in the breeding and handling of some of the several breeds of the state.

As there is strength, power and influence in union, it is thought that in associating the producers and dealers of the several breeds of beef cattle into one organization progress in the industry will be accelerated by increasing good pasturing, securing laws and regulations which will betterment of live stock and the cattle industry, directing public opinion regarding home consumption of Georgia live stock and beef products, operating to the fullest extent possible all agencies working toward the control of contagious and infectious diseases and all other measures detrimental to the live stock industry, and to work for the establishment of up-to-date local slaughter houses where high-class Georgia-produced cattle may be processed and sent to home people, thus securing to the producers a fair price for their cattle.

The live-at-home movement, which has made such wonderful progress in the past two years, should not be confined to the farmer in urging him to produce all of his food and feed on his own land; it must also include the residents of towns and cities, who should encourage Georgia farmers to produce the food and feed for their own consumption, and to purchase the products of the farms about them.

Millions of dollars go out of Georgia every year to purchase beef and western beef that should be kept in the state, where the continued circulation of these millions would act to make better times for all.

The cattle show at Macon and Savannah this year proved beyond all doubt that as good beef cattle may be raised in Georgia as in any section of the country, but at present there are too few of these good beef cattle to supply the demand for high-grade beef. One of the objects of the association will be to start a supply by increasing the number of farmers who would gradually grow into the production of beef cattle.

Georgia is rich in beef cattle, has a desirable climate for cattle raising. There is scarcely a day in the year when live stock of all kinds may not range on pasture, and the climate is short and the "cold snaps" of the northern portion of the state are brief; snow is a novelty and expensive shelter is unnecessary. There are no blizzards like those in the west in which thousands of cattle perish from exposure to the biting cold. There is no necessity of shoveling snow, thawing out pumps, watering troughs and pipes in feeding lots, which increases the cost to those of the north who range in feeding and finishing cattle for the market.

The streams, lakes and fresh pools of Georgia provide excellent water, and there is scarcely a farm that is not adequately equipped with this natural advantage for success with cattle. The ancient contention that there is no good pasture in Georgia has been conclusively proven to be just an argument set up by those who do not know how and do not care to range their own cattle.

Good farmers have learned that there are a number of pasture grasses that thrive well in Georgia and make excellent pastures. Those good farmers who range their own cattle have a few fine cows to the dairymen who have large herds, and the beef cattlemen who range up into the hills and there is scarcely a grass that does best in their localities.

Those who are interested in the formation of the association will not argue the value of beef cattle production in the beef cattle industry, but they will urge and advise intelligent, progressive farmers to "grow" gradually into what will some time be one of the foremost farm activities of the state.

The off-repeated contention of southern farmers that there is no money to be made in raising beef cattle is another excuse offered by those who continue to sink deeper into the mire of debt by way of the all-cotton crop. The United States department of agriculture of the total cash received by farmers for crops in 1932 discloses that dairying was first with 24.5 per cent, followed by cotton with 10.4 per cent; beef cattle fourth with 9.8 per cent and cotton fourth with 8.4 per cent.

It is not desired to form an association composed of only one breed of the largest beef cattle producers of the state; they should take the lead, as a matter of course, but to be a success they should include the farmers who are just starting in beef cattle production. They will be the ones to profit most, as through the association they will benefit from the experience of older and larger producers who have pioneered in the industry and learned by actual practice the pitfalls to avoid and the best methods to follow.

The Southern Cultivator desires to hear at once from every beef cattle producer in the state, both large and small, who is interested in the formation of the proposed association. As soon as sufficient number have signed their desire to join the association a meeting will be called at some central point and steps taken to complete organization of the association. While it will be necessary to have a membership fee, no farmer who is interested in the welfare of his state and who desires to become a member, as that fee, if the association follows the example set by other similar organizations, will be very small.

Cincinnati Paper Praises Clark Howell's Service To the Democratic Party

A TRIBUTE TO CLARK HOWELL

(From the Cincinnati Enquirer)

The New York Enquirer, a metropolitan daily of very large circulation in New York city and vicinity, recently paid a high tribute to Editor Clark Howell in making him the subject of an outstanding article dealing with his ability as a public man, his standing as an editor, and his unbroken devotion to the democratic party and its principles. This sketch, illustrated with a splendid portrait of the chief of The Atlanta Constitution, grew out of Mr. Howell's friends and associates in the city of New York, who are his personal friends, and who are his personal friends, and who are his personal friends.

Mr. Howell's position in this connection, as the New York editor said, is that of a cabinet portfolio or other position of outstanding importance. As a matter of fact, one realizes after reading the Enquirer's sketch, it is a list of those who have been in the position of the chief of the democratic party of the state and of the nation as so assured and so sure that he knows his own mind to receive attention from an incoming democratic president when studying either cabinet possibilities or making a list of those who should be considered for high honors should be conferred. For courageous and consistent democracy, Clark Howell has no superior in Georgia, or the country.

Those who know Clark Howell well appreciate that this attitude on his part springs from his own conviction that it is unbecoming to force one's personality upon an incoming president with a view of securing either a cabinet portfolio or other position of outstanding importance. ## Constitution Editorials on Various Topics Praise in Letters From Readers

FARM COMMISSIONERS EXPRESS THANKS.

Editor Constitution: We, the southern commissioners of agriculture, this day assembled in Atlanta, Georgia, want to thank you very much for your splendid editorial in your valuable paper of today, entitled "Three-Fold Benefits."

For many years our organization has endeavored to have a law passed that cotton be sold at net weight, and that a good duty be placed on jute and other cotton substitutes, which would prove detrimental to the best interest of the cotton farmer.

If all our other papers will take the same interest in this matter as you have taken, it would go a long way toward crystallizing sentiment in Washington that would cause our congress to enact the necessary legislation.

With every good wish, we are, Very truly yours, HARRY WILSON, (La.) Chairman, J. R. P. (S. C.) J. C. HOLTON, (Miss.) EARL PAGE, (Ark.) SETH P. STOKES, (Ark.) J. R. P. (S. C.) Southern Commissioners of Agriculture, Atlanta, Ga., May 26, 1935.

INDONESIAN EDITORIAL ON CARE OF MENTALLY ILL.

Editor Constitution: I wish to express to you the thanks and appreciation of the board of control for the very fine editorial which appeared in last Sunday's Constitution on the question of mental health. With the allusion made to the Millersville state hospital.

The care and treatment of the mentally sick and the rehabilitation of mental cases is one of the state's gravest problems as it is with every state in the Union. Your help and co-operation in calling the attention of the public to the needs of the Millersville state hospital is greatly appreciated by every member of the board of control, as well as by the medical profession at large in the state.

It is very gratifying to Editor Howell's friends to see such recognition of his services to the state. It is gratifying to the friends of the state, as the Enquirer states, "probably no more in American public life is more straightforward than his." It is gratifying to the friends of the state, as the Enquirer states, "probably no more in American public life is more straightforward than his."

When he thinks a thing, or approves of a policy, there is no hesitancy or beating about the bush in the way he expresses his opinion. He is never hesitated to champion policies that he believes right or condemn conditions which he thought wrong. It is needless to tell you that he is a man of the highest character and of the highest integrity.

ROAD COMMISSIONERS PLEASED.

Editor Constitution: The editorial, "Road Work for Convicts," was very highly praised by the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia in session at that time in Albany.

The executive committee, meeting on the morning of the 25th, decided to write you a letter of thanks for this article, which shows a careful consideration of the problems involved. We feel that these sentiments, coming from the county commissioners, will prove beneficial to county work.

FRED HOUSER, Secretary-Treasurer Association of County Commissioners of Georgia, Atlanta, Ga., May 25, 1935.

EDITORIALS.

Editor Constitution: I want to congratulate you on your editorial in today's Constitution, "Work Not Wanted."

Whenever I want to express myself on any important subject, if I can find an editorial in The Constitution on the subject, I am in position to intelligently express my sentiments.

It is worth 10 times the subscription to The Constitution to read your editorials, which I think are in line with what the majority of us Georgia people think about an important question.

W. M. WALLACE, Atlanta, Ga., May 24, 1935.

PRaises FAIRNESS OF CONSTITUTION.

Editor Constitution: Your editorial, "Doctor Luther's Hard Task," deserves, and will receive, the commendation of every true and right-thinking American citizen.

There are no better citizens in any country than our "American Jews," and it would be impossible to find a more patriotic citizen in the United States than a Jew—the citizen of any country—would commit any act to bring reproach upon the Jewish people among whom they live.

I am a Protestant with a sole desire to be fair and just to those who are of other faiths in this country. I have been a reader of The Constitution for 25 years and have yet to see an unjust editorial.

Bainbridge, Ga., May 24, 1935.

COMMENDS INTEREST IN WOMEN'S WORK.

Editor Constitution: The tribute you paid to the work of the Women's Democratic Club, through the editorial columns of your splendid paper last Sunday was one of the best things I have seen in the paper.

We value Mrs. Rollison and her work in this section, and as a friend and co-worker I want to tell her we appreciate your recognition of her work.

For many years The Constitution has been generous and of inestimable value in the various state activities of the women's organizations. It is fine that we also have your commendation in the field of politics.

The present situation is a call for the best of our people. We trust that the women will measure up to their full responsibilities. Under such leadership as Mrs. Rollison's, much good will be accomplished.

EDITH L. DIMMOCK, Parliamentarian, Waycross Women's Club, Waycross, Ga., May 26, 1935.

APPEALS REPLY TO MISS PERKINS' SPEECH.

Editor Constitution: I heartily agree with your editorial reply to Miss Perkins' speech in the south. Every citizen in the south should be made to believe that the south is not a land of backwardness and that the south is a land of progress and of the future.

The Happenings of The Church World

BY HERMAN L. TURNER.

Pastor, Covenant Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.

A nation-wide poll of 65 colleges and universities in 27 states has recently been conducted by the Intercollegiate Disarmament Council and the National Student Federation of America. The students being requested to vote whether or not they would participate in a future war. Of 21,725 students, almost 59 per cent took a strict pacifist stand; of the remaining students, 221 said they would bear arms only in case of an actual invasion of this country, while 6,089 expressed themselves as opposed to participate in a war of any character involving the United States.

The Bible or some part of it has appeared in 936 languages and dialects according to a statement just issued by the American Bible Society. The Bible has been translated into 221 languages and dialects, and the American Bible Society, the British and Foreign Bible Society, the National Bible Society of Scotland, as well as some missionary organizations and others.

Not Jews alone, but all religions, join in protesting the terrorist campaign of the German national socialists against the Jews. From the Catholic League in Poland to the protest in "In accordance with our general point of view and the tradition of our party, we reject all anti-Semitic efforts and reforms as discussed, the fourth world should constitute reform in baling through the medium of high density compression."

The cotton growers will never receive the full economies to which they are justly entitled as to rate regulations and the net weight contract under present conditions. Professor Edward Spranger, a favorite teacher as well as a noted philosopher, recently resigned his professorship as a protest against the domination of the universities by unruly students. The Christian Advocate.

For the first time in many years Turkish men and women have been openly confessing Jesus to their scandalized neighbors. They have been hailed before minor government officials and severely dealt with. These officials have been rebuked for their failure to respect the liberty of conscience which the laws of the republic guarantee to every citizen. Though George Washington was a Christian, the American Bible Society gives special thanks to the Turkish Christians for their support of the new Turkish Republic.

A proposal to ask the churches of America to withdraw their financial support from the navy and navy as an expression of the church's abhorrence of war was under study a few days ago by the trustees of the World Alliance for International Friendship, meeting at Atlantic City. Rev. Peter Ainslie, of Baltimore, and Rabbi Louis J. Albert, of New York, were the speakers. Bishop James Cannon Jr. and Charles P. Taft II, son of the late president, led the opposition.

The 108th annual meeting of the American Truck Society was recently held in New York City. It was reported that the society had 1,000 members in 1934, published and distributed Christian literature in 181 languages. Up to the present time, 849,000 pieces of Christian literature have been distributed by the society. Of this literature, about 6,800,000 pages were given away gratuitously. In 1932, the society printed and distributed 5,000,000 pieces of literature in 40 languages. Two-thirds of this number were supplied free to meet the needs of groups that have suffered severe financial losses.

"Hard Times for Children" is the title of the following editorial in the Presbyterian Advance of Nashville, Tenn.: "It may be said that the treatment of their children is a fair test of the civilization of a people. If that be true, our times would be hard indeed. Reports are coming in from the effects of the depression period upon child welfare are to be trusted. The New York Times recently reported that the number of children in the United States who are in the care of one southern state and complete collapse of its educational system seems possible. According to the same source, the number of children in the care of one southern state is approaching a crisis in many other states is indicated, with thousands of schools closed or operating only part time, leaving thousands of school-age children without educational facilities. The children of a nation constitute its most valuable asset. While the nation is so poor, it is not surprising that the production of goods and material of one kind and another, it would be well to give that attention to child welfare which is the duty of every citizen. It is not enough that thousands of children are being denied the advantages of school. We must have a plan for the exploitation of children. It was reported recently from Pennsylvania that several hundred boys and girls had walked out of the state in search of work. A large percentage of these were under 16 years of age. Some of them had been earning as little as 30 cents a week. Pennsylvania may be one of the worst, but it is far from being the only offender in such things. A recent speaker was right in saying that a nation which continues to permit child labor is a nation in moral bankruptcy. It may be said with emphasis that the nation which permits the extensive exploitation of its children is inviting disaster. It is the time when there is least excuse for such exploitation and when it is fraught with the greatest danger. When we are so poor, we should remember that the most valuable of our children."

The belief will prevail that Georgia is suffering from picaresque politics. The people must remedy this wrong. The peanut politicians will not change the law, because they are in it; it is the citadel of their power. The constitution of Georgia must be changed so as to provide for a real election of representatives to the legislature. This was disclosed by the United States census in 1930, though it was already known to many businessmen outside as well as in the state. In the ten years from 1920 to 1930 statistics show that the number of people moving out of the state exceeded the number moving in by 275,000. Will the editor of the Vineyarder kindly explain?

Until a better explanation is given, the number of people represented by each representative varies from 2,744 to over 20,000. Echols county has 2,744 people; Dawson 3,502; DeKalb 4,180; Newton 4,348; Charlton 4,381; Glascock 4,388 and Lumpkin 4,927. Each of these miniature states has as much voting power as the great states of Ohio (10,950), Iowa (10,739), Cherokee (20,003), Screven (20,003), Jefferson (20,712) or Wilkes (20,808). By addition it appears that the eight counties have an aggregate population of only 32,614 as much voting power as the eight largest counties of the state, which have a population of 159,874.

None of the evils of the election law has large city within its borders. You could wipe Atlanta, Savannah, Augusta, Macon, Columbus and Rome off the legislative map and still the balance of inequality in representation would remain.

The constitution of the United States provides that: "Representatives shall be chosen by the people of each state according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each state, excluding Indians not taxed." After each decennial census congress determines the number to which each state is entitled. Owing to failure to increase in population, Georgia since 1911 has lost two congressmen. In 1911 we had 12 members of congress but now have only ten.

"Joker" in the Constitution.

The constitution of the United States provides for representation in the lower house in proportion to population. Why does the constitution of Georgia arbitrarily establish numerous congressional districts of unequal population?

This was the big "joker" in the constitution of 1877 and is still the great bugaboo of the people here. No law or constitutional amendment can be passed without

WORTH COUNTY SHERIFF WINS CASE WHICH WON ANNUAL AWARD FOR POLICE WORK

Thousands To Take Part in Colorful Celebration of Georgia Bicentennial in City Stadium.

MACON, Ga., May 27.—(P)—Pacantry that runs the scale of Georgia's history from Indian savagery to days of motor cars and airplanes will be presented here in bicentennial celebration Monday night.

About a thousand people will play the roles that tell the story of the south's Empire state from the wilderness. Preceding the pageant, a parade will wind through the city Monday afternoon as a harbinger of what is to be seen in the municipal stadium after nightfall.

In the line of march will be early Spaniards in glittering armor, soldiers of the Revolution and the War of 1812. Confederate veterans, soldiers of the World War and two floats representing Georgia's famous peaches and the state seal.

The pageant itself turns the pages of history back to the green corn dance of the Creek Indians long before even the Spaniards explored Georgia. The scene is laid in a village of wigwags and bowmen, with men paying homage to the sun.

Next comes the Spaniard, DeSoto, and his soldiers in quest of gold and adventure. Catholic priests go with and perform the first Christian baptism in the new world.

The third act portrays a historical scene, the coming of the Indians before General James Edward Oglethorpe landed on Yamacraw bluff. The English secured the friendship of the Creek Indians who drove out the Apalachees, tribe, allies of the Spaniards, and paved the way for English colonization.

Then comes Oglethorpe and his settlers to live on the banks of the Savannah by Tomochichi, the Creek chief, and a treaty of lasting friendship is made. The colony of Englishmen, Scotchmen, Jews, Salzburgers and Moravians get a foothold in the wilderness and Charles Wesley leads them in singing one of his hymns.

The Spaniards march northward from Florida, bent on seizing Georgia and the Carolinas. But Oglethorpe's men meet them at Bloody Marsh and win the battle that saved the English-American continent for the English-speaking race.

Old Savannah receives the news that the American colonies have declared their independence. Indians and soldiers led by Archibald Bulloch shout merrily as King George III is buried in effigy.

The year 1814 rolls around and finds Andrew Jackson and Benjamin Hawkins at old Fort Hawkins where the city of Macon had its beginning. Jackson has just whipped the Indians and Hawkins helps him in drawing a satisfactory treaty with subdued chiefs of the tribe. Having done that, "Old Hickory" casts aside thoughts of peace for the moment and plays with little Martha Winship Cook, first white child born in Macon.

Then the Frenchman, Lafayette, comes to Macon for a visit in 1825 and the town gave him a reception that gave a new chapter to the annals of southern hospitality.

The next thirty years are told with the founding and growth of Mercer University—its establishment at Penfield and removal to Macon in 1870.

The year 1861 comes and Macon celebrates the 75th anniversary of its founding with a diamond jubilee. Among other things, the merry-makers do the Merry Widow waltz at the grand ball.

The last scene is a tableau of the World War. Then the spotlight swings around to a maiden representing Virgin Georgia, who is surrounded by her builders, her soldiers, her statesmen, her teachers. Hidden trumpets blow a final fanfare.

Mercer University Pays Tribute to Founder At Penfield, Where Institution First Began

PENFIELD, Ga., May 27.—(P)—Students, alumni and officials of Mercer University came here today to pay tribute to Jesse Mercer, the founder, on the site where the college came into existence 100 years ago.

The program here marked the beginning of a four-day celebration of Mercer University's 100th anniversary in connection with the centennial commencement exercises.

Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the University of Georgia, was one of the principal speakers on the Penfield program. It was arranged he was to speak from the old chapel of the university, which is now used by the Penfield Baptist church. The University is now located at Macon.

"One hundred years ago Mercer Institute came into being," said Dr. Sanford in his address, "largely because a changed view was taking place in education. Creative education demanded that schools be brought into harmony with community life. That meant manual or vocational training should hold a prominent place in the school. This form of education was not a subsidiary place in the schools. It failed in 1835 because the passage of the Merrill act of 1862. We are now advocating this form of education as if it were a new thought. It is far in advance of conditions and of the educational ideals of that generation."

Dr. Sanford also pointed out that the state and nation was faced with economic conditions much the same as those existing in 1833.

"There is the consolation," he asserted, "that this is not the first time that educational institutions had to balance the budget and face drastic measures. There is the consolation also the happy thought that immediately following every financial depression there has been a great educational revival and an expansion of educational opportunities and facilities. No matter how great the depression may be, we must not discard the instruments of growth and hope."

13 HONORARY DEGREES TO BE AWARDED TUESDAY
MACON, Ga., May 27.—(P)—Honorary degrees will be awarded 13 well-known southerners here Tuesday morning at a part of the centennial celebration of Mercer University's centennial commencement. Dr. Spright Dowell, president of the institution, said here today.

The list includes George M. Sparks, director of the evening school of commerce of Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta, doctorate of laws.

RAISES HOPE HIGH FOR SOUTH GEORGIA

If Planters Can Stop Boll Weevil, Bountiful Crop of Fleecy Staple Is Foreseen.

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 27.—(P)—Ideal "cotton weather"—warm and moderately dry—prevails in south Georgia and cotton plants have grown rapidly toward maturity within a fortnight.

"Squares," or embryonic bolls, are forming fast and, it's just a matter of time before the farmer lights the boll weevil beacon.

Growers in this section are depending on a mixture of molasses and water flavored with a dash of kerosene to combat the pest. A gallon of water, a gallon of molasses and a pound of kerosene will make enough of the mixture for about an acre.

Workers make mops of sticks and rags and dab the squares with the mixture. The work can be done as fast as a man can walk.

If the weevils can be stopped before they puncture the squares, the crop gives promise of bountiful yield. It is still counted upon as the cash crop in south Georgia.

Lowndes county farmers fondly recall days when Valdosta was a major inland market for sea island cotton, which was known to bring 40 cents a pound or more. The boll weevil stopped production of sea island cotton, however, and little is grown now. A short staple has replaced it.

Case Which Won Annual Award For Sheriff of Worth County

By J. N. SUMNER, Sheriff of Worth County.

During the early part of the nineties, about 1890, there lived in the upper part of Worth county two negro men who were brothers, Cliff and Nim Kerce. About the time this narrative begins, these two brothers were indicted and placed on trial before the courts of Georgia, charged with the murder of a negro, Tom Watts. At the trial, Nim Kerce was convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for life, and after various legal skirmishes the state could not make out a case against Cliff Kerce, and the charge against him was not pressed.

Nim Kerce went to the penitentiary, leaving his family, which consisted of one son, Seaborn Kerce, in the care of Cliff Kerce, his brother. Cliff Kerce remained in Worth county, establishing his home in the northwest portion of the county, about 17 miles north of Sylvester, and by careful saving and good management of his earnings accumulated an estate of some $40,000 or more, consisting of about $20,000 in government bonds and about 600 acres of land.

Nim Kerce served approximately 10 years in the penitentiary and was released in 1900. He immediately went to Jacksonville, Fla., about 1903 and has lived there since that time. Seaborn Kerce, the son of Nim Kerce, was a nephew of Cliff Kerce, and he remained with Cliff Kerce and Betty Kerce, the latter being the wife of Cliff Kerce, until he attained his majority, when he left and took up his residence with his father, Nim Kerce, of Jacksonville.

It should be borne in mind that these preliminary facts above set out, which were given during my tenure as an officer of the county, and if I knew of them at the time they occurred they passed from my mind long ago.

Beautiful Home.
The home where Cliff Kerce resided was a splendid residence, well furnished and well kept, and at all times ready to receive guests. It was owned by no small means. Cliff and his wife were respected citizens of the county, far above the average of their race.

COMMERCIAL SENIORS TO GRADUATE MAY 29

Approximately 270 seniors will receive their diplomas at the commencement exercises Monday night, May 29, at the city auditorium. The student speakers will be Frances Skundale and Sam Hinton, who were chosen for their excellent scholastic records.

Allen Byrd, who will graduate next February, and Sara Greer, who will graduate this year, have been admitted to membership in the Frank L. Stanton chapter of the International Quill and Scroll honorary society for high school journalists. These two are in addition to the 15 who were admitted recently. Allen has done excellent work on the school paper this year and will succeed Ann Glassman as one of the co-editors of the paper next year. Sara has served during the entire year as one of the exchange editors.

Senior class day was held Wednesday. This was the last time all the seniors were together in the school building. Each class took part in the program, and the class history, prophecy and poem were read.

The Proctor luncheon was held May 24 in the school cafeteria. Moving, brook, cafeteria supervisor, and Hazel Morgan, girl president of student government, were in charge of the affair. The new school officers, Maude Hutchison and Johnny Webb, were introduced.

Four hundred and twenty-six Commercial girls received certificates at the Red Cross graduation Thursday night at the Baptist tabernacle.

Senior award day took place Thursday, May 25, at which time the seniors received letters and the underclassmen received honorable mention for meritorious work during the year. The winning classes in the contest for the highest averages in the Brierley spelling test were announced at that time also. The winners were the 10th and 11th grades.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL
GIVES 126 DIPLOMAS

Our commencement was held at the Wesley Memorial church Friday night. One hundred and twenty-six diplomas were issued. These were for graduates in the commercial, trade, and beauty parlor and millinery departments. Our state governor, Eugene Talmadge, gave a splendid address and Dr. Noah W. Baird delivered the diplomas.

Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, a member of the board of education, visited our school Wednesday and spoke interestingly to our student body.

Miss Nena Dwyer, a member of the Board of Education, visited our school Wednesday and spoke interestingly to our student body.

The sponsor for Miss Titman's group is Miss Casey Singleton, chairman of the educational committee of the Board of Education.

Ex-Highland pupils who read to-day letter placed send "good news" items to Miss Spier by postcard or school child messenger.

Nine children in Miss Pruett's low 6 class made the highest average in spelling test. Most of the children in our class are eligible for reading buttons for having read 10 or more books at home during the semester.

Low 4 boys were 100 per cent in attendance this week. We have been reading numbers of library books at home. The children who have read 10 or more books at home since February are: Patricia Tansuhen, Patsy Bledsoe, Laura Hope Asher, Emily Rich, Doris Williams, Martha Dickson, Arlene Spindell, Doris Belle Williams, Sadie Morris, Culbert Hill, Harold Revere, Warren Moore, Stuart Bolen, Joe McDonald, Frank Loner, Marvin Burrell, Jimmy Seegers, James Odum, Thomas Johnson, Bobby Smith, and Harold Berry.

Dr. Marion Hull visited us Thursday and talked to high 4.2. Our regular sponsor is out of town for the rest of the year. Harriet Blumberg from the penmanship contest, and Madeline Saville improved most.

Mr. Enlow came out Monday and made a picture of Piedmont Park in Miss McWhorter's room. We selected Coley Kellam and Allan McDonough to be in the picture. Low 2 has written some good stories about the things they made for the park.

Miss Corley's class has had many children to make a perfect score in the Atlanta minimal spelling test for high 2. Only eight children failed to make a perfect score.

Low 1 had a delightful letter recently from their sponsor, Mr. Lucien Harris Jr. in answer to their letters to him. The aquarium now has some nice tadpoles which Virginia Hancock brought us, and some frogs brought by Jackie Johnson's brother.

The second grade are finishing their book about cave men.

The third grade has three pupils to receive a Sutton button so far. We hope none of these will be absent before the end of school.

The fourth grade enjoyed making May baskets last week.

The sixth grade had such an interesting letter from their author friend, Mr. John Bennett, of Charleston, W. Va. He sent him a book that we made about "Master Skylark" for his birthday and he was so pleased with it.

INMAN CHILDREN IN CHORUS SING
AT DANCE DRAMA

The children of S. M. Inman school are looking forward to vacation. Many of them are going to take trips.

High 1 visited Frances K.'s fish pond and had a big time.

High 2 boys and girls are making a book of bugs and insects.

High 5-1 are very proud of Camille Litton and Joyce Hendrix, who have improved the most in penmanship this year.

Sixth grade chorus sang Friday at the bi-centennial dance drama. They enjoy taking part in it.

EDITORS FOR PAPER

The new staff of Tech High's weekly publication, The Rainbow, has been definitely decided upon for the coming year of 1933-34. The students who competed for the various positions on the staff were compelled to take a competitive examination. This examination was given yearly by C. T. Sutherland, who is head of the journalism department, and also an advisor for The Rainbow staff. Two of the qualified pupils at the examination are the study of journalism and printing.

Verner Owens, who for the past year has been a member of the journalism staff, has been appointed editor, and was elected editor-in-chief for next year. William Hall, who has studied journalism, retained his same position of last year of managing editor.

A new position which has recently been created was filled by Willis A. Sutton Jr. who was appointed news editor. Sutton has also been appointed editor of the school page of the Atlanta Journal for the coming year.

For the past year Tech High has published the best and most outstanding Rainbow since the beginning of this publication, and we hope to be able to do so this year.

The final edition of The Rainbow for this year was published on Friday, May 26, by the newly elected staff.

O'KEEFE HAS ANNUAL ACTIVITY BANQUET

The seventh annual O'Keefe activity banquet was held Tuesday, May 23, at the Davidson-Paxon tea room. The theme of the program was architecture, and several students delivered talks on the theme. Dan Eargact acted as toastmaster. At the completion of the program letters were awarded to those deserving them.

The graduation of 100 O'Keefe students will take place at the O'Keefe auditorium on June 1. Frank Fink will deliver the diplomas to the graduates and Mr. Hunter will deliver the awards. Music will be furnished by the O'Keefe orchestra. Immediately following the graduation a party will be given to the graduates by the P. A. staff.

ATTENDANCE PARTY FOR COUCH PUPILS
TO BE WEDNESDAY

The principal was in her office alone the other day, busy with a report, when a strange gentleman entered and asked to see Mary Jones (let us call her). "Mary is in the third grade," said the principal. "I will send for her, but if you must stay in here while you wait," "I am her father," explained the man. "No matter," replied the principal. "As I never let strangers come to talk to the children unless I am present," "Wouldn't be much chance of kidnapping a child here," remarked the gentleman mischievously. "Not unless the kidnaper took me, too," was the quick rejoinder.

This is the big week of the year, when the promotion exercises, state-wide and district-wide, are held in the flower-decked auditorium, and all will be given report cards, telling the story of our scholarship.

The grand day of the feast will be Wednesday, when we stage the annual attendance party. From kindergarten to high 4, an invitation to this party is as much coveted as a summons to a royal presentation. The party guests wear crowns bearing the grade name, and Sutton buttons, the insignia of perfect attendance for the entire school year.

Every grade has a program for the entertainment of the mammoth crowd. At the close of the exercises the children are given a delicious lunch and a treat of ice cream.

This year 12 of the faculty have a perfect attendance record.

HOME PARK CLASS BUILDS A MODEL OF BULLOCK HALL

The pupils of Home Park enjoyed a holiday on Friday for perfect teeth. They have worked hard to complete this work before school closed.

High kindergarten children are busy making clothes for Raggedy Ann to take on her vacation.

Harold Hardy, of High 1, was very proud to receive a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt in reply to his letter telling her of the model of Bulloch Hall which his class had built. The class sent her a picture of the house.

Beauchamp has the honor of winning the only Sutton button in High 1 this year. The class has suffered from measles, chicken pox and scarlet fever, but the class was able to overcome all difficulties.

High 2 have several coons which have come out.

High 4 is proud of J. C. Green, who won a Sutton button for perfect attendance.

Low 6 is proud of Polly Boone, Mina Baxter, Anita Maser and James Stiles, who have not been absent or tardy since September.

Rosalyn Farmer and Bobbie Booth, of High 6-1, are proud of their perfect attendance record for the year.

Helen Hopkins, president, and Charles Parks, vice president, of High 6-2, presented Mr. Sutton with a book of letters. These letters had been received by the class from governors, senators and from the president of the United States. These letters were answers to those sent by the class, telling about the bi-centennial celebration in Georgia.

Superintendent's Message

My Dear Boys and Girls:

I suppose this is the last letter I shall write during the present school year as you will not be in your rooms Monday week to receive my message. Thank you for the many kindnesses shown, for your happy faces, your smiling countenances, and your sincere true hearts. Summer is here—it is the growing season for plants, for animals, for boys and for girls, but we only grow as we meet our environment and adjust ourselves to it, and as we take the proper foods into our bodies, exercise these bodies correctly, rest a sufficient amount of time, and sleep the correct number of hours. You are thinking of the long happy vacation days, and I am so glad for you to have them. I am thinking of how lonesome the school houses will be and of how the halls will wonder what has become of all the children, and the walls of the rooms will look down on the bare and empty chairs, tables and desks, and say: "Where have all the young people gone?" I am thinking of how these busy high schools, where thousands of young men and young women have gone in and out, will be closed for a long time. What a tremendous waste of our people's money to close our schools for three months in the year. I wish they could be opened as places where you could put on plays, write stories, print papers, where boys could work in the shops, and girls do the work they enjoy with a needle and with sewing machines, but it seems that we cannot do all these things now so you must be happy and busy and active, always alert to look after your health, improve yourselves by reading and come back to us in September strengthened in body and mind and ready for another school year.

Always Your Friend,
WILLIS A. SUTTON,
Superintendent of Schools.

TEACHER HONORS
KEY SIXTH GRADE
AT WIENER BROS

Our teachers are congratulating the sixth grade children that they are about ready to graduate, but we are all about over the thought of leaving our dear old Key school.

High 6-2 enjoyed a winner award given by their teacher, Miss Grant, last Thursday. They had a wonderful time doing stunts in which most of the class took part. Goldie Gocher and Marion Cerniglia won prizes for the best stunts.

Low 5 children have been working hard on their spelling. Joe Sharr is the best speller in the class. He has had perfect papers on all tests given this quarter.

Sara McClam and Mary Belle Stone are leading the girls on the spelling and arithmetic charts. Mrs. Spence is leading the boys in spelling and James Lindsey is ahead in arithmetic.

The children of Low 2 are making a book of poems. The girls had the higher average this week in the spelling contest.

Low 1 won the attendance prize at last P-T-A meeting. The class is now having a reading contest.

LUNCHEON SERVED
SEVEN VISITORS
AT CAPITOL VIEW

The pupils of Capitol View school were delighted to have Miss Cox, Miss Rose and Miss Knight from the Carnegie library, and Mrs. Albright, Mrs. Spence, Betty Weekly and Marshall Powell from S. M. Inman visit the school. There was a luncheon given in their honor.

High 1 gave a play for Miss Cox, their sponsor, and the visitors.

Low 1 are practicing on their writing and they have many good papers.

Low and high kindergarten are going to give a party Wednesday for the new kindergarten coming next year.

High 2 are finishing up their Indian rugs and costumes. They were glad to send some pupils to the bi-centennial party.

Bright colored paper parrots carried P-T-A. invitations for grand mother's day into the homes of low 2 and low 3 pupils.

In high 3, Martha Drake's writing was the best, and Martha Belle Isle showed the most improvement.

Low 4 are studying birds and have made several pretty drawings.

High 5 have been drawing flowers from the school garden.

High 5 took a pioneer walk last week. They found a nice camping place by a cool stream.

PRESENT PROGRAM
BEFORE PARENTS

The first grade children have made a scene of Uncle Remus on the sand table. This grade also had a play for their parents Thursday morning.

On the program was a play in which the Georgia vegetables were stressed.

The second grade children are very much interested in designing. They are working hard to see who can make the best designs.

The third grade children who went to see the Georgia bi-centennial pageant enjoyed seeing their sisters and brothers who took part in it.

This week the fourth grades are working and planning for their summer activities.

The Low 5 grades have finished their Pilgrim panel. They get much pleasure out of doing this work.

Helen Hopkins, president, and Charles Parks, vice president, of High 6-2, presented Mr. Sutton with a book of letters. These letters had been received by the class from governors, senators and from the president of the United States. These letters were answers to those sent by the class, telling about the bi-centennial celebration in Georgia.

We all enjoyed having Mrs. George Knott present us with a picture of Sidney Lanier. She also made a very nice talk, which we all enjoyed very much.

BOISFUEUILLET JONES,
EditorBASS STUDENTS PLAN PLAY DAY ON MAY 31

The students of Bass will assemble at Piedmont park instead of Bass for the second annual play day on May 31 at 9 a. m. The day will be divided into periods at which time the students will participate in various activities, which will be arranged by Miss Helen Clapp and W. O. Moody, physical education director.

The cafeteria will be arranged at the park as well as the clinic. Parents are invited to be present. The activities will be arranged so that every student will participate in at least one event. Some of the things arranged are volleyball, baseball, kickball, swimming, track, golf and tennis. It is expected that the day will be one of the most outstanding of the year.

The graduation exercises will be held on June 1 at 4 o'clock. The program will be centered around the 200th birthday of Georgia. Jean Fambrough, president of the ninth grade, will preside. Songs written by Georgia composers will be rendered. The mandolin club and the orchestra will furnish music.

One of the highlights of the program will be a display of 75 feet of mural paintings illustrating scenes in Georgia history. These will be explained by seventh grade students who are taking part in the mural paintings. This work is under the direction of J. L. Jackson, a teacher in the art department.

Approximately 300 students will receive school letters for having made the required number of points to qualify. The Holmes citizenship cup will be awarded to the student making the most points. Two hundred and fifty diplomas will be awarded to the students by S. Nolan.

The poems of the students for all other classes except the graduating will be held Friday, June 2. Promotion cards will be awarded.

"Adventures in Verse," an original poetry book, was printed recently. It contains about 64 pages of poetry contributed by the students.

DRUID HILLS SCHOOL HAS SENIOR BANQUET

The annual senior banquet was held at the East Lake Country Club Friday night, May 26. Charles Paine was toastmaster. The speakers were Jim Brittain, W. E. Barber, Allen Stephens, Lester Geiger, Elizabeth Sanderson, Chris Tuntus, Evelyn Green, George Gibson, Jacques Oliver and Josephine Skinner were the speakers. The senior dance was held at the club after the banquet, from 9 until 1.

A meeting of the Journalism Club will be held Monday night to elect officers. An editor will also be chosen for next year's paper.

Tuesday, May 30, will be senior class day. It will be in the high school auditorium, followed by the class picnic at the Venetian Club.

Dr. Wallace Rogers will preach the baccalaureate sermon for the Druid Hills High seniors Sunday, May 28, in the Glenn Memorial church.

The Haddock Literary Society of Druid Hills High gave a dinner-dance at the Ansley Hotel rathskeller Saturday night, May 27.

Textile Head Named
To Succeed Petrea

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 27.—(AP) H. H. Iler, of Greenville, S. C., today was elected president of the Southern Textile Association to succeed F. K. Petrea, of Columbus, Ga., selection of next year's meeting place was deferred.

Other officers elected included C. W. Batson, of Lynchburg, Va., vice president, and Walter Dillard Jr., of Augusta, Ga., and D. F. Short, of Lynchburg, Va., members of the board of directors.

W. S. Lee, Charlotte power executive, in an address at the closing session predicted that "competition in industry will be more vigorous during the next 10 years than at any former time in American industrial history."

Loan Action Argued Before High Court

The supreme court, with three superior court justices filling out the court for three justices who had disqualified themselves, Saturday heard arguments on an appeal for a denied injunction sought by the Atlanta Distributor Terminals, Inc., against the Fulton board of county commissioners, seeking to halt a county loan of $1,000,000.

Attorneys for the company charged that the loan is illegal while attorneys for the county argued that it is in compliance with the law.

Judge John B. Hutcheson of the Stone Mountain circuit, Judge J. H. Hawkins of the Marietta circuit and Judge C. W. Worrell of the Outhbert circuit, sat on the court in place of Justices Atkinson, Hill and Gilbert, who disqualified themselves because of relationship to parties interested in the action.

The case was taken to the high court after Judge E. E. Pomeroy in Fulton superior court denied the application for the injunction.

C. L. DANFORTH JOINS
C. OF C. STAFF HERE

C. L. Danforth, widely known local business man, has joined the staff of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce as membership secretary, according to an announcement by the organization of officials Saturday.

Since his arrival in Atlanta in 1918, Mr. Danforth has served as an executive for several of the largest outside agencies in the city, his last connection being the post of field representative and agency organizer for a large casualty insurance company.

Mr. Danforth is married and the father of two children. He is a member of Piedmont Lodge No. 447, A. & F. M., and is a member of Holy Trinity Episcopal church.

Executive board of the Bass Junior High P-T-A. meets Monday morning, May 29, at 10 o'clock, at the school. Newly elected officers are also required to attend which is the last for the year.

Lakewood pre-school clinic meets Friday, June 2, in the clinic room of the school at 3 o'clock. Mrs. T. E. Jordan will be in charge.

Davis Street.

Davis Street P-T-A. meeting for May honors the grandmothers. The meeting opened with a P-T-A. song, "The End of the Year." The children entertained the association with singing and dancing. Miss Chapman, principal, gave each child whose grandmother was present a box of candy to present to his grandmother. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Liberty Gun.

Liberty Gun P-T-A. met Monday with a large percentage of attendance. Mrs. J. E. Eberhart, retiring president, was presented with a beautiful table lamp in appreciation of her service. Officers for 1933-1934 are Mrs. Ida Hardean, president; Mrs. Paul Peek, vice president; Mrs. E. O. Cunnard, secretary; Miss Kate Fufco, corresponding secretary; Miss Faye Gorman, treasurer.

DOCTOR IS HONORED FOR BEAUTY EFFORTS

MORRILTON, Ark., May 27.—(AP) National recognition has come to a mountain physician here for 25 years of effort in preserving a natural scenic beauty spot for Arkansas.

For his work in the establishment and preservation of Petit Jean park near here, Dr. Thomas W. Hardison, called "The Sky Doctor" by those who live in the mountain community where he lives, has been awarded the bronze Pugsley medal by the American Science and Health Preservation Society of New York.

The award was made this week at the national conference on state parks at Bear Mountain, N. Y.

Dr. Hardison came to the Petit Jean section 27 years ago as a physician for a Fort Smith lumber company. In traveling over the mountainous area, he was attracted by the scenic beauty of the section and conceived the idea of preserving it as a natural beauty spot.

FLA. HOUSE REFUSES 'SWEAT BOX' NDEMNITY

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 27.—(AP)—Payment of $5,000 to Mrs. Julia Mailford, of New Jersey, to compensate her for the death of her son, Arthur, in a "sweat box" at a road prison camp near Jacksonville in 1931, was refused by the Florida house last night.

Attempts to amend the bill to make the payment of $1,000 failed. The measure originally called for $50,000.

P-T-A NEWS

Fourth District P-T-A. Reorganizes
And Names Mrs. Harrison President

By MRS. R. H. HANKINSON, President of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Fourth district of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers met for reorganization and election of officers last Friday at Manchester, with Mrs. Roy McLarty and the local parent-teacher unit serving as hostesses. Mrs. W. F. Harrison, of West Point, was elected president, and the retiring president, Mrs. John J. Scott, became first vice president. Miss Bertha Hyman, of West Point, became treasurer.

Visiting members of the state and district boards included Mrs. Cooper Campbell, Mrs. Frank Davis, Mrs. B. E. Phillips and Mrs. G. W. of Columbus, and Dr. and Mrs. Singleton, of Atlanta.

Business of importance included plans for the extension of the organization to the unorganized rural sections, as the first step in furthering the education program now in process of construction of the G. E. A. and P-T-A.

A second plan, unique in district thought in Georgia, was the arrangement to send to the Parent-Teacher Institute to be held at Athens, Ga., July 14 and 15, one automobile from each of the counties of the district at the expense of the district treasury.

An address by Dr. Gordon Singleton on "Modern Trends in Education" was the feature of the afternoon session.

The date for the first South Georgia Institute, to be held at South Georgia Teachers' College, at Statesboro, has been set for July 3 and 4.

The two summer institutes, instead of one at heretofore, are set up in the hope of carrying these Parent-Teacher programs closed to the parents who find it difficult to be absent from home even for a short period of time.

The program of both institutes will follow closely the work to be carried on throughout the state during the coming year.

A recent meeting of Slaton P-T-A. Atlanta, honoring the fathers was held at the Baptist church, under the direction of Mrs. Cox, the retiring president. Among visiting guests were Mrs. Byron Matthews and Mrs. J. Bonar White, of Atlanta. The evening session was given by Mrs. E. L. Quillian, of Atlanta, assisted in receiving the members of the class and other guests of the evening.

Fifth District Chairman Urges Reading For Mothers, Children During Summer

Mrs. R. H. Lummus, fifth district P-T-A. chairman for children's reading, writes in the following letter on the importance of summer reading:

Congratulations to those mothers at Clarkson school who along with a large enrollment of children registered in summer reading club and received certificates from state circulating library at camp. Those mothers who are many miles away from library facilities surely felt the responsibility for stimulating an interest in good reading among their children and that the best means of accomplishing this was to enroll in the club and read with them. They have set forth a new standard of achievement in parent-teacher work. Let's follow mothers of the fifth district. We adults can keep learning as long as we live whether our reading is along the line of child training or whatever our interests may be.

Thousands of children in district will be registered in a few weeks in summer recreational reading clubs. Many will register with the children's library of the Carnegie library, where Miss Cox will have a most unusual and interesting program for summer reading plan. This work is being ably sponsored by Mrs. Sam Asher, chairman of children's reading for Atlanta. She urges that all schools enroll immediately so that plans may not be deferred. Enrollment of children at library or any branch before June 3. Let your child be one of the first.

Other children in district will seek adventure through state circulating library. Miss Wheatcroft is eager to hear from those parent-teacher mothers too distant to use city libraries with their regular or summer children's summer reading clubs. They will be sent free of charge to be used during the summer if a reading chair is desired. Mrs. Haden, of Fulton county, will be actively engaged in organizing clubs, particularly in old Campbell district where there has been a great increase and interest in the work.

Bentley, a very small school, in Fulton, last year had an enrollment of 75. This year she has secured 150. Many certificates from circulating library.

This summer, in connection with their club, they are making an interesting scrapbook regarding the history and romance of their school. Major Bentley, for whom the school was named, is being interviewed by the children from which they will weave some valuable information regarding Georgia history. Other schools will be having similar projects.

Mrs. A. B. Burrows, as chairman of DeKalb, has done much to encourage and enroll children in summer reading clubs. She reports over 100 enrollments last year with many receiving awards. A much larger enrollment is expected this year. She has spoken to almost every school regarding good reading habits during the year.

There has been no moratorium declared on good books so why not give your child the pleasure and entertainment of good books during the long leisurely summer months. Librarians tell us there has been a vigorous revival of reading during these depressed times.

Do not deny them a rightful heritage a love for good books and a reading habit that can best be acquired at an early age. Books are only exposed to influence of good books. Francis Bacon said, "What we read makes thought, what we think makes action."

The problem of providing good reading is above everything else a problem of making good reading matter accessible so why not call on your library or your parent-teacher club for the reading chairman in providing books.

Mrs. Vernon Frank, library extension chairman of fifth district, and Mrs. George H. Slattery, as state chairman will assist. For further information regarding summer reading clubs telephone Mrs. R. H. Lummus, 343 Bolton road, Atlanta.

Mary Lin Meets.

Mary Lin P-T-A. met in the school auditorium Tuesday, the president, Mrs. J. E. Biggs, presiding. The High Kindergarten orchestra gave two classical and several nursery rhyme selections. Mrs. E. E. Eberhart, solo on musical glasses. Miss Frances Cox, of Carnegie library, brought a message to the parents on summer reading. Mrs. E. E. Eberhart, value of reading carefully and understanding, and the advantages of the children joining the summer reading club.

Complete yearly reports of all attending committees were given. Mrs. Henry Jordan, membership chairman, reported 70 members. Mrs. E. E. Eberhart, ways and means chairman, reported $102 made during the year.

Miss Kelly, of Macon, Will Wed Mr. Sheahan, of Brunswick, Ga.

Miss Cleo Patricia Kelly, of Macon, whose engagement is announced today by her father, Albert E. Kelly, to John Alonzo Sheahan, of Brunswick, formerly of Atlanta. Mr. Sheahan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sheahan, of this city, and his marriage to Miss Kelly will be solemnized in Atlanta at an early date. Photograph by Elliott's Peachtree studio.

MACON, Ga., May 27.—Sincere interest throughout the south centers today in the announcement made by Albert E. Kelly, of Macon, of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Cleo Patricia Kelly, to John Alonzo Sheahan, of Brunswick, formerly of Atlanta. The bride-elect is a brunet whose graciousness of manner has endeared her to hosts of friends, both in the younger and older sets of Macon. She possesses a lovely soprano voice and has appeared with her sister, Miss Virginia Kelly, on various civic and church programs throughout the city for the past several years. After attending Lanier High school here, she specialized in voice at the Wesleyan Conservatory of Music. Miss Kelly is the eldest daughter of Mr. Kelly and the late Mrs. A. E. Kelly, beloved Macon citizen, and is the sister of Miss Virginia Kelly and Edward Kelly Jr.

Mr. Sheahan is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sheahan, of Atlanta, his mother having been prior to her marriage, Miss Anne Mary Lyons, a member of one of the pioneer families of south Florida. His father for a great many years was one of the most prominent figures in railroad circles in the entire south. The bridegroom-elect was in his senior year at the Georgia School of Technology when the first officers training was established at Fort McPherson during the World War. He enrolled there, won his commission and served 14 months overseas in the Thirteenth field artillery, Fourth division, regular army. He is a graduate engineer of the Colorado school of mines and is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and also of the Beta Tau, national honorary engineering fraternity. He is a popular member of the Brunswick Rotary Club and also the Young Businessmen's Club of that city. For the past few years he has held the position as manager of the Georgia Public Utilities Corporation, of Brunswick.

Due to a recent bereavement in the family of the bride-elect the wedding plans have been changed and the marriage of this popular young couple will be quietly solemnized in Atlanta at an early date.

Miss Hill To Wed

Roy Jackson Bond.

PEMBROKE, Ga., May 27.—Sincere interest of a wide circle of friends centers in the announcement made today of the engagement of Miss Evelyn Ruth Hill to Roy Jackson Bond, the marriage to be solemnized at an early date.

Miss Hill is a representative of distinguished southern families. She is the daughter of Rev. J. S. Hill, formerly of Atlanta. Following her graduation from Tignall High school, she received her bachelor of arts degree from LaGrange College, where she was an honor student. She has done graduate work at Emory University and has had the cultural advantages of travel in the United States, Cuba and Panama, Canal Zone. Miss Hill has been teaching since her graduation from college.

Mr. Bond is the son of T. A. Bond and Mrs. Estelle Bond, of Danielsville, Ga. After completing his preparatory studies at Young Harris Academy, Mr. Bond attended the University of Georgia, where he received A. B. and A. M. degrees. Since graduation from college, he has been engaged in teaching and is superintendent of Bryan County High school at Pembroke. Mr. Bond is an active community and church worker. He and his bride will make their home in Winterville, after the summer months, where he will be superintendent of the public schools for the next term.

Betrothal Centers
Social Interest

MACON, Ga., May 27.—The interest of friends and relatives throughout the state is centered in the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Furman Dargan Lawton, of Macon, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Carolyn Lawton, to Glover Futch Harrell, the wedding to be solemnized at an early date.

The bride-elect will graduate from Wesleyan College Monday, May 29. For the past two years she has been assistant registrar at the college, and has also been active and popular in the campus activities. She was a member of the Vesper staff, the college annual, and of the Wesleyan and Watchtower, in the capacity of artist and columnist. She received a certificate in ceramic art at Wesleyan Conservatory. She is a lovely young woman of the brunet type, and is a sister of Miss Emily Lawton and Elliott Lawton.

Mr. Harrell is the son of Mrs. J. W. Harrell and is a brother of Mrs. Joe Nease, of Lumber City, and L. S. Harrell, of Macon. He attended Mercer University where he was a popular member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity and is now connected with the First National Bank and Trust Company of Macon. He is a past president of the American Institute of Banking in this city.

Miss Helen McKinley Weds Lieut. Magee

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 27.—The marriage of Miss Helen McKinley, daughter of Colonel Grayson V. Heidt, U. S. A., and Mrs. Heidt, of Fort Sam Houston, to Lieutenant Merwyn MacKay Magee, U. S. A., was brilliantly solemnized at 8:30 o'clock in the Officers' Club at the garrison.

The beautiful bride is the only daughter of Colonel Grayson Willard Heidt and Mrs. Heidt. She is well known in Atlanta, having spent her early childhood here. She is the granddaughter of the Rev. J. W. Heidt and the late Mrs. Heidt, of Atlanta. Her father, Colonel Heidt, was appointed to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., from here, and after receiving his commission was quartermaster of the army area with headquarters in Atlanta.

Mr. Heidt was before her marriage Miss Grace McKinley, niece of the late President McKinley. Colonel and Mrs. Heidt are prominent members of the military and civilian society in San Antonio, where the former is quartermaster of the army area. The bride is a favorite in military and civilian social contingents in San Antonio and Fort Sam Houston. She was educated at St. Mary's Hall in San Antonio and at Stuart Hall in Virginia. She is a niece of Mrs. Andrew Calhoun and of John W. Heidt, U. S. A., of the Panama Canal Zone, and Major Emanuel Heidt, of New Haven, Conn.

Lieutenant Magee is the eldest son of Colonel James Magee, medical corps, United States army, and Mrs. Magee, now in Philadelphia, Pa., but who for several years made their home in Atlanta and Fort McPherson, where they have a host of friends. Lieutenant Magee received his appointment to West Point while in Atlanta and was graduated with the class of 1931. He is on duty with the twelfth field artillery in Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

O.E.S. Trustees Plan Calico Ball May 31

Trustees of the Educational Loan Fund of the O. E. S. of Georgia will sponsor a unique calico ball Wednesday evening, May 31, at the Shrine mosque. Mrs. Jennie L. Newman, of Dalton, is chairman, and Mrs. Tom Wisdom and Miss Ethel Jackson compose the board. O. E. S. members, Masons and their friends are invited to this affair. Tickets will be 25 cents, the proceeds to be used to assist an Atlanta boy, sponsored by the O. E. S. of Georgia, in completing his course at Emory University.

The coronation of King and Queen Cotton will feature this affair and attractive prizes will be awarded to the lady and gentleman wearing the most original cotton costumes. Each lady is requested to bring a tie matching the material of her gown. The gentlemen will each draw a tie from a box and in this way will determine partners for the grand march, to be led by Miss Ethel Jackson and her escort, Miss Jackson, worthy grand matron of Georgia, will reign as queen of the ball and the king will be the gentleman drawing a tie to match her gown. Grant Park Rainbow Assembly Girls will be pages for Miss Jackson and will also present several drills.

Among the distinguished guests from out of town will be Mrs. Rowena C. Ward, Valdosta; Mrs. Marcia Jewett, Rossville; Mrs. Marie Florence and S. C. Moon, Athens, Ga.; Mrs. Jennie L. Newman, Dalton; W. M. Sapp, Dalton, Ga., and D. W. Lane, Waycross. Other distinguished guests will be Harry O. Garrett, Mesdames D. C. Lawhon, Julia J. Turner, Fannie Mae Dabney, Adah R. ## Miss Allen To Become Bride Of Mr. McDonald, of Waycross

An announcement of interest to a host of friends is that made by Mrs. Beverly Pope Allen, of Decatur, of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Georgia Anne Allen, to Frank Bartow McDonald Jr., of Waycross, the wedding to be solemnized in June.

The bride-elect is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Allen and the late Dr. Beverly Pope Allen, for many years a beloved member of the North Georgia conference. On her paternal side she is descended from the Farris, of Revolutionary fame, and on her maternal side from the Waltons and Cratins. She received her education at Woman's College of Alabama and the Nashville Conservatory of Music. For several years she has made her home in Waycross with her sister, Mrs. Quillian L. Garrett, and has been a member of the faculty of the Waycross city schools. Mr. McDonald is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bartow McDonald, of Waycross. He is the grandson of the late William A. McDonald, and the great-grandson of Dr. Randall McDonald, pioneer citizen of Ware county, and the first physician of that county. On his maternal side he is descended from the Walters and Burman families.

The bridegroom-elect received his preparatory education at the University of Georgia, and is a graduate of the law school of the University of Virginia. He is a member of the Lambda Chi Alpha and Phi Alpha Delta fraternities and of the Raven Society of the University of Virginia. He is a junior member of the law firm of Parks, Garrett and McDonald.

The wedding will be a quiet event in early-June at the home of the bride-elect's sister, Mrs. Quillian L. Garrett, on Cherokee drive, Waycross.

Chapman - James Betrothal Announced

WINCHESTER, Va., May 27.—Mrs. Katherine M. Chapman announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Nancy Louise Chapman, to Dr. Howard Lee James, the marriage to take place the early part of June.

Miss Chapman was educated in schools in Virginia and Washington, D. C., and for the past four years has made her home in Atlanta, Ga. Her exquisite type of beauty combines dark hair with brown eyes and her charm and personality have won for her many friends.

Dr. James is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. James, of Alexandria, Va. He is a graduate of the Columbian School of Technology and Engineering, the University of Southern California, in Los Angeles, the National College of Drugless Physicians and the American College of Naturopathy, both of Chicago, Ill. He is a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa honorary society.

Mallard-Reynolds Wedding Rites Solemnized at North Ave. Church

At a fashionable high noon ceremony solemnized yesterday, Miss Mary Brock Mallard, only daughter of Mr. William Joseph Mallard and the late Mr. Mallard, became the bride of Troxell Crawford Reynolds, of Greensboro, N. C. The North Avenue Presbyterian church provided the setting for the nuptial rites, which were witnessed by an assemblage of friends and relatives. Dr. E. R. Leyburn, of Rome, Ga., life-long friend of the bride's family, read the marriage service.

The interior of the church presented a scene of stately beauty, with its decorations of palms and giant woodwardia ferns combining with white summer garden flowers. Floral baskets filled with Easter lilies, white gladioli and white larkspur were silhouetted against the background of foliage which massed the rear of the altar and banked the chancel at either side of the altar. Placed at intervals between the baskets were tall floor standards holding white cathedral tapers. Clusters of Easter lilies and white gladioli marked the

Miss Hardwick Is Honored

Miss Frances Knott was hostess yesterday at a luncheon given at her home on Myrtle street in honor of Miss Maude Hardwick, whose marriage to Donald McIver takes place June 8. Miss Knott was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. George Knott. Covers were placed for Miss Hardwick, Miss Knott, Misses Mary Frances Mather, Martha Wright, Louise Giradeau, and Mesdames W. R. Crawford, Norman Pettys, William Trimble and George Knott.

Miss Emilie Parnales, organist of the church, rendered a program of nuptial music preceding the ceremony and during the assembling of the guests.

Miss Margaret Leyburn, of Atlanta, was the bride's maid of honor and only attendant. She was a charming figure wearing a clinging chiffon gown, the pattern of which presented pale blue and pink flowers printed upon a flesh-colored background. Cut long and moulded to the figure, the skirt flared below the knees, and the bodice featured the smart high neckline and puffed sleeves. A wide brimmed hat of soft blue straw, blue pumps and an arm bouquet of white roses and pale blue delphinium completed the lovely costume.

The attractive young bride was given in marriage by her brother, William Mallard, of New York. She chose for the ceremony a beautiful ensemble of silk crepe combining a soft shade of Eleanor blue with a darker shade of blue, the one-piece frock being fashioned of the lighter shade and the three-quarter length coat of the darker shade. A becoming felt hat with a medium width brim and kid pumps in a shade matching the blue of the gown were becoming accessories. Completing the bridal ensemble was a beautiful arm bouquet of white roses and gardenias, showered with valley lilies.

Mrs. William J. Mallard, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in gray crepe trimmed with gray Alencon lace. Her hat was of straw in a matching shade of gray and her flowers were a shoulder cluster of butterfly roses and valley lilies. Mr. Reynolds and his bride left for a motor trip which will include the fashionable mountain resorts of North Carolina. Upon their return they will take possession of their home in Greensboro, where the bridegroom, a member of an old and aristocratic family, is a prominent young businessman. He and his lovely bride will be interesting acquisitions to the young married set of society.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the marriage was the bridegroom's father, Ernest Reynolds, of Greensboro, N. C.

Studio Club Tea

The Studio Club will entertain at tea Wednesday afternoon, May 31, from 4:30 to 6 o'clock. Hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. Lee Edwards, Miss Helen Muse, Miss Emily Ramage, Judge and Mrs. Marvin Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sanders and Robert Newcomb.

Smith College Bestows Honors Upon Miss Katherine Yow

Miss Katherine Yow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones Yow, formerly of Athens, now of Haverford, Pa., who has been awarded honors at Smith College. She is a niece of Dr. and Mrs. Jeff Davis, of Toccoa.

The Smith College press board has issued the following announcement about Miss Katherine Yow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones Yow, formerly of Athens, now living in Philadelphia. The article states that Miss Katherine Bridges Yow was recently awarded the Harriet Day Barnum prize for the most outstanding work in music. As leader of the Smith Glee Club she directed each of the four class choirs in their test songs in the choir competition and was soloist at the annual concert given by the Smith and Harvard glee clubs on May 6. On May 3 Miss Yow gave a piano recital consisting of selections from Bach, Beethoven, Chopin and Debussy.

Miss Yow is also prominent in senior commencement activities. She is in charge of the music for the senior play and is a member of the committee arranging indoor Ivy Day exercises. During commencement week she will appear as piano soloist with the Smith College orchestra, playing the concerto in B minor by Saint-Saens.

Mrs. Holt Elected President of Rebekahs.

At the annual session of the Georgia Rebekah assembly held in Atlanta on May 23-24, Mrs. C. C. Holt was elected president; Miss Laura McArthur, vice president; Miss Clara Jones, warden; Mrs. M. C. Strickland, secretary; Mrs. Ivis Henderson, treasurer; and Mrs. Lulu Davis, representative to the Association of Rebekah Assemblies, which will be held next September in Springfield, Ill. The appointed officers are Mrs. Loretta Scates, marshal; Miss Louise Harwell, conductor; Mrs. Bernetta Manning, chairman; Mrs. Maude Bridges, inside guardian; Mrs. Janie Carden, outside guardian; and Mrs. Gussie Trippie, musician. Mrs. M. C. Strickland was appointed publicity committee.

Mrs. Josie Morrow, past president of Florida, and Mrs. Blanch Harwell, vice president of Alabama, with others, were the distinguished guests and the assembly was honored by a visit from grand lodge officers and past officers. The reception on Tuesday evening on Ansley roof was well attended by members and their friends. The Rebekah degree contest was held at Red Men's wigwam on Wednesday night, four teams doing meritorious work, the loving cup donated to the assembly by Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Brown Sr. was awarded to Piedmont degree staff, of which Mrs. M. C. Strickland is captain. The next annual session of the Georgia Rebekah assembly will be held in Griffin in May, 1934.

Jewish Conference Set for Sunday.

Atlanta Jewish women will play an important part in the Georgia State Jewish conference to be held here Sunday, May 28, on the roof garden of the Ansley hotel. The conference, under the auspices of the Gate City Lodge No. 144, of B'nai B'rith, is being held for all Jewish persons of Georgia and at this meeting the Women's Auxiliary of the B'nai B'rith is to be organized.

Atlanta women will be hostesses to the many hundreds at the first annual meeting and varied entertainment is planned. Registration will start at the Ansley hotel at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. Among those in attendance will be Miss Rae Peyer, of Denver, Col., field secretary of the National Jewish hospital at Denver, which is an important institution under the supervision of the B'nai B'rith.

Some of the well-known Atlantans who will act as hostesses will be Mesdames H. A. Alexander, Sam Levy, F. A. Constant, Irving Goldstein, L. J. Levitt, A. L. Loch, Herman Heyman, Joseph E. Brown, L. Meyers, H. S. Jacobs and Joseph Schelinger.

Mrs. Julia Riley Is Paid Homage On 88th Birthday

A wonderful tribute was paid Mrs. Julia Riley on her 88th birthday anniversary when members of the Riley family gathered recently at the home of Mrs. Riley, at 12 Regent street, to observe this auspicious date and pay homage to the beloved woman. Five generations attended the celebration and took active part in the program of entertainment. The guests gathered around an exquisitely appointed table adorned with an artistically decorated two-tiered cake, embossed in pink and white. Tiny pink rose buds with green foliage held 88 pink candles, which silently proclaimed the age of the honor guest. Toasts, featuring the theme of mother love were proposed to Mrs. Riley, who has 37 living descendants, and by whom she is greatly revered and respected, and who richly deserves the love lavished upon her.

Mrs. Riley has three living children, including Mrs. J. B. Kelley, of East Lake; Mrs. J. S. Medlock, of Stone Mountain, and W. A. Riley, who is prominently connected with the Fulton county police department and is 13 grandchildren include Mesdames H. C. Gregory, George J. Morris, Cadell Wagner, Jimmie G. Goldard, Norma Guinn, Gertrude McDaniel and Maurice Medlock, Howard Medlock, Randolph Medlock, Marion Riley, M. H. Kelly, W. G. Kelly and J. L. Kelly.

Her 37 great-grandchildren are Mesdames Walter Thraill, M. M. Smithson, Leman Edmondson, Vivian Brownlee, Lenora Ashby, Winston White and Misses Opal Kelly, Elsie Kelly, Helen Kelly, Dorothy Kelly, Mary Jones Kelly, Bettie Kelly, Mildred Goddard, Evelyn Gwinn, Alice Medlock, Lavada McDaniel, Jewell Morris, and James Kelly, Forest Kelly, McCurdy Kelly, Larry Kelly, C. Kelly Jr., Edwin Kelly, Lester Kelly, Morris Kelly, Greely White, Horace White, Norman Goddard, Forrest Gwinn, Hubert Gwinn, Marvin Gwinn, Charles Medlock, John Medlock, Powell McDaniel and "Baby" Kelly. Her 14 great-great-grandchildren include Misses Dorothy Thraill, Jaunita Thraill, Helen Brownlee, Peggie Brownlee, Barbara Ashley, Elizabeth Ashley, "Patsie" Ashley and Gloria White, and Lawrence Thraill, Jack Smithson, John Smithson, Leman Edmondson Jr., Robert Wagner and Baby Edmondson.

Vacation Special At Camp Highland

Business girls and women from Atlanta, Marietta and Athens will be guests at Camp Highland, July 20 to August 7 to enjoy the "vacation special" planned by Miss Flora Hatcher, business girls' secretary. Recognizing the fact that many girls will be deprived of vacation trips this year, because of reduced budgets, the Y. W. C. A. is arranging attractive features for this period at a price which will make rest and relaxation possible for numbers of girls.

There will be no fixed camp schedule, plans will be encouraged to follow their own inclinations. In addition to swimming, archery, tennis, baseball, hikes, there will be special events in the evenings to entertain and amuse. Dances, hay-rides, plays, stunts, star-gazing and other plans are being made, with definite announcements to follow later. Enthusiastic plans are being made by groups of girls from the same business offices, and stores, to reserve a whole lot together. As eight or more may bunk together at Camp Highland, the house party idea is popular. Camp staff will be composed of leaders from the business girls' clubs and unemployed girls will be given opportunities to assist with camp duties in lieu of fees.

As Camp Highland opens the season June 16, registrations will begin June 1; $1 registration fee is charged and this is deducted from the payment at Camp Highland. Registrations should be made at the Y information desk, 37 Auburn avenue.

Demonstration Clubs.

Mrs. Leila R. Mize, state marketing leader, will be in Fulton county Monday and Tuesday of this week to assist Miss Lucy Wood, Fulton county home demonstration agent, with home marketing problems in the former Milton county section of Fulton. The home demonstration clubwomen there are eager to find some outlet for the marketing of their surplus vegetables, dairy and poultry products.

Miss Wood will be with the women at their home demonstration club meetings on Thursday and Friday at Bethany and Baptist Rest clubs. These clubs are located in the lower end of Fulton county. All clubs will have meetings this month for the study of control measures for garden vegetables and for the preparation of the canning season. The members are attempting to measure up an adequate canning budget for their families.

Eleven Hundred Handmade Quilts On Display at Sears-Roebuck Co.

By MAINER LEE TOLER.

Quilts of every design and color sent from Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida are on display at the Atlanta store of Sears, Roebuck & Co. Eleven hundred of these beautifully hand-made coverings have been entered through the southeastern region in the Sears Century of Progress quilt contest. The national contest is being held by this well-known mail order and retail house in its 10 regional districts throughout the country. Judges in each region will select three from the collection to be sent to the magnificent Sears building at the Century of Progress exposition, in Chicago, where the national prize-winning quilts will be exhibited and where three prizes of $1,000, $500 and $300 respectively will be awarded in the final elimination.

Three prominent Atlantans were selected to act as judges in the contest for the southeastern region, including Mrs. Julian Harris, who is noted for her artistic and literary ability; Lewis Skidmore, director of the High Museum of Art, and Mrs. Max Land, president of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Names of the regional winners will not be announced until after final awards have been made in the national contest.

A visit to the local Sears-Roebuck store yesterday revealed that the three selections made by the Atlanta judges were chosen for their perfection in workmanship, beauty and harmony of color arrangement and beauty of design. The Star of France design won the prize, a brilliant star in the various shades of yellow fashioned on a heavenly blue background. The exquisitely fine feather stitching of this entry in the patch-work class proved a deciding factor with the judges in choosing it first from the 1,100 quilts. In applique pattern of yellow iris, in which delicate shades of green were introduced, won second place in this region and the third award was made

Fulton High.

The girls in the home economics classes of Fulton High school gave their annual program Thursday in the school auditorium. These programs are presented each year by the girls in honor of their mothers at the last meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association. The playlet adapted especially for this occasion presented the work of this department in interesting fashion. Suitable costumes for many occasions were shown. In observance of bicentennial year, a brief history of Fulton High school was given and the girls modeled the graduation dresses of the past years. The 1933 dress was most attractive in cotton and not less than $4. An interesting feature were the clothes shown for the very young children made by the girls in connection with the child care and development course. These were modeled by the children.

Mildred Conkle, group leader, greeted the mothers in behalf of the Home Economics Club, and Edna Young, class president, represented the Fashion Dictator in the leading role. The bicentennial idea was carried out in the stage setting.

Miss Skott Weds S. H. Copy At Ceremony in Kansas City

Of wide social interest is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Eli Skott of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Frances Skott, to Sam H. Copy, of Kansas City, Mo., at the home of the bridegroom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Woolf Binkowitz.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Gershon Hadas, of the Keneseth Israel Beth Shalom synagogue, and the orthodox wedding service was used. The living room was adorned with quantities of palms and flowers in pastel shades, and the bride and bridegroom took their marriage vows before an improvised altar of ferns and flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Copy will make their home in Kansas City after an extended wedding trip. During the winter months they plan to come to Atlanta for residence, where Mrs. Copy is an admired figure among hosts of friends, and is exceedingly attractive and charming.

Mrs. Hayes Honored.

Mrs. Jack Hayes, of Washington, D. C., was central figure at a buffet supper given last evening by Mrs. Cliff Hatcher at her Peachtree circle residence. Garden flowers in pastel shades were used throughout the reception rooms. The dining table was graced with a silver bowl holding an effective arrangement of Dresden shaded flowers encircled by silver candlesticks holding green tapers. The guests included a group of close friends of the honor guest, who formerly resided in Atlanta, and was Miss Eva Wilby before her marriage, and has a host of friends here.

The Apparel Shop Believes in The Power of Suggestion as the keynote to coolness

"She was wearing an ice-green frock sprinkled with frosted white flowers, a faint breeze stirred the folds of her skirt, endowing her with a vaporous, floating-like appearance."

She was cool—she had on a frock of a refreshing color—the material caught the slightest stir of air. It's all in knowing what to wear—and we find that the old adage, "If you look cool you'll feel cool," still holds true in this modern age. So Regenstein's has collected for you the very frocks you'll need, lovely refreshing things that will be a relief from the Summer heat.

If you are an active sports enthusiast, you should don a cotton, sunback frock of seersucker, pique, or linen, made on simple lines to give freedom to every movement of your figure.

$5.95 ... to ... $16.75

Or perhaps you are a more passive type who gives moral support to the sports—then you should wear a crisp linen, gaily printed batiste, a dotted swiss or washable silk. They are all light, airy and sporty.

$5.95 ... to ... $16.75

For those delightful afternoon affairs, bridge, tea, or a garden party—a printed silk or sheer chiffon would be lovely. Many are made with coats to wear later in the evening.

$10.75 ... to ... $16.75

And for evening a mousseline de soie, organdie or sheer—fashioned for dancing and guaranteed to have a most tantalizing effect on your partner. Many of these frocks have jackets, too.

Studio Club Music Group Presents Artists in Concert on Monday

Music group of the Studio Club will present Claire Harper and Franciscan Zachara, well-known artists, on the closing program of the season to be given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Willis Westmoreland, 417 Tenth street, N. E., on Monday evening, May 29, at 8 o'clock, to which the membership is invited.

Miss Harper comes from the Juilliard School of Music of New York, where she studied as a fellow pupil of Paul Kochanski and is a finished violinist. Her brilliant playing has been a feature of several recitals in Atlanta this season before the Atlanta Music Club. She is a member of the faculty of Ward Belmont, but for the summer she is located in Athens, where she is at the head of the violin department of the University of Georgia.

Mr. Zachara is a native of Warsaw, Poland, the little country in Europe that has given much to the world in the way of piano virtuoso.
He came to America five years ago, located in New York, where his first concert was the mastery of English.
Because of his unusually extensive repertoire his manager placed him at Gainesville, Ga., at the head of the Brenau musical faculty, where once each month throughout the year he gives an entirely different program.
He has married a Georgia girl, Miss Harrison, of Gainesville, and it is hoped this will prove a tie that will keep him in our midst. He will come regularly to Atlanta during the summer as he holds his classes at the Studio Arts building. Mrs. Charles Chalmers, a pianist and accompanist of national note and our own Atlanta girl, will be Miss Harper's accompanist.

A reception will be held honoring the artists and Mrs. J. Lee Edwards
the retiring chairman of the music group. Assisting Dr. and Mrs. Westmoreland in entertaining will be Mr.
and Mrs. Logan Davis, Mr. and Mrs.
Allen Able, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart
Gelders, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Davis, Dr. and Mrs. Lowance, Mesdames Flor-

Speech Arts Club.

Speech Arts Club of the Atlanta
School of Oratory and Expression,
402 Wesley Memorial church, meets Tuesday, May 30, at 6 o'clock with Mrs. F. A. Scher acting as program chairman. The main theme will be the retiring chairman of the music
group. Assisting Dr. and Mrs. Westmoreland in entertaining will be Mr.
and Mrs. Logan Davis, Mr. and Mrs.
Allen Able, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart talks on this subject by the members and guests, W. H. Mencham will speak on current events, Miss A. B. Norris on parliamentary law, and J. J.

Bugg will bring a special address on a subject of his own choosing.

Miss Griggs Weds Ralph Bardwell In Montgomery

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 27.—
The wedding of Miss Annie Maude
Griggs and Ralph N. R. Bardwell Jr. took place at high noon on Wednesday, last, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Griggs, on Winthrop court, Montgomery, Ala.
Dr. Edward G. Mackey, pastor of the First Methodist church, read the ceremony.

The bride is extremely pretty and charming, and has enjoyed a pronounced popularity since making her debut. She is a graduate of Woman's College, Montgomery, and has traveled extensively. Her parents are a part of the civic, religious and social life of Montgomery. Mr. Griggs is identified with many improvements for the advancement of Montgomery and is one of the progressive men of the city.

The bridegroom, formerly of Atlanta, where he was connected with the fire companies' adjustment bureau, has been connected with the Montgomery office of this organization for the past year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. R. Bardwell, of Atlanta; is a brother of Mrs. Leconard E. Murray, of Atlanta, and George E. Bardwell, of Louisville, Ky. He is a graduate of the Georgia School of Technology, where he was a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, served with the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Mr. and Mrs. Bardwell are on a wedding trip through Florida and will go to Havana, Cuba, where they will visit the groom's uncle, Dr. Harvey B. Bardwell, president of Candler College at Havana. On their return they will make their home in Montgomery.

Mrs. Norton Wins
Sweepstakes Prize

Mrs. M. De Witt Norton won the sweepstakes prize in the arrangement class and also the bronze medal for horticultural achievement at the summer flower show held Friday by the Lullwater Garden Club at the Druid Hills Golf Club. The sweepstakes was awarded for Mrs. Norton's arrangement of orchid and white Japanese iris in a beautiful blue-green pottery urn. The medal was awarded for her specimen spray of Daisy Bess roses.

The Lullwater Garden Club award, a handsome white pottery vase, was won by Mrs. Siera A. Garrett for her silver centerpiece filled with sweet peas in the tints of pink and lavender.
The Mary Miller award, a beautiful white urn, was won by Mrs. E. Rogers for a pair of yellow vases filled with white Mermaid roses.

The show was planned largely for the showing of artistic arrangements of flowers in various types of containers. Prizes were awarded in the arrangement class and in the specimen class, the judges being Mrs. Arnold
Happ, Mrs. John L. Hager and A. B.
Schattmeier.

The committee in charge of the show included Mrs. L. M. Youngs, chairman; Mrs. Augustine Sams, secretary; Mesdames W. R. Bean, J.
A. Higgs, J. Sam Guy and Marion Benison.

Those winning blue ribbons were Mesdames Ralph Walker, Albert
Pritchard, M. D. Norton, Steve Garrett, Charles Waits, George Phillips,
L. E. Rogers, A. P. Phillips, Byron
Akins and H. H. Askew.

Others winning ribbons included
Mesdames J. A. Higgs, Hugh Carter,
Tom Conner, J. Higgs, J. Sam
Guy, Augustine Sams, W. R. Bean,
J. L. Brooks and Mrs. H. G. Estes.

Mr. and Mrs. Osburn
Will Honor Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Justus Osburn will entertain at dinner Tuesday evening, May 30, at their Habersham road residence in compliment to their guests.
Mrs. Robert T. Brooks, of Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. Manly Davis, of Detroit, Mich. Mr. and Mrs. Osburn are recent arrivals in Atlanta, and have made a wide circle of admiring friends since establishing their residence here on January 1. They are former residents of Detroit, Mich., where they were prominent members of the married contingent of society.

Mr. and Mrs. Strother Fleming entertain at the dinner-dance marking the opening of the Brookhaven Country Club, as a complimentary gesture to Mrs. Brooks and Mrs. Davis. The al-fresco affair will be given on the terrace of the club, which provides an inviting rendezvous for members and their guests during the summer social season.

Mary Frances Bauer Wins Medal.

Mrs. W. F. Melton and Mrs. Louise Park attended the assembly meeting of the Hoke Smith school Thursday morning where Mrs. Melton delivered a medal to Mary Frances Bauer, winner in the essay contest on "Flag Etiquette." This medal was given by the Atlanta and Fulton County Chapter, Service Star Legion, of which
Mrs. Melton is president and Mrs.
Park the treasurer, and was given in honor of Mrs. Sam Dews Jones, founder of the chapter. The judges of the contest were Mesdames L. P. Rosser, Marcus Beck and M. L. Brittain.
These medals are given yearly by members of the Service Star Legion to the city and county schools.

Miss Louie Gordon Thomson Weds Lewis S. Thompson Jr.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—(AP)— Miss Louie Gordon Thomson today became the bride of Lewis S.
Thompson Jr., of Genesee, N. Y., at Woodlee, her home in suburban Rosemont. The wedding was marked by simplicity, the couple being unattended and guests being restricted to members of the two families. About 80 relatives attended the reception which followed. Judge W. Roger Fronfield, of the Delaware county court, performed the ceremony.

Attired in a charming gown of a soft pink tone, the bride wore a setting of pink and white peonies and iris. Following the reception the couple left on a trip, the destination of which was not revealed. They will make their home near Genesee, where Mr. Thompson is connected with the Standard Oil Company.

The bride is the daughter of Mr.
Walter S. Thomson and the late Walter Gordon. Born and reared in Atlanta, Ga., she is the niece of the late General John B. Gordon, distinguished Confederate soldier.

Mr. Thompson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Thompson Sr., of New York and Lincoln, N. J. He was graduated from Princeton University and his bride is a graduate of Mills' school in Paris.

Brilliant Social Affairs Mark G.M.A. Commencement Programs

Colonel J. C. Woodward, Major W.
R. Brewster and Mrs. Brewster will entertain members of the senior class of the Georgia Military Academy and their families at an informal lawn party on Monday afternoon following the senior class day exercises. They will be assisted in entertaining their guests by the ladies of the faculty and punch will be served by the young ladies of College Park who have been among the popular belles at the social affairs given during the past year at the academy. During the afternoon musical selections will be given by the G.
M. A. orchestra.

The last and the most brilliant of the social affairs marking the commencement program at the academy will be the dance to be given in the academy auditorium Tuesday evening following the annual senior-alumni banquet. The colors of G. M. A., red and white, will be featured in the elaborate decorations. Colonel Woodward, Major and Mrs. Brewster, Major and Mrs. Douglas Woodward will be assisted in receiving the guests by other members of the faculty and the commencement exercises at Georgia Military Academy.

Enlisting sincere interest is the approaching marriage of Miss Margaret
Elizabeth Turner and Thomas Earle
Bryant, of Lebanon, Tenn. The ceremony to be an event of Tuesday, June 27, taking place at 3:15 o'clock in the evening at the Covenant Presbyterian church. The marriage service will be read by the bride-elect's father, Dr. Herman L. Turner, and will be witnessed by a gathering of friends and relatives.

Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Turner will act as maid of honor, and Miss Nell
Allen Parsons, of Birmingham, and Miss Mary Will Crockett, of Atlanta, will be bridesmaids. Mr. Bryant has chosen Amzi H. Kirkpatrick, of Lebanon, Tenn., as best man.

A. Thomas Bradbury, A. Walton
Nall, Richard H. Rogers and Paul E.
Eisenhart will act as ushers. Mrs.
William A. DeLamar, organist and choir director of the Covenant church, will present a program of nuptial music. Mrs. Sanford K. Bell, soprano, and Dr. Ernest L. Stockton, president of Cumberland University, tenor, will sing a group of love lyrics
preceding the ceremony.

Miss Turner has a wide circle of friends in Atlanta, having graduated with honors from Woodberry Hall, where she took a prominent part in school activities. Since her graduation she has attended Cumberland University, where she will receive her bachelor of arts degree. The bridegroom-elect is the only son of Mrs.
James Earle Bryant and the late Mr.
Bryant, of Tennessee, is a graduate of Cumberland University, and holds the position of registrar and alumni secretary.

Following their marriage, Mr. Bryant and his bride will leave for a tour of the north and east and on their return in late July will reside in Lebanon, Tenn., where they will be attractive additions to the younger married contingent.

A number of pre-nuptial social affairs are being planned in compliment to Miss Turner and Mr. Bryant, the first to be a party at which Miss Dorothy Turner will entertain at her home in Lanier Place in Morningside.
Among others who will entertain for
Miss Turner are Mrs. William E.
Mitchell, Mrs. W. F. Caldwell, Miss
Elizabeth Mitchell, Miss Mary Will
Crockett, Miss Nell Parsons and Mrs.

Today.

Of interest to the young set is the open house to be given this afternoon
by Earle Yancey Jr., at his home on Ponce de Leon avenue, in Druid Hills, complementing the Tau Delta Tau pledges and their partners. The entertainment will include fortune telling, side shows, prize booths and contesting games. A dance will be held from 9 to 12 o'clock, with music by a local orchestra.

The committee in charge of the carnival includes Morris Taylor, Bert
Galant, Edith Berchenko, Lottie
Goncher, Dave Gershon, Ethel Smul-
lian, Joe Blass and Sarah Rice. Tickets are on sale by all Young Judean clubs at 10 cents. The proceeds will be used toward the expenses for the southern Young Judean convention to be held in Atlanta in August.

Turner-Bryant Wedding Rites Set For June 27 at Covenant Church

Enlisting sincere interest is the approaching marriage of Miss Margaret
Elizabeth Turner and Thomas Earle
Bryant, of Lebanon, Tenn. The ceremony to be an event of Tuesday, June 27, taking place at 3:15 o'clock in the evening at the Covenant Presbyterian church. The marriage service will be read by the bride-elect's father, Dr. Herman L. Turner, and will be witnessed by a gathering of friends
and relatives.

Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Turner will act as maid of honor, and Miss Nell
Allen Parsons, of Birmingham, and Miss Mary Will Crockett, of Atlanta, will be bridesmaids. Mr. Bryant has chosen Amzi H. Kirkpatrick, of Lebanon, Tenn., as best man.

A. Thomas Bradbury, A. Walton
Nall, Richard H. Rogers and Paul E.
Eisenhart will act as ushers. Mrs.
William A. DeLamar, organist and choir director of the Covenant church, will present a program of nuptial
music. Mrs. Sanford K. Bell, soprano, and Dr. Ernest L. Stockton,
president of Cumberland University,
tenor, will sing a group of love lyrics
preceding the ceremony.

Miss Turner has a wide circle of friends in Atlanta, having graduated with honors from Woodberry Hall, where she took a prominent part in school activities. Since her graduation she has attended Cumberland
University, where she will receive her bachelor of arts degree. The bridegroom-elect is the only son of Mrs.
James Earle Bryant and the late Mr.
Bryant, of Tennessee, is a graduate of Cumberland University, and holds the position of registrar and alumni secretary.

Following their marriage, Mr. Bryant and his bride will leave for a tour of the north and east and on their return in late July will reside in Lebanon, Tenn., where they will be attractive additions to the younger married contingent.

A number of pre-nuptial social affairs are being planned in compliment to Miss Turner and Mr. Bryant, the first to be a party at which Miss Dorothy Turner will entertain at her home in Lanier Place in Morningside.
Among others who will entertain for
Miss Turner are Mrs. William E.
Mitchell, Mrs. W. F. Caldwell, Miss
Elizabeth Mitchell, Miss Mary Will
Crockett, Miss Nell Parsons and Mrs.

Today.

Of interest to the young set is the open house to be given this afternoon
by Earle Yancey Jr., at his home on Ponce de Leon avenue, in Druid Hills,
complementing the Tau Delta Tau pledges and their partners. The entertainment will include fortune telling, side shows, prize booths and contesting games. A dance will be held from 9 to 12 o'clock, with music by a local orchestra.

The committee in charge of the carnival includes Morris Taylor, Bert
Galant, Edith Berchenko, Lottie
Goncher, Dave Gershon, Ethel Smul-
lian, Joe Blass and Sarah Rice. Tickets are on sale by all Young Judean clubs at 10 cents. The proceeds will be used toward the expenses for the southern Young Judean convention to

Miss Adair Weds Moore Pearson In Early June

The engagement of Miss Hilda Katherine Adair, of Latchford, Ontario, and William Moore Pearson, of Atlanta, is an interesting announcement made today by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Adair, of Latchford, the ceremony to take place in the early part of June.

Miss Adair is a lovely blonde, who possesses magnetism and charm, graciousness of manner, and she is exceedingly attractive and popular. She was born in Halleyburg, Ontario, where she received her early education, and finished school at Orillia, Ontario. Miss Adair resides at present with her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McLeod, in Toronto, Ont., where the marriage rites will be performed. The bride-elect belongs to a prominent family and her father is engaged in the mining business.

Mr. Pearson attended Marist College, took part in the activities of the school, and was a popular member of the student body. He is a son of Mrs. Franklin Moore Pearson and the late Mr. Pearson, the latter having been a native of Wheeling, W. Va., who lived in Atlanta for 40 years. On his paternal side the bridegroom-to-be is a grandson of the late Judge Franklin Quincey Pearson, of Wheeling, West Virginia.

Mr. Pearson's mother was formerly Miss Maude McIntyre, of London, England, daughter of the late William McIntyre, one of the leading Shakespearean actors of the English stage, who was associated with Sir Henry Irving and Wilson Barrett at the old Drury Lane theater. Mr. Pearson's maternal grandmother was the late Mrs. Eleanor Bonasich, of Cannes, France, member of a well-known French family. His only brother is Captain F. J. Pearson, U. S. A., who is stationed at the University of California in Los Angeles.

Mr. Pearson is associated with the Anthony Buick Company in this city. Upon their return to Atlanta after their marriage in June, Mr. Pearson and his bride will reside at 1130 Piedmont avenue, and they will be cordially welcomed by a large circle of friends.

Mather-McChord Wedding Is Set For 22d of June

Miss Carmen Anita Mather and her fiancé, John Lisle McChord, of Cleveland, Ohio, have chosen Thursday, June 22, as the date for their marriage, which will be among the important events featuring the social calendar for the month of brides. Cordial social interest centers in the announcement, made today, of the personnel for the wedding.

The ceremony will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cotton Mather, on Saint Augustine place. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta, will read the marriage service in the presence of a gathering of friends and relatives of the young couple.

Miss Mather will be given in marriage by her father, Cotton Mather, and she has chosen as her matron of honor and only attendant her sister, Mrs. J. Elsas Phillips, the former Miss Belva Mather.

Murray G. Shoun will act as Mr. McChord's best man, and the ushers will include Harold L. Ebersole, J. Elsas Phillips and Thomas M. Stubbs, all of Atlanta, and John T. Ford, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Mather will entertain at a wedding reception honoring their daughter and Mr. McChord.

Miss Mather and Mr. McChord will be honored at a series of social affairs prior to their marriage, the dates and nature of the affairs to be announced later.

Miss Townley Plans Visit on Long Island.

Following the close of classes Tuesday at Ogeon school, near Philadelphia, Pa., where she is a student, Miss Rosemary Townley, charming daughter of Mrs. J. M. Townley, will be the fete guest of her roommate, Miss Ruth Mooney, at the beautiful estate of her parents, at Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., where she will be the recipient of numerous social compliments. En route to Long Island, Miss Townley will stop at Alexandria, Va., to be among the visiting belles attending the final dance series at the Episcopal High school.

During the past year, the Atlanta belle has had a round of good times at eastern colleges and on visits as the guest of friends. For the past week-end she was the guest of her schoolmate, Miss Lena Berlinger, at her home in Philadelphia, and recently she was present for the dances at Princeton University. Miss Townley will be an admired figure at social affairs for the young-contingent in Atlanta during the summer.

MISS HILDA KATHERINE ADAIR, OF LATCHFORD, ONTARIO.

MRS. CLAUDIA FUNDERBURK FULMER

ATTRACTIVE brides-elect and visitors focus society's attention today on the feature page. Miss Adair and William Moore Pearson, of Atlanta, will be married early in June in Toronto, Canada. Miss Holsenbeck's engagement is announced to William Tucker Gillham, of Memphis, Tenn., the wedding to be solemnized the latter part of June. Miss Crawford is pictured with her guest, Miss Gretchen Gress, of Jacksonville, Fla., who is exceedingly popular in Atlanta society. Mrs. Fulmer leaves the first of June for Shanghai, China, where she will become the bride of Major Lee Harvey Smith at a ceremony taking place at the American embassy. Miss Rucker is pictured with her hostess, Miss Prater, and she has been entertained at a series of parties during her visit here. Photos of Miss Crawford and Miss Gress by George Cornett, and those of Miss Rucker and Miss Prater were made by Kenneth Rogers, staff photographers.

Military Brilliance Will Feature Barnett-Crosby Wedding on June 24

The brilliance and color of the military will be reflected in the wedding of Miss Frances Watlington Barnett, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Trent Barnett, to Lieutenant George Dakin Crosby, U. S. A., which takes place Saturday afternoon, June 24, at 5:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons will officiate in the presence of a representative gathering of southerners. Dr. Charles A. Sheldon will have charge of the musical program and Dr. S. T. Barnett will give his daughter in marriage.

The lovely bride-elect has chosen her cousin, Miss Helen Watlington, of San Antonio, Texas, to act as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will include Misses Jane Crosby, of Washington, D. C., sister of the bridegroom-to-be; Ida Sadler, Boyce Lokey, Laura Hoke, Frances Howard and Lena Knox.

Lieutenant Mallin Craig, of Fort Benning, will act as Lieutenant Crosby's best man, and the groomsmen will include Lieutenants Alexander Stone, of Fort Myer, Va.; J. K. Baker, George Duncan, Charles R. Landon, all of Fort McPherson, and William S. Jennings, of Fort Oglethorpe. Acting as ushers will be S. T. Barnett Jr., William H. Watlington, of Denver, Col.; Joseph Cooper, Fritz Orr, Everard D. Richardson Jr., Elliott Heath, Charles Harman and Deoney Sledge.

Following the wedding cere-

Miss Holsenbeck To Be Bride Of Mr. Gillham

Widespread interest in Atlanta and in cities of surrounding states is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Marshall Holsenbeck of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Olivia Holsenbeck, to William Tucker Gillham, of Memphis, Tenn. The marriage of Miss Holsenbeck and Mr. Gillham will be solemnized the latter part of June, after which they will leave for Memphis to make their home.

Miss Holsenbeck is the elder daughter of her parents, and is the granddaughter of the late Andrew Jackson Kiser and Mrs. Emma Dixon Kiser. Her maternal grandparents were the late Rev. Robert W. Dixon, a prominent Methodist minister of Georgia, and Mrs. Frances Fleming Dixon, of West Point and Atlanta, and she is a niece of the late Robert Bryant Dixon, of West Point, Ga. She is a sister of Miss Bryant Dixon Holsenbeck, and her brother is D. M. Holsenbeck Jr.

The lovely young bride-elect was born in Atlanta. She is a graduate of the Girls' High school, and will receive her English normal diploma in June from the Georgia State College for Women. She has been actively connected with the Girl Scouts' program and camping interests for years.

On her paternal side Miss Holsenbeck is a niece of Garrett Holsenbeck and a granddaughter of the late Daniel Marshall Holsenbeck and Mrs. Martha Bailey Willis. She is a great-granddaughter of Nathaniel Edward Bailey and Mrs. Olivia Garrett Bailey, of Georgia.

Mr. Gillham is the only child of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Halsey Gillham and Mrs. Effie Tucker Gillham, and the grandson on the paternal side of the late Judge George Gillham and Mrs. Maria Kerr Gillham, of Memphis, Tenn. His mother's parents were the late William Tucker and Mrs. Helena Monague Tucker, of Tennessee.

Mr. Gillham is a graduate of the McCallie Military School of Chattanooga, and is also a graduate of the department of electrical engineering of Georgia School of Technology, where he was an member of the Theta Chi fraternity of Tech. He is now connected with the Standard Oil Company, of Memphis.

Junior League Gives Banquet On 6th of June

A banquet given on Tuesday evening, June 6, at the Piedmont Driving Club, at 6:45 o'clock, will bring to a close the successful regime of Mrs. Allison Thornwell, as the president of the Atlanta Junior League. Mrs. Bruce Woodruff will be chairman of arrangements for the banquet, and Mrs. Thornwell will preside and call for the reports of the chairmen.

The banquet will introduce an innovation as the closing meeting of the league, and will prove one of the most interesting occasions in the history of the organization. New officers will be inducted into office and the report from the recent Junior League conference held in Philadelphia will be given by Mrs. Edward K. Van Winkle Jr., and Mrs. Claude McGinnis Jr., who attended the conference.

An informal program of entertainment provided by members will follow the business session. New officers to be installed include Mrs. Edward K. Van Winkle Jr., president; Mrs. Claude McGinnis, first vice president; Mrs. Joseph W. Cooper, second vice president; Mrs. Henry W. Grady Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Ralph Parris, recording secretary, and Mrs. John Stewart, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Turner Leaves For Sao Paulo.

While Atlantans wear their sheers frocks and seek cool retreats at the seashore, the mountains and garden retreats, Mrs. John Vine Turner, who has been visiting her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dunbar, at the Italian villa in Ansley Park, will be donning her smart winter clothes to greet the winter season in her home in Sao Paulo, in Brazil. The summer season in Atlanta corresponds to the winter season in Sao Paulo, where log fires, burning cheerily in huge fireplaces, will await the travelers.

Leaving Atlanta yesterday by motor, accompanied by her children, Ret Dargan Turner and John Vine Turner Jr., Mrs. Turner will sail Saturday, June 3, aboard the Del Valle, of the Delta line, for the 19-day cruise to Santos on the sea coast.

Entraining there, the party will be joined by Mr. Turner, who is a distinguished representative of the National Bank of New York with station in Brazil. Journeying upward through the hills, they will reach their stucco home in Sao Paulo, which is surrounded by a flower garden. Herein, interesting members of the foreign colony assemble and the hospitality of the old south is reflected in the graciousness of the hosts.

Confederate Army Muster Roll Will Be Returned to Georgia

By MRS. L. W. GREENE,
Of Syracuse, State Editor of Georgia
Division, U. D. C.

Mrs. Forrest Kibler, together with Messrs. John A. Perdue, Frank Mathews and Lawrence McCord, as the committee on legislation of the Georgia division, U. D. C., have completed effectively with every obstacle and successfully obtained the remaining Confederate records, which have been kept within the war department in Washington for the past 65 years, are bringing to their states assets and advantages that will rebound to their lasting credit—and their accomplishment will be listed among the best contemporary patterns of good work, and evidently among the most valuable and enduring services rendered the U. D. C. during 1933—one indeed which is deserving the encomium of the Georgia division and all Georgians alike. This is the return of the lost muster roll of the Confederate army, which was transferred from Georgia to Washington, by none other than General Sherman himself, whose personal philosophy, as reflected in historical writings that live after him, was greatly shadowed by greed, and his mental plans like that of most mice and men—not only fail to work out, but cause forever and entirely—by this last step to correct his errors, when these certificates of honor that are forthright king's ransom in a state of Confederate traditions—are at last brought back home.

Mrs. Kibler tells us that because of the worn conditions of these papers the originals could not be copied but a photostatic copy of each record will be made at a total cost of $2,200. These earnest co-workers were aided by Mrs. Baskin, and had the intelligent guidance of state senators George, Russell and Senator Cohen, but theirs is a success from many angles and from which will accrue many equivalent benefits.

Mrs. Kibler very thrillingly tells her own story of their many days of striving and how they won, as follows: The committee on legislation, Georgia division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, have successfully carried plans through for obtaining copies of the Confederate muster rolls of Georgia on file in the war department in Washington, D. C. These copies will supplement those in the possession of the state. Mrs. Frank Kibler, chairman of legislation, and her committee, composed of Mrs. Izzy Baskin, ex-officio member; Mrs. Frank Mathews, Mrs. John A. Perdue and Mrs. Lawrence McCord, have worked untiringly on this matter since the convention, held last October in Bainbridge. They sought first to obtain these copies through our senators, but upon investigation by Senator George and Russell, who found that the records were so voluminous, that it would be impossible to obtain them. Senators George and Russell, who had estimates and samples of photostatic copies made and sent to A. L. Henson, newly appointed director of military service of Georgia, and who had department these records will be placed.

Mrs. Kibler, with a group of U. D. C. leaders composed of Mrs. Izzy Baskin, division president; Mrs. Frank Dennis, vice president and rector of C. of C.; Mrs. John A. Perdue, and Mrs. Eugene Long Harper, honorary presidents of Georgia division; Mrs. Frank Mathews, recorder of crosses of military service; Mrs. Moreland Speer, auditor; Mrs. A. R. Colcord, president of Atlanta chapter, and Mrs. L. C. Prim, Dublin, accompanied by A. L. Henson went before Governor Talmadge on Wednesday and asked that he authorize Mr. Henson to obtain photostatic copies of these records. This the governor did, and the work will begin at once. No subject matter can so deeply touch the hearts of our people as this of obtaining the records of the Confederate soldiers of Georgia. Most of these were captured by Sherman on his march through Georgia over 65 years ago—a majority of the citizens of our state are direct descendants of Confederate soldiers and there is nothing that will be more gratifying to the people throughout the state than to know that these records will be on file in Georgia. The Georgia division, U. D. C., is to be congratulated on the accomplishment of this gigantic undertaking.

The door of hospitality needs never to be pried open in any town, if the arteries leading to its heart are always a-bloom with a brightness of flowers and shrubs. For the very attitude of such a town is habitually one of friendliness and urbanity, and that speaks such continued welcome, that it symbolizes perennial good will—and "we are so happy to see you." Mrs. William Edward Hale, chairman for the Jefferson Davis highway, for the Ben Hill chapter, from whose artistic plans a U. D. C. park of enduring charm was developed in Fitzgerald, as an appropriate setting for the J. D. H. marker recently unveiled there, has contributed much pleasure to her townspeople and furnishes pleasant recollections to all who have visited this beauty spot.

The impressive ceremonies on May 21 in Milledgeville, incident to unveiling a bronze tablet marking the site of the Georgia secession convention, which were arranged by Mrs. R. B. Moore, president of the local chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and a committee composed of Messdames J. L. Beeson, David Ferguson and H. D. Allen, included Judge Alex H. Stephens as the principal speaker of the occasion, whose address reflected rather the glory of a gallant state, and of her brilliant sons.

Military Brilliance Will Feature Wedding

mony, Mr. and Mrs. Barnett will entertain at a reception at the Piedmont Driving Club for members of the wedding party, out-of-town guests and the immediate families. William H. Watlington and Miss Helen Watlington will entertain the bride and groom at a supper at the Piedmont Driving Club Friday evening, June 23, following the wedding rehearsal. Numerous social affairs are being planned to honor this popular couple preceding their marriage and will be announced later.

Atlantan Meets Fiancee in Canada.

Miss Hilda Adair's engagement to Moore Pearson will meet with sincere reception in Toronto and Atlanta, the homes of the bride-elect and her fiancé, and an interesting story lies behind their romance. Little did Mr. Pearson think that when his firm transferred him to Canada in 1929 that he would meet his future bride. His affection centered upon the fair Canadian immediately upon his arrival in Toronto, and when she came six months later for Mr. Pearson to return south, he was loath to leave his sweetheart behind. Absence served to make the heart grow fonder in this instance and daily letters mailed from Toronto reached Atlanta addressed to Mr. Pearson. By the same token, daily letters mailed from Atlanta were received by the fair Canadian girl in far-away Toronto. The economic depression caused the postponement of the marriage of Miss Adair and Mr. Pearson, but after President Roosevelt went into office and the country felt the return to prosperity, the much-in-love couple decided to wed early in June. The ceremony will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McLeod, brother and sister of the bride-to-be, in Toronto. "It's a long way to Canada, but my heart's right there," said Mr. Pearson, who is engaged in the automobile business and will motor to Canada to claim his bride.

Miss Riley Arrives With Lovely Visitors.

Among the most attractive of early summer visitors in the city will be Miss Riley, of San Francisco, Cal., and Miss Sarah Hunter, of Mobile, Ala., who will accompany lovely Miss Octavia Riley on her return from New York city Tuesday. This trio of popular belles are students at the exclusive Finch school in New York, and Miss Riley is the roommate of Miss Riley. Doubtless these visitors will be feted at a continual round of social affairs throughout their stay on account of the decided popularity of their hosts, who is numbered among Atlanta's most attractive debutantes. Miss Riley will be the hostess at tea Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at her home on Peachtree road in compliment to her visitors, when a group of friends of the youthful hostess will call to meet her guests. Miss Riley will be assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. J. L. Riley, Miss Field, Miss Hunter and their hostess will be present for many of the festivities attendant on Georgia Tech commencement in addition to other parties for the younger contingent.

Mrs. Dockstader Writes on Antiques.

A recent issue of "Antiques," that smart magazine which deals with treasures of yesteryear, carries a charming story relative to an old-fashioned hunt board. The story bears the signature of Mary Ralls Dockstader and is clothed in especial significance for Atlantans, because the writer is Mrs. D. M. Dockstader, a charming representative of the city's social contingent and of the intelligence. The article is one of a series of short stories written by Mrs. Dockstader for "Antiques," and "House Beautiful" and discloses in her accurate descriptions a thorough knowledge of her subject.

Her smart little shop, housed in her residence at 59 The Prado in Ansley Park, reflects in each treasured article her appreciation of the beauty of antiques. Her enthusiastic description and rare understanding of the work of master craftsmen of olden days rates her an authority on early American furniture. Occupying a place of honor is a walnut chest which reflects the Chipendale influence in its bracket feet and in the carefully executed lines. A walnut desk replete with secret drawers where mounds of long ago secreted her love letters from profane eyes, wins the admiration of the beholder.

A maple bed with head and footboard of curly walnut is an interesting piece and a hunting board signed red-coated figures in an old English print. There are hand-painted trays, water colors with subjects chosen from Chinese motifs, and linen towels made with amusing small figures of cabins and trees wrought on handlooms. A hand-tufted bedspread boasts white tufts against a dusky pink background and a bath mat borrows its colors of red, white and blue, from the American flag. Mrs. Dockstader finds a world of pleasure in searching for antiques, and her authentic knowledge of early American furniture enables her to locate choice examples executed by the loving hands of talented cabinet makers of another age. She is ever on the alert for something extraordinary of line and design.

Graduation Gifts Given Atlantans.

Graduation day is a glorified event in the life of every girl and always inspires proud parents and relatives to bestow exquisite gifts upon the graduates in recognition of the auspicious occasion. Wednesday, May 24, had a double meaning and thrill for Miss Clare Haverly, because she received her diploma from Washington Seminary on that date, which also marked her sixteenth birthday anniversary. She is the namesake of her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. J. J. Haverly, and the solitary diamond ring bestowed upon Miss Haverly when she graduated, was left to her by her grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haverly, gave their daughter a diamond wrist watch as a memento of the day she became "sweet sixteen." A diamond dinner ring adorns the slender hand of Miss Judy Beers, the graduation gift of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beers. She is named for her maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. A. Carroll, and her diamond wrist watch was a token from her devoted grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berry and Miss Kate Carroll gave their niece a silver set for her dressing table as a reminder of the day she graduated. Her paternal grandmother, Mrs. S. G. Beers, expressed her affection in a jade necklace and bracelet.

Miss Ellen Fleming was the recipient of a diamond wrist watch from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fleming, and Miss Leone Brooks is the possessor of a diamond wrist watch, the gift of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Brooks. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holcomb presented Miss Margaret Holcomb a diamond and sapphire ring which graces the slender finger of her shapely hand.

Sentiment is embodied in the diamond ring received by Miss Eleanor Terhune, the handsome center stone being encircled by two rows of diamonds. It belonged to her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. W. H. Emory, of Baltimore, for whom Miss Terhune is named, and who specified in her will that the ring be given to her beloved granddaughter upon the day she received her diploma.

A thrilling trip to Annapolis to attend the June week festivities given at the United States Military Academy, was Miss Anne Alston's graduation gift from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Alston. She left Atlanta last Friday, accompanied by her mother, and was among the visiting belles attending the initial hop given Saturday, her escort being Midshipman John Horton, of South Carolina. Before returning to Atlanta, Miss Alston will spend several days in Washington, D. C., as the visit to the national capital is included in the itinerary of the trip.

The diamond dinner-ring being worn by Miss Joyce Smith is treasured by its owner for the sentiment it carries, as well as for its intrinsic value. The jewels were presented to her mother, Mrs. W. R. C. Smith, on the date of the twenty-fourth anniversary of her marriage to Mr. Smith, father of the graduate. For that reason, and because the ring came into her possession as a graduation present from Mr. and Mrs. Smith, the ring is invested with a double meaning to Miss Smith.

Miss Virginia Merry received a trio of lovely gifts from her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Merry, but perhaps the most treasured is a necklace which was presented by her father and mother, the former Miss Nell Weigle, of Augusta, during their courtship days. Encircling the graceful throat of the wearer, the necklace has a distinct place in the affections of the new owner. A huge garnet, encircled by diamonds, forms the intricate setting for a ring which was the property of Miss Merry's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Emily McCarthy Weigle, and it was presented to the former owner by her husband, John M. Weigle. Upon Mrs. Merry's graduation from Tubman high school, in Augusta, she was presented the ring by her mother, Mrs. Weigle, and gave the treasured heirloom into the keeping of Miss Merry upon her graduation. A European trip is the third of the three-fold series of graduation presents, and Miss Merry sails June 23 from New York, aboard the Veendam, of the Holland-American line, for a three-month visit to foreign shores.

Miss Camilla Holland Is Eastern Visitor.

When Marymount College, at Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., holds commencement exercises Wednesday, May 31, Miss Camilla Holland will be among the prominent alumnae present to renew old friendships and to pay a visit to her alma mater. Miss Holland left Atlanta Friday and is visiting Miss Mary Flaherty at her home in Jersey City before going to Marymount. The commencement will be particularly interesting to Miss Holland as her close friend, Miss Anna Blake Morrison, of Atlanta, and Orlando, Fla., will graduate as president of the senior class, bringing to a close a college career in which she has made an unusually splendid record.

Miss Holland will later visit Miss Nan Barry, a former schoolmate, at her home in South Orange, N. J., where she will be extensively entertained. Miss Barry's lovely summer home on the Jersey coast will be the scene of a house party assembling a congenial group of former students at Marymount at which the Atlantans will be present before returning home in two weeks.

Post-Debutantes Make Summer Plans.

With the round of social affairs and other exciting activities which fill a debutante's days, definitely over, members of the 1932-1933 Debutante Club have interesting plans for the summer season. Many of the number have been seized by wanderlust and are planning intriguing trips, while a number have already turned their energies to more serious channels.

The president of the club, Mrs. William Barnett, of Jacksonville, Fla., the former Miss Frances Boykin, is the only bride of the group and her time is filled to overflowing with the task of arranging her gorgeous wedding gifts in her lovely home and keeping house. Mrs. Barnett arrives in Atlanta this week for a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Boykin, and to act as bridesmaid in the marriage of her close friend, Miss Louise Candier, to Alfred Turner Eldredge, of Miami, on June 7.

Throughout the debut season, Miss Scott Meador found time not only to capably fill the office of vice president of the club, but to teach in the kindergarten of Vernon school, held at the home of Mrs. Cam Dorsey. Miss Meador plans to take an additional course in kindergarten work this summer at Columbia University, New York city, and to continue her work along this line in the fall. Miss Emily Walker, who also managed to mix business and pleasure during the past season and who holds a good position, may accompany Miss Meador to New York in June and remain for a week before returning in time to attend a house party at Sea Island Beach, in July.

Miss Nancy Keeler is another particularly ambitious and successful deb, who had a large class of dancing pupils during the entire season. Miss Keeler leaves tomorrow for New York city, where she will study dancing under Chalf for five weeks, and she plans to spend all her week-ends with her friend, Miss Ruth Heidkamp, at her home at White Plains, N. Y. June 30, Miss Keeler will go to Camp Glen-rochie, in Abingdon, Va., where she will spend the remainder of the summer acting as an instructor in dancing and archery.

The wonderful world's fair, in Chicago, Ill., will lure several of the season's deb's. Miss Emily Inglis will leave in July for Bay City, Mich., to be the guest of Miss Neenah Tyler, who was present for Miss Inglis' debut and other parties last fall. These close friends will motor to Chicago to attend the fair and will also spend some time at the Tyler's summer home on Lake Michigan. In June, Miss Inglis will accompany Miss Teresa Hanger to Sea Island Beach to spend two weeks, while Miss Hanger and her mother, Mrs. Herbert Hanger, will remain for the entire summer.

Miss Caroline Selden will also visit the Century of Progress Exposition in July and will visit several friends before returning home. Miss Selden will be a member of the house party at which Miss Janet Mann will entertain at Sea Island Beach, in late June, and in August she plans to have as her guest her cousin, Miss Caroline Roberts, of Utica, N. Y., in addition to other friends. Miss Gertrude Askew, her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Askew, and her younger sister, Miss Mary Askew, will spend two weeks in Chicago, attending the fair, and will visit New York and Canada before returning. The Misses Askew will entertain a number of their out-of-town friends at their Peachtree road residence during the summer and Miss Gertrude Askew will doubtless devote much time to improving her game of golf, her favorite sport.

A series of short trips and visits to near-by cities and resorts will provide diversion for attractive Miss Charlotte King, the debutante's secretary, who plans to find a serious job in the fall, in order to combine more serious interest with her pleasures. Miss Patti Porter, for several weeks has used her excellent taste in clothes in helping others select smart and appropriate costumes at a well-known specialty shop, and for a change of scenery will probably enjoy a trip to Sea Island Beach. Miss Elinor Smith, who has recently returned from a trip to Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia, Pa., insists she also wants a "regular job" for the fall, and she will spend the greater part of the summer at Pine Top, the summer cottage of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. C. Smith, at Lakemont.

Sea Island Beach is undoubtedly the most popular of resorts with the Atlanta debutantes, at least half of whom plan to spend some portion of the summer at this ideal resort. Misses Jean Lucas and Mary Meador Goldsmith will be guests on house parties at Sea Island the first week in June, while Miss Josephine Crawford and her aunt, Mrs. Joseph Rhodes will occupy a cottage at Sea Island in July and may take a cottage at Highlands, N. C., for the month of August. Miss Elizabeth Whitten and her mother, Mrs. James H. Whitten, recently enjoyed a trip to Miami Beach, where they were guests at the Panoast hotel and are now at their cottage on St. Simon's Island, near San Juan. Misses May Latimer and Constance Adams will leave at an early date for St. Simon's Island, where they will spend some time at Sea Marge, the cottage of the latter's mother, Mrs. Albert S. Adams. Incidentally this trio has recently returned from a motor trip to the east where Miss Latimer and Miss Adams attended the dances at Harvard and they returned through the Shenandoah valley.

Miss Mary Adair Howell is in Washington, D. C., where she is attending the reunion of her class at Mount Vernon Seminary and will probably visit Sea Island later in the season, as will Miss Liza Tway, who will visit Miss Rosalind Vereen, at her home in Moultrie, Ga., the early part of the summer. Miss Marion Calhoun, who at present has as her guest attractive Miss Grace Bestor, of Mobile, Ala., will spend the months of July and August at the cottage of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun, at Linville, N. C. Miss Sue Noble will probably enjoy several short jaunts and will take part in the varied activities of an army post at the home of her parents, Colonel Noble and Mrs. Noble, at Fort McPherson. Miss Noble is an expert equestrienne and a devotee of swimming and tennis, and is busily engaged every spare moment in knitting a lovely white boucle suit.

Misses Barbara Lowe, Sue Burnett, and Sally Spalding could not be reached for their plans, but

Trade Mark Registration Applied for

1 WELL, at last Rosalie has agreed to marry Hal. But when her physician heard about her eating the dozen trout, the good doctor threw up his hands. And now Rosalie's maid says, "but mademoiselle will not be able to wear ze size sixteen gown she ordered for ze wedding."

"Applesauce!" scoffs Rosalie, "I'll fix that."

2 AND for a week preceding the date set for the ceremony, pretty Rosalie does her calisthenics with a vengeance. Dumbbells and rowing-machines are worn out by this energetic miss's daily "hundred dozen."

3 THE wedding! A June bride! The fragrance of orange blossoms fill the church. It was a lovely ceremony, everyone agrees. But the sensation of the wedding is the adorable slimness of the bride.

Rosalie wore the white gown she had chosen, wore it like a queen. That week of furious exercising had melted her attractive figure right down to the perfect proportions she had yearned for. In her shy smile is the gleam of triumph. The wedding marks her victory over that old devil avoirdupois.

Of course nobody looks at Hal. Who cares what the bridegroom looks like?

But everybody is happy. Rosalie has reduced and Hal has won the girl he loves. And look how those society column writers from the newspapers flock around the lovely bride. They want to catch every detail of that gown so they can tell their readers all about the impression the young Mrs. Hal, made.

Diana's Diary

If these here lines stagger a little, remember, diary, they're being penned by a very nervous woman. My doom is dizzy, my knees are limp and my liver is calling for its onions or something.

Midnight is almost upon me and I haven't started yet to set my wave for tomorrow, when I have the next heavy date with Michael, the hansom traffic-bull whos picking me up in his free-wheeler with the automatic clutch to take me to Cooney Eyeland.

It'll be our first meal together when I aint serving. It'll be the kick of my young waiters life to SIT whilst Michael knocks off dish after dish and stein after stein of three-dimal-two brew. I hope I wont get aspent minded and start wiping the table or go stick a pencil in my windblown.

Here—2—4, when Michael took me out, it was a short scoot around and back to the door for D. I got to wondering did he maybe have some other jane waiting. But this trip he da-librarily made it clear—

"If you got no tie-up for supper maybe we could munch together over in Cooney and maybe we might tear off a dance or two. You dance, dont you?"

Did I have a tie-up? No, I didnt but if I did I didnt when he ast me. And did I dance? Waitill he sees the cups I copped at Dreamland Paridice. Do I dance? And me who turned down to be a hostess in one of the classiest fast-grinds of this here madropolis. Do I dance? I'll dance that there man de-learyous and then I'll throw it up to him—do I dance? Diary—do I dance? You tell 'em. I've danced a

One Name That Lives

The name of William Morris, which

This year they captured the Texas State fair, where a committee of business men was so impressed that the contract, over which Texas is mighty fussy, was signed before the Morris bunch was in position to specify who or what would be in the nine-day event in Dallas, but the locals accepted the good faith that is jeweled in the name and signed up for a show of the general character with which that trade-mark has always been associated.

And, most rare of all, it is that the good will and tradition of a name should survive the man, himself. Classic ones have been buried with the men who made them—Franklin, Belasco, Savage, even Ziegfeld—but not William Morris. He lived for his name and his name lives for him.

Good Winners

The Democratic party always has been noted for enlisting colorful personalities under its banner. Now, some of the most noted people about town still visit the permanent local headquarters at the Biltmore. Almost any day you may see:

SENATOR WILLIAM (WILD BILL) LYONS. He claims that he was the first white child born in Texas. Later he became a State Senator in Colorado. Reversing, he came East and entered the clothing business and served sporting and theatrical luminaries. He was in the van of the Wilson campaign and rode a white horse in the 1913 inaugural. Loud and uncouth, he is a genial old soul who has so caught the imagination of Jim Farley that the two are inseparable. So he may have his jester with him in Washington, Farley has made Lyons Administrative Assistant to the Postmaster General. Wild Bill usually totes a gun, but at the Capital he was met by the chief of police, who eased it away from him. Lyons, who is independently wealthy, has entertained almost every stage and sport star of any note, mostly in Billy La Hiff's Tavern.

JACK DEMPSEY. Jack is a friend of Wild Bill's and also of former Boxing Commissioner Farley. At least three or four times a week he drops proposition into a proposal before the second encore. Do I—well, they're no use in harping on one thing, no madder how radickulous.

Funny the way now Sundays mean everything where up to a few weeks ago they meant only a day off and mostly pretty blue and blah.

Specially since I went Michael-minded then Sundays was wet, when I usent even see him in the eat-it-and-beat-it like on the other days, which want much to me esepst my life. Well, since he took a tumble to what I was all about and ast me out that first time and I seen to it that he never missed a Sundy since, that's the day.

He haent talked turkey yet but I can wait and whats more I'd rather be an old maid and spend a few hours with Michael then marry a king. Anyways Michaels job is steady for life and a pension after he's on the force twenny years and a lot of kings cant say as much. Look at that there Alfonso and that there Lyster. They still wear uniforms but how much sthority have they got? When Michael lifts his right hand the whole world stops.

Sitting beside him in that car I'm on top of the world. Its no disgrace being a waitress these days when most actresses even in unemployd. But at that when strangers look at us I bet they dont imagine I'm a hasherene. My clothes and the way I wear them spells duchess. Michael said so himself and standing on Broadway all day long he should recognize class when he sees class.

And plenty of them dames dont overlook him neither. I spose everybody is nachrally imprest by a cop. But Michael is more then just the law. He's man. Drivers tremble when he looks at them and the women with them tremble when they look at him.

Oh, diary, I'm histerical over that big baby. If I lose him I'll never smile again. But I wont. He ax hooked. He aint one for soft convissation. But I dont think he'd bother if he didnt care. He can grab himself almost any girl he wants, anyways any girl in the beanery. And from the start, he concentrated on me, a one-time man from the first moment he got an eyefull of Diana.

Big men go for little wrens. Well, he's as big as I'm little. Didnt he all me "Hey, shrimp" almost the first time he talked to me? He thinks I'm dumb. I try to keep him thinking so. Thats what men crave, women diffrent from theirelf. He's big and smart.

He Named a Ballplayer. But She Traveled 6,000 Miles to Make Ex-Hubby Pay

The Judge Scored a Double Play As An Error, So Her Home Run Won—$250 a Month for Life

AFTER—Eleanor Brent Poole as She Looked When She Stepped from the Train After Her Long Journey to Collect Her Alimony.

THIS divorcee traveled more than 6,000 miles by boat and train to raise hob with her ex-hubby because he didn't pay his alimony, and she got her money—with interest.

That's Mrs. Eleanor Brent Poole's story, and we could let it go at that if there weren't so many other interesting things about it. For instance, the former Mrs. Poole was a Des Moines, Iowa, actress (she sometimes played Shakespearean roles) and her husband was a wealthy man-about-town in the Iowa metropolis. They were once called an "ideal couple."

This "ideal couple" put on a court fight recently which alternately shocked and amused Des Moines citizens for several days. The name of the one-time leading pitcher of the Des Moines baseball club flitted through the records, and there was a long and legally profound argument over how big, or how little, a "love seat" could be and still be called a love seat.

And, of course, as in most litigation of this kind, there was bound to be some spicy testimony concerning matrimonial cheating, and—but let's start at the beginning.

It all began in New York City in June, 1923, when Henry M. Poole, the handsome coal dealer, and Eleanor Brent, the beautiful actress, were married. Or perhaps it would be better to say it all began a few weeks earlier when Coal Dealer Poole began his whirlwind courtship.

The then new Mrs. Poole had been married once before, when she was a mere slip of a girl, but those nuptials were annulled in Toledo, O., years before. It was Coal Dealer Poole's first venture. They went back to Des Moines and settled in a fine home. Wealthy and likable, the Pooles took an important part in the city's social activities. Acquaintances pronounced them the "ideal married couple."

This "ideal" state lasted for five years, until the Summer of 1928. Then their friends became aware of a split. They still lived in their fine house but, in Mrs. Poole's words, their "bread and butter was the only thing they had in common."

BEFORE—Beautiful Young Eleanor Brent; This Is How She Looked When She Was Playing at a Des Moines Theatre, and Keeping Company with Her Future Husband.

Three days after the decree was signed, the former Mrs. Poole shook the Iowa dust from her heels and set out to sail for Egypt, to visit friends. Later she went to Italy. "When I reached Rome," Mrs. Poole said, "I became very ill and spinal meningitis developed. For two years I battled the illness, and finally went to the Tyrol Mountains to convalesce. I had to learn to walk all over again. The huge expense of this illness exhausted all my resources except the $250 a month.

"Then last July the payments stopped. I wrote and cabled, and finally heard from Mr. Poole that 'the gratuities had ceased.' I was soon destitute."

BATTER UP! "Smiling" Leo Moon, Popular Des Moines Pitcher, Snapped on the Diamond.

Husband Henry wanted the divorce, it was testified, and "to wash his soiled linen in private," he admitted later, he signed an agreement in September, 1928, to pay his wife $3,000 in cash and $250 a month for the rest of her life, if she would not contest the divorce. She didn't.

HE MUST PAY Coal Dealer Henry M. Poole (center) Refused to Pese for Photographers, But the Candid Camera Caught Him While Listening to His Ex-Wife's Testimony in Court.

She borrowed funds from friends, the ex-Mrs. Poole said, and set out to jaunt a quarter of the way around the world to get back to Des Moines. She immediately started suit against her former hubby for breach of contract.

Five different witnesses testified for Coal Dealer Poole that they had seen his former wife, before their divorce, in company with Leo Moon, the baseball player. Poole claimed she had been carrying-on with Moon, and therefore, there could not be a breach of contract because the contract was made under fraud.

His ex-wife admitted she might have been seen with Moon, but certainly never alone with him. The pitcher was a friend of her girl-friend, the former Mrs. Poole testified, and the girl friend was always present when she had seen Moon. Eleanor made an elaborate denial of a hotel bellboy's testimony that he had seen Moon and Mrs. Poole alone in a hotel room, and that sometimes they "pushed and knocked each other around and cursed each other."

One of the coal dealer's witnesses testified he had seen the then Mrs. Poole reclining on a "small settee or love seat" in the solarium of the Poole residence, while an unidentified man was seated on the edge. Eleanor testified that a love seat easily could accommodate two persons. This came in for considerable argument between counsel.

After all the testimony was in, the court directed a verdict in favor of Eleanor. Instead of greeting this assurance that she would get $250 every month as long as she lives, with cheers, Eleanor burst into tears, and was led weeping from the courtroom. The coal dealer termed the verdict "an outrage," but he had to dig down and pay up, and from now on apparently he'll have to pay, and pay, and pay, even though he has married again.

When she had regained her composure, the former Mrs. Poole smiled at reporters and said: "This is not alimony. It is just money due me on a contract."

the COUGAR

a bloodthirsty coward

By John A. Menaugh

WITH a sinewy body built for fighting and engined for wanton destruction, with a burst of speed equal to that of the fleetest greyhound, with the ability to climb trees with greater ease than any of the other great cats, with an insatiable appetite for blood, and with a scream that carries far and wide and terrifies all within its range, the cougar easily could be mistaken, and has been mistaken, for the most ferocious of beasts. Yet the cougar is a craven creature, a fleeing coward that seldom gives battle even when cornered. It preys on defenseless animals, such as deer, sheep, calves, and colts, and annually takes a heavy toll from the ranches of the western, mountain states.

The cougar goes under many names. In the northwestern part of the United States it generally is referred to as the cougar. In the southwest and down through Mexico, Central America, and South America it is best known as the puma. In the Rocky mountain regions it is commonly called the mountain lion; and in the eastern states, where it once was quite common, it was given the old world name of panther. This last name the early pioneers corrupted to "painter." The cougar also is referred to often as the catamount.

The range of the cougar is as great as or greater than that of any of the other members of the family Felis. It is found as far north as upper British Columbia and as far south as Patagonia. It ranges throughout the western mountains and is found in the canebrakes of Mississippi and the tangled jungles of Florida. Once it inhabited every state of the Union, but now it has been exterminated in all but the comparatively inaccessible regions.

It is a big cat, taller and lengthier than its more formidable cousin of Central and South America, the spotted jaguar. The adult cougar is of a brownish drab color, though its kittens are spotted during the first few months of their lives, the spots gradually disappearing as the animals approach maturity. A full grown cougar often measures eight feet or more from head to the tip of the tail, which is long and heavy. Male cougars weigh as much as 225 pounds. The body of the beast is tall and flat sided, and the head is small. The creatures inhabit dens in the rocks, range over wide territory, and climb trees with the agility of the common house cat.

Much has been written about the ferocity of the cougar. The folk tales of early America are full of terrifying narratives in which the cougar has the role of man-killer. Hardly a native grandfathers is alive today who does not remember hearing his parents or grandparents tell of some ghastly deed committed by a cougar. In fact, the great American cat has been given a reputation almost as bad as that of the tiger or the leopard. He has been pictured as a relentless hunter of men, whereas he actually fears men more than anything else in the world. A well known naturalist said recently that he considered the cougar far less dangerous than a savage dog. Not many years ago a group of naturalists made a complete survey of the country in an effort to check upon the accuracy of all of the stories told about cougars attacking man. After long investigation the survey brought out just one single case of a human having been attacked and devoured by a cougar. Out in one of the mountainous states of the northwest a cougar a few years ago attacked and killed a small boy and fed upon its kill. The animal, a young male, later was killed. In another instance a cougar leaped upon a man who was carrying a slain deer on his back. When the cougar discovered a man under the carcass of the deer it fled in a panic.

Cougar hunters in Arizona, New Mexico, California, and the northwest have little fear of the animal. They kill hundreds of cougars annually in order to cut down the depredations of the beasts among the flocks and herds, and they hunt the cougars with packs of mongrel dogs especially trained for scenting and pursuit. When the cougar is hard pressed by the dogs he takes to a tree. The hunter then shoots the beast down from the branches of the tree, or climbs up close enough to the big cat to cast a noose about its neck and drag it to earth. John B. Goff, a famous cougar hunter, who has killed hundreds of the animals, said that only two ever showed enough courage to attempt to fight back.

The curiosity of the cougar apparently has been mistaken for ferocity. It is known that the cougar often will trail a man who is tramping alone through the woods. Though the man never catches sight of his feline shadow, the fact has been established often through the finding of the animal's tracks in the snow, parallel to and slightly to one side of those of the man. In that respect the cougar is much like the Canadian lynx, which also is known to follow man simply out of curiosity.

The cougar usually is a silent beast, but on rare occasions it cries at night, and it is that terrifying cry that has helped to give the creature its bad name. Those who have heard the scream of the animal say it closely resembles the cry of a woman in extreme fright or physical pain. Naturalists explain the wail of the cougar as nothing more than the squalling of a cat on a back yard fence, though much louder and pitched in a key quite apart from the hunting or mating calls of any other animals.

Cougars, when captured young, grow up to be tractable pets, though members of the species taken from their wild state when full grown are difficult to tame.

Wild Week-Ends of West Point Cadets in a Season

TODAY: Exclusive Revelations About Girls Who Pay the Soldiers' Bills and A the Army"; With Candid P the Determined N

DORMITORY PET
Edith Nassella, 17, of Philadelphia, Who Spent Several Lively Days in a Boys' Dormitory at Yale Before She Was Found Out and Sent to a Home for Wayward Girls.

By Reed Harris,

Former Editor, Columbia University Spectator, Student Newspaper.

WHEN I was writing editorials for the Columbia Daily Spectator, I said what I thought, without compromise—and got tossed into the street for my trouble. In writing this series, I am saying what I think again—but this time there is no axe hanging over my head. The comments I make here on the college situation represent what I think, after a year on the outside.

Hypocrites plague the colleges today more than ever. Nearly every college president or dean spends his time saying one thing and doing another. But the attitude shown by these administrators on the liquor question has been the rankest hypocrisy of all. Deans have been known to publish a ban on all college drinking and then slip off to a neighboring town and drink themselves into the pink elephant stage. Alumni presidents of fraternities have demanded anti-drinking rules in the fraternity houses used by undergraduates, only to keep their own cellars well stocked.

The result has been a wave of drinking the like of which was never seen on any campus before prohibition. And, amazing as it may seem, the students nearest to the government itself—the cadets of West Point and the midshipmen of Annapolis—have flouted the anti-liquor rules with vigor. They have made use of cities near their academies to stage wild week-ends in company with gallons of alcohol and bevy of beautiful girls.

Drinking among certain sets on New York campuses has been known to outdo even the service academy week-ends, being staged nightly instead of merely on Saturdays and Sundays.

News has come over the wires almost daily giving stories of arrests of students working their way through college by bootlegging, of raids and padlockings of prominent fraternity houses and dormitories, and of student papers yelling their heads off against the Prohibition Law.

Students no longer put up with iron-bound rules of any kind—and anti-drinking rules, even though they have been set up to conform with a constitutional amendment—are no exception.

Colleagues just graduated (or just bounced) and students still in college, have been responsible for intensive drives in many parts of the country to air their views on prohibition, and many college newspapers and magazines have editorially demanded immediate repeal of the prohibition amendment.

Of course, it is no more plausible to make the flat statement that all college students are opposed to prohibition any more than it is to say that all citizens of all States are opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment. However, the frank student attitude on college drinking, and the stand taken by the students, no matter whether for or against prohibition, indicates what observers call the beginning of a new political force. Students in Spain, Germany and Cuba already play a considerable part in the political thought of their countries, and the United States can expect the same, in the near future, or I am horribly mistaken.

THE LIBERAL UNIVERSITY

Columbia Student Striker Marching in Protest Over Expulsion of Reed Harris. Note Her Determined Expression.

Edgar Gosney, Hired to Teach Defiance College Students to Sing, Was Fired Because They Sang Too Much.

A GENERAL student revolt, or no revolt, there is one college in the country, and a most famous one, too, just an hour-and-a-half's train ride from New York City, where a revolt is unheard of, indeed impossible. It is the United States Military Academy, at West Point.

But even though the 1,374 cadets there are getting their schooling under oath and under rigid army regulations which must be adhered to, they out loose just the same as their brothers and sisters on other campuses. Nothing has ever been published heretofore about the gala New York and West Point week-ends of the "cadets" and their girl friends. In fact, they are rarely even mentioned, but they have gone on just the same year after year.

Last week there appeared on these pages the first installment of this nation-wide survey which is undertaken by this newspaper to paint the true picture of the simultaneous, yet unrelated, student revolt against the censorship of college morals which is sweeping the land.

There were engrossing details last week of a two-fisted Columbia student fight in New York City to get the ban lifted on girls visiting boys in their dormitory rooms; also a graphic account of how Simpson College, Iowa, students egged their college president because he wouldn't let them dance.

And now about these cadet week-ends. The writer hastens to say that the following, of course, does not apply to all cadets at the academy. Many young men there, like serious young men on other campuses, care nothing for social activities. But some of the cadets go in for "dates" and parties, and it is about them that this is written.

Members of the cadet corps, like students in all colleges, have their "college widows." There is a clique of girls in New York City, some of them wealthy society girls who drive their own snappy sports roadsters, some of them working girls of modest means, and a few of them show girls, who, year after year, have remained "True to the Cadet Corps."

These girls, week-end after week-end, pay their own expenses to the academy to attend the proms and affairs there. Frequently they pay their cadet boy-friends' expenses, too, and some of them have to scrimp and save to do it. On other week-ends of the year these same girls attend the parties thrown on Broadway when their student soldiers obtain week-end leaves.

WHAT! NO BOYS?
Defiance College, Ohio, "Prexy" Ruled Boys and Girls Couldn't Ride in the Same Auto, So Students Staged a "Singing Protest," and Embarked on a Joyride Like This.

These girls are known as the "drags" of the Pointers. It is rare indeed that any of them ever marries a cadet; when the boy-friend is sent out to an army post, his "drag" becomes the "drag" of another and younger cadet and continues the regular week-end ritual. They are "True to the Cadet Corps"—all of it.

Naturally, after spending week-ends together month after month, the girls become well acquainted, and they have what almost might be described as a sorority, with luncheon and dinner

"She'll be coming 'round the mountain"

"dates" together, in between week-ends. Their rooms are hung with pictures of West Point scenes and men. They usually have no other romantic attachments or interests.

It is so generalized that it is has become a case of all for one and one for all. The girls pool their resources, and their clothes, and the Pointers pool their funds. Millionaire Smith's cadet son may have just received a check for $200, while Farmer Jones' cadet son has only $2. It makes no difference, all the funds are pooled, and fancy clothes and private splurges are decided out of order. A girl who "makes a splash" is frowned on.

This standardization is most apparent, perhaps, in the Broadway week-ends. The Pointers for generations, have always registered at the

IN THE following article, fourth of a series, "Rojo" ("Red") Leonard, an adventurous, roving young American, who has been investigating conditions along the Mexican border, exposes for the first time in its entirety the motor car "snatch racket," as it flourishes beyond the Rio Grande.

His little Mexican sweetheart, Chita, who knows the border as she does the palm of her soft hand, also concludes relating to him the story of the dramatic capture of a notorious drug smuggler by Customs Officers, which was begun in last week's stirring article in this series.

By "Rojo" Leonard

CHITA'S eyes flashed blue fire. "If there is one of my country's rackets that I despise more than another," she almost shouted, "it is the stealing of automobiles."

"You two"—she indicated Linda and me—"must have some notion of how it is worked in Juarez and other cities. I doubt if there's ever been an American motorist to enter Mexico in a car without being accosted by some street urchin with the plea:

"Watch your car, Mister?"

"The dilemma thus presented is twofold. If the motorist refuses, he is made aware that when he absents himself from his car, the rapacious youngster is apt to strip it of everything of value.

"If he accepts the offer, he may fare just as badly, for nine chances to one the gamin may be in the hire of a motor-car snatching gang, and if so it's good-bye automobile."

Linda leaned forward interestedly. Said she: "Tell me: to what do you attribute the sudden increase in crime in your country?"

Chita replied instantly and emphatically: "To hard times and the return of thousands of former expatriates living in the United States. These unfortunate people are rolling in to Mexico in literal droves. Formerly they lived in California and other western States. But with the arrival of the depression conditions forced them to return.

"And under pressure of poverty many otherwise worthy persons find themselves turning to crime, especially to theft."

Remembering many similar cases in the States, I reflected that it was all deplorably true.

boys and girls. Indeed, most everyone is familiar with the high-jinks of college youth. The cadets and midshipmen are only free from school regulations on occasional week-ends, so they pack a lot of action into a couple of days. Young people on other campuses, and particularly in the large centers like New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, can, and often do, hold their drinking bouts almost every night in the week.

As for the part the co-eds take in all this, it is only necessary to consider the remarks some time ago of Dr. Charles J. Smith, president of Roanoke College, Virginia. In addressing a meeting of the National Lutheran Educational conference, in New York City, he said:

"Some women in every age drink liquor. But the world has never known the turning-loose of such an army of hard drinking, cigarette-puffing, licentious amazons as walk the streets and invade college campuses today.

"They appear attired scantily in clothing, but abundantly in paint, with a bottle of liquor in the handbag. Their dancing is as voluptuous as possible, to make them appear popular, and they call for frequent intermissions to quench their thirst from the bottle."

There are many examples of student resentment against drinking curbs. One of the most outstanding, strangely enough, also comes from

"NOW, HENRY!"

Yet here in Mexico the situation seemed more focused, more concrete, somehow more desperately bitter.

Of course, I realize that the motor-car snatch racket to which little Chita had referred was just one phase of the whole appalling situation. Yet the fact remained that, according to actual statistics, at least three hundred automobiles were stolen last year and smuggled, as you might say, into Juarez, from where they were driven into the interior and sold.

According to El Paso police, with whom I chatted informally, there is no substantial way of establishing exactly how many motor cars are stolen in other States and handed over to the Juarez gang.

These racketeers, Chita informed Linda and me, operate on a big scale. They maintain a string of garages where cars are repainted and otherwise altered beyond casual recognition.

The gang is so firmly entrenched that it is rapidly becoming the despair of the authorities on both sides of the border. Indeed, my good friend, Sheriff Chris P. Fox, of El Paso, has announced that unless conditions mend rapidly he will appeal to Washington in an effort to get closer cooperation with the Mexican federal government to stamp out the menace of the Juarez gang.

"But tell us, really"—it was the alert Linda addressing the vivacious Mexican girl—"tell us what happened to you when they took you for a ride, and how in the world did you escape?"

It was a long, excited, and rather rambling account, which I shall condense here for the sake of clarity. It seems that pretty little Chita had a distant cousin who, much to her disgust, was a "front cover man" for the auto snatch gang.

She rarely encountered him, but on the occasion to which she referred she ran into him on the street and he invited her to take a ride in his "brand new" car. Rather than insult the man, who was possessed of a savage temper, she accepted.

"We were driving through the suburbs," Chita explained, "when to my horror that beast"—here she spat in delicate defiance—"that bad man began to make love to me." In the ensuing struggle—and Mexican girls can put up a stiff battle—the car toppled into a ditch and the girl's repulsive kinsman received a nasty wound in the forehead.

Very wisely Chita took to her heels. "And I'm sure it was a 'hot' car," she wound up breathlessly.

Then, with eyes still shining, she told me of the capture of George T., a notorious drug smuggler, and the ending of his bad activities.

"You remember Customs Officer Lane, yes? Bueno!

Virginia, where Dr. Smith hailed from. Members of Delta Tau Delta, one of the leading fraternities at the University of Virginia, revolted and absolutely refused to cooperate with university authorities to stop drinking.

That this feeling abounds not only in the South is indicated in reports from campuses all over the country. At the University of Michigan and the University of Illinois, two of the proudest and largest mid-western institutions, fraternity houses were raided for liquor law violations.

At Michigan five fraternities were padlocked and their members forced to seek quarters elsewhere, following a sensational police clean-up on the eve of the "J-Hop," biggest campus prom of the year. Also at Michigan a student dormitory was closed, and eighty students evicted, when police found it the headquarters for a large ring of student bootleggers.

And so the liquor guzzling goes on. Many campus leaders proclaim that repeal of prohibition and the advent of beer will bring a new student attitude. The heavy drinking is most common in the larger universities, educators say, although there is plenty of it at the small colleges, too. Students of the freshwater schools, however, usually have other battles to fight with the faculty.

At Defiance College, Ohio, the approximately 200 students waged a bitter but amusing fight against the rules established by Dr. Vernon W. Lytle, the college president. It had nothing to do with drinking. The Prexy first ruled co-eds could not ride in autos with boys students.

This regulation was booed by the students, and then Dr. Lytle ruled the co-eds could have but one "date" a week. Handy fire-escapes made breaking this restriction easy, so Dr. Lytle announced that no student, boys included, could even go to a movie without written permission.

This was the last straw. The boys gathered in their dormitory on one side of the campus and sang their favorite songs. Across the campus the girls in their dormitories harmonized verses of the same song. But they absolutely refused to sing in chapel. Finally Dr. Lytle, presumably thoroughly disgusted, resigned, and the students chalked up a victory in their revolt.

Leading educators are at a loss to explain, just exactly, what has come over the students; what has provoked this new youth movement. Many of them, however, believe it is a result of the age. The "New Deal" clamored for in government and business has hit the college campuses, and the students are clamoring for a "New Deal" in their affairs.

SECKTAR HAWKINS AND HIS FAIR and SQUARE CLUB

THE OLD THEATER.

(Seck Hawkins is once more helping Detective Jeckerson solve a mystery. The Fong Shu has threatened vengeance upon them for sending four of his sons to prison. Sam Kwong, a poor old laundryman, entrusted with the task of taking back the famous Emperor's sword to his shrine in China, returns with the sword, saying he was unable to gain entrance into China because of the war. Hawkins and Jeckerson take the sword and the sword to Su Chow Ming, who welcomes Sam Kwong and tells him to rest in the guest room. Then Su Chow tells Seck and Jeckerson they have not brought him the real Emperor's sword, but the real sword is in a safe in his room; but when he opens the safe, he discovers that some one has cut through the wall and stolen the precious sword. Sam Kwong also is missing.)

JECKERSON pushed aside the Chinese servant and strode out into the little corridor. I was right at his heels. For I knew his methods well enough by this time to know what to expect. He was going to examine the room in which the old laundryman had been put to bed, and from which the sword had been stolen, and the old Stormie, the Great Dane, trotted along with Su Chow Ming and his Chinese servant followed us into the guest room.

The bed had not been slept in; had not been touched, in fact, except for the slight indentation on the fancy silk pillow cover, where our enemy had pinned the taunting note. There was one bit of evidence, however, and that was the hole in the wall, skillfully made, through which the unknown thief had taken the famous weapon of the ancient Mings. Upon the floor, directly beneath this hole in the wall lay a bit of white, powdery substance.

"Clever fellow, he was," said Jeckerson, as we stood looking down at this white dust. "I knew how to remove the portion of plaster and lath without leaving much trace. He did not have time to sweep up the dust, however. Who was it, Su Chow?"

"I know nothing of him," said the kindly old Chinaman, with a hopeless smile. "I am overcome by the suddenness of it, honorable Jeckerson. As yet I am as one in dream—later perhaps I find tongue to repeat what my now useless brain will reason—"

"Snap into it, Hawkins!" said Jeckerson, suddenly. "Get everything that's in this room! We must find something to give us a clue to that fellow—"

"Yes, we've got to find that sword—"

"Forget the sword!" snapped Jeckerson, impatiently. "It's Sam Kwong I'm thinking of—we've got to save him, Hawkins—"

"You mean—"

"I mean they'll torture the life out of him if we don't get to him soon. Here, Su Chow, answer a few questions, will you?"

"With very great pleasure and humility!" quickly answered the old Chinaman, bowing slightly, his arms folded, his hands hidden in the sleeves of his gown. "What can I tell that the great Jeckerson knows not already—"

"Tell me about your arch-enemy, the Fong Shu," said Jeckerson, quickly. "Yes, I know he is back here in America again. How many helpers has he brought along with him?"

"Ample number," said Su Chow, with a smile. "Always Fong Shu has plenty help. Most fearful person, is Fong Shu. Since four sons of his have met misfortune to fall into American prison, Fong Shu vow vengeance and put forth all effort to free same sons, same being Mui Fong, Wui Fong, Lui Fong and Shui—"

"Yes, yes, I know all that, Su Chow, but the Fong Shu is old. He cannot himself expect to release these imprisoned sons—"

"No, not But Fong Shu have seven sons. Three not yet in prison. Same have come with honorable father to do his bidding. Already my spies have reported this information—"

"Where is their headquarters, Su Chow?" broke in Jeckerson.

"That is what I hoped you would find for me, honorable Jeckerson," answered Su Chow. "For the once in my lifetime I find Su Chow no match for wits old Fong Shu. He is great magician, old Fong Shu. He do terrible things—no one can understand. Unless you help now, O honorable Jeckerson, it shall be great day of sorrow for me, and I no longer shall be conciliator for all China."

For a few moments there was silence. The kind face of the old Chinaman, now wrinkled in a state of utmost concern, was turned up to the great detective as though he were pleading for his life. Jeckerson, however, walked away from him; stood by the fireplace a few seconds while he drew from his pocket a long, thin, black cigar, the end of which he bit off savagely and threw upon the hearth. He struck a match and lit the cigar; then slowly turned to Su Chow Ming.

"What are the names of the three sons of Fong Shu who are still at liberty?" he asked.

"Mui Fong was the eldest," answered Su Chow, slowly. "Him you sent to prison first. Then Wui was sent to free Mui, but also fell into your net, O honorable Jeckerson. Lui went likewise, and then Shui, who was smart, and his father's eye-apple, walked into your trap. O honorable Jeckerson, you are Great Fox of all foxes! Your eye looks out, across the heavens and sees the tiniest star in the great distance! Your mind thinks twice as fast as lightning in places where—"

"Cut out the compliments!" snapped Jeckerson. "This is no time for that, Su Chow. Answer my question—who are the other three remaining sons of Fong Shu? It will help me to know that."

"Tui Fong is the fifth son; he is a great doctor and knows many medicines. Yui Fong is the sixth; he is a merchant by trade, but a bandit by inclination. And then there is Hui—ah! that is the one on whom the great Fong Shu's heart does most. The youngest great wielder of the famous Emperor's sword—"

"Explain that, Su Chow, please!" broke in Jeckerson.

"It was Hung Wu who first swung the great sword in battle, six centuries ago! From him dated a long line of kings and emperors. To each one the famous Emperor's Sword was handed down. Yes, even the Fong Shu believed that whoever could swing the Emperor's sword would one day be ruler of the whole world. That is the story, O honorable Jeckerson. 'I picked spies have reported to me that the Fong Shu has devoted his life to this end—that his youngest son shall one day be ruler not alone of all China, but of all the world!'

"Well, now that the Fong Shu's spies have found the Emperor's sword, and have it in their possession, all that we will have to do is to wait and see whether or not the sword will make one ruler of the world."

"Hail!" cried out old Su Chow Ming. "No, no! We must not wait, O honorable Jeckerson. We must act quickly, if we do not want this to happen—"

"What!" exclaimed Jeckerson, in amazement. "You expect me to believe you think all this tommyrot to be true—"

"You do not know Chinese people!" answered Su Chow. "You must not let them have that sword, O honorable Jeckerson! Unless you want disaster to befall the world, must help me—"

"You must not let Hui Fong have it in his hands—his honorable father loves him as I would love my own son, had I one—"

"All right, Su Chow!" sang out Jeckerson, as he turned to me. "Hawkins, you heard that, didn't you? Do you want to take a chance on Hui Fong being the ruler of the whole world—"

"Not if he is like his father, the Fong Shu!" I said, quickly and with meaning, as I shook my head.

"All right, then," said Jeckerson. "We've got to act quickly. First thing we've got to do is to get back the sword, if we can—"

"I thought you said we ought to find Sam Kwong first," I put in, raising my eyebrows a trifle.

"Same thing!" snapped Jeckerson. "Wherever the sword is, there we will find Sam Kwong. If we could only find a clue—"

"Hail!" came a cry from outside. "Hail! O honorable uncle! Look! Look what have I found—"

"Come in, come in, O Sheep's Head of a nephew!" called Su Chow in a shrill voice, as he turned toward the doorway. And then, turning back to us: "It is Wu Chan—he is smart boy—but I refrain from praising him in moments of excitement." He turned swiftly as the door opened, admitting Wu Chan, whom we had met on former occasions and knew to be an energetic, ambitious Chinese youth. "Hail! What have you, Wu Chan?"

"A slipper!" answered the Chinese youth, holding it out to the old conciliator, his uncle. "Found same at four paces from back doorway leading out to alleyway. Doorway locked on outside. No can understand. Same one who lose slipper no go out alleyway door. Same must be still in house."

"Hand me that slipper, please," came Jeckerson's droning voice from behind a cloud of smoke that fumed from that long thin cigar between his teeth.

The footman was handed to the detective. He looked at it closely. Then, stooping, he held it for me to see. Inside was the word "Property Room" and a big letter "I," and beneath it the words "Scene 2."

"What do you make of it, Hawkins?" asked Jeckerson, softly.

"I don't know," I said, my voice shaking and low. "I don't know—I never saw such a thing—I'm sure, Jeckerson."

"You're not yourself, Hawkins," said Jeckerson, gently, as my big dog, Stormie, the Great Dane, came nosing between us, and showed his broad muzzle up to the hand that held the slipper, and you're not thinking clearly, either."

"Get away, Stormie!" I snapped, as the dog shoved against my side, his nose still scenting the slipper, "get away from me, will you, until I call you."

The big dog obeyed me with reluctance. And then I was sorry I had talked to him so. I had just determined to call him back. He was going into the dark shadows beyond us as though what I had said had hurt him, and gosh! I felt sorry. But Jeckerson's voice—"If you would come out of that trance, Hawkins," he was saying.

"All right, Jeckerson," I said. "What do you want me to do?"

"Think, boy, think! Look at this slipper! Look at what's printed inside—Property Room, I. Scene 2—what does that remind you of, Hawkins?"

"I don't know," I said, "honest, cross my heart, Jeckerson, right now I'm too excited to think. For goodness sake, give me time, won't you? Get me out of here—let me sit in my writing room, in our clubhouse down on the old river bank, for a few minutes—and let me think it all over—and then ask me, and I'll give you an answer."

Suddenly there came the distant barking of the dog! Stormie! It was Stormie, the Great Dane! The huge dog was calling! By Jinks, I could understand his language that well by this time, anyway. Stormie was calling—

"I'm coming, Stormie!" I yelled, loudly. "I'm coming, old fellow—"

Jeckerson was right at my heels as I ran. We turned to the right end of the corridor, his paw upon something on the floor, his muzzle turned upward as he barked again that come-on call. We raced up to him and Jeckerson's light showed us what it was that Stormie had found, and for which he had called us. He continued to bark as we reached him, and only when I patted his head and stooped down to take the object from beneath his huge paw did he agree to silence.

"What is it, Hawkins?" asked

Jeckerson, turning his light upon me. And I showed him the object that the dog had found. "A slipper! 'nother slipper, Su Chow! Look! The mate to the one we found in the guest room—hold on, there, Hawkins—what's that my light shows us in front of Stormie—"

"A door!" I cried.

"Let's open it!" cried Jeckerson, excitedly. "Come on, boys, let's all pull together—"

There were five of us tugging at that door—Jeckerson, Su Chow, Ho Nan Sing, Wu Chan and I—we pulled and struggled, and it was all we could do to budge the heavy door—but we finally managed to swing it open, and then all of us shoved forward and looked into—

"It's a theater!" exclaimed Jeckerson, in a voice that betrayed his amazement. "Look, boys! An abandoned theater—by Jove! I remember that stage! I saw many great plays upon it when I was a boy—but it's been abandoned for 25 years or more—"

"Down there, Jeckerson," I said, slowly, "that abandoned theater, somewhere, we will find the Emperor's sword. Or, if not the sword, then we shall find a surprise!"

Which we did.

your letter will win a book. Remember, the more letter writing you do the more proficient you become, and it will help you when you grow up.

Every week we get new pen pals who are just finding out about our club, and the books we give each week for the best letters. If any of your friends want to join the club, tell them to fill out the membership blank and send it in. It's a lot of fun, and besides, every boy and girl likes to have pen pals.

The meeting will now come to order. Imagine yourself sitting in one great assembly hall whose roof is the sky and whose rows of chairs are the many states in our great country. Imagine yourself sitting next to members coming from coast to coast, and many even from foreign countries, who are attending the meeting we are holding on this page, and waiting to hear the names of this week's winners. The first one comes from a little girl down in dear old Georgia.

I am a little girl nine years old. Our school closed last Friday, and I was promoted to the fifth grade. I have two brothers and one sister. We enjoy reading your page, although we have missed it all this year. But the month of April our good luck month, for on April 10 our daddy subscribed for the paper, and on April 27 and 28 my brothers had birthday parties.

I live on a farm and think it's the place to live. I have four little bantam chickens, one duck and two kittens.

I like your motto, "Fair and Square," and I try to be that in everything. Yours, fair and square, HELEN G. FURLEY, 9, R. F. D. 3, Griffin, Ga.

From China comes the following communication, written by a pen pal who is interested in the welfare of our club:

Just a line to say hello and inquire about the welfare of our club, which, I am sure, is going strong. I hope to see this letter appear in print after my two unsuccessful attempts to reach you a year ago.

You readers probably know that the Sino-Japanese War is breaking havoc on China, although many are optimistic that peace will prevail again—soon.

Apart from my routine, life is comparatively lessened here and letters from readers will do much to alleviate the situation; so won't you readers please be a little generous contributing your share towards this end? I thank you all. Closing with kindest regards and fondest remembrance to yourself and readers. Your Chinese reader, FREDIE SANTOS, 13 Mosque Junction, Hong Kong, China.

And now we must adjourn till next week, when we will hold another meeting on this very same spot. Don't forget—send in your letter and don't delay. And remember, if you don't win, don't give up! Always get up and say to yourself: "I'm no quitter. I'll try till I succeed." And then you will.

Bye, till next week. Yours, fair and square, SUE WALDRUP, Hiawasse, Ga.

Dear Seck: I live in a small town near the foot of the Enola Mountain, which is the highest mountain in this state. It is called this name because of its being so high that no tree grows to the top.

I am a girl 15 years of age and will enter Hawkins High school this fall. I enjoy reading very much and always follow your adventures in the paper. I must soon go to the hospital for an appendicitis operation.

Yours, fair and square, SUE WALDRUP, Hiawasse, Ga.

Dear Seck: I am trying to write you a few lines about dear old sunny California. Well, the earthquakes are all over and every one is back to normal again, planning for the summer. As you know, the climate in California is wonderful in winter, and we have what they call rainy season out here before Christmas and then it never rains but very little dry more until next rainy season. Some times it rains every day for a month. Then it is over, and the summers are so pleasant, never too hot.

Los Angeles, Santa Monica, Redondo, and several others just a few minutes drive to spend the evening holidays, also Sundays, just as you like. Then Hollywood so interesting here with its studios and beautiful movie stars, you can spend days and days here just in Hollywood, there is so much to see.

satisfactory evergreen lawn. The major trouble with our lawns in Atlanta comes during the month of August, usually, and preparation for this trying season must go on constantly throughout the remainder of the year. A careful feeding of the lawn before that time of the year and the addition of the proper amount of humus to the soil will assist the grass in going through this trying period.

The best method of humus that may be obtained commercially is that product known as peat moss. Peat moss is decayed vegetable matter that has been arrested in this decay by the presence of pressure. Peat moss is absolutely free of weed or grass seeds and also free from all kinds of disease spores. Its greatest value lies in its ability to hold moisture and improve the mechanical condition of the soil. One pound of peat moss will absorb and hold seven pounds of water.

The best method of applying peat moss is by spreading it as a very thin layer over the entire lawn. After this has been done it may be worked into the soil lightly with a rake and rolled thoroughly. The grass will readily grow through this light porous material and it will incorporate itself with the soil in a natural way.

Mowing and weeding the lawn is always important. Mowing should be done at short intervals. The mowing tends to promote root growth, and at the same time causes the grass to spread. This is particularly true of Bermuda grass, although it is also true of other grasses.

There are certain fertilizers that are claimed to discourage weeding, but at the same time they cause the grass to grow. The old-fashioned, backbreaking weeding by hand is hard to beat for effectiveness. With the proper tool, a long handled, small hoe, the job is not as bad as it is painted, and these tools certainly save many a backache. After the patches of weeds have been removed, sow a handful of grass seeds in the barren spot.

Free for Asthma

If you suffer with attacks of Asthma so terrible you choke and gasp for breath, if restful sleep is impossible because of the struggle to breathe, if you feel the disease is slowly wearing your life away, don't let it send at once to the Frontier Asthma Co. for a free trial of a remarkable method.

No matter how severe your asthma, you have any faith in any remedy under the Sun, send for this free trial. If you have suffered a lifetime and tried everything, you could learn of without relief, even if you are utterly discouraged, do not abandon hope but send today for this free trial. It will cost you nothing. Address: Frontier Asthma Co., 3425 Trenton Road, 648 Niagara St., Buffalo, N. Y. (adv.)

scenery is just magnificent. Words are inadequate to express what I think this dear state of ours. Well, Seck, I write you a letter about the earthquake, also asking the dear boys and girls to be my pen pals that have members in your club, and I would send them some earthquake scenes. I only received two or three letters, so maybe they prefer some other scenes of California, or some movie stars' home, scenes in Hollywood. If you ask them to write me and I will send them some other pictures. I hope you all can come to this dear state soon to place a blade in the 10th grade now. With the best of wishes to you and all the members.

MILDRED JOYCE, 13, 4282 Woodlawn Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.

Dear Seck: I wrote you not so long ago and I noticed your letter on the page, but I am not satisfied with that. I am not going to quit writing until I have won all ten books, but I haven't won one yet.

I correspond with the Misses of Alabama, and also Mildred Joyce, of California.

Our school was out on May 24. I surely am glad because I will get to go in swimming, plenty.

My Sunday school class and another one went to Warm Springs on a picnic last week. I went in swimming for the first time this year. On our way back we saw "The Little White House." I promise to answer all letters I receive.

Yours, fair and square, VIVIAN MILNER, 13, Concord, Ga.

Dear Seck: Where I go to school there are two creeks. One has an old mill that's nearly rotted down. It reminds me of Peck's creek and the old mill. There is an old mill dam that furnishes water to turn the wheel. The creek is named Gun. We boys use the pond to bathe in in summer.

I have a little duck and a drake. You should see them swim. My grand-mother has seven little ducklings. Yours, fair and square, CLOYD J. HANNA, Route 2, Stone Mountain, Ga.

Dear Seck: I have brown hair, grey eyes and dark complexion. We do not go to school. Am very lonely. I am very fond of reading and writing and would like to have some pen pal who will write to me. I will be glad to answer all letters I receive.

I like your motto very much, because if you are fair and square you will never have bad pen pals. I like to hear from you. Yours, fair and square, BIRDE MAE HARRIS, 13, Adairville, Ga.

Dear Seck: I am 13 years old and am in the sixth grade. I like to go to school very much. Am a Boy Scout and like the Boy Scouts. We are going on a camping trip this summer, down to Big Sandy Creek. We are going to stay a week. Tell all the pen pals to write me.

Yours, fair and square, RAY HARRIS, Tifton, Ga.

Dear Seck: I am a boy 11 years of age, am in the sixth grade at school. I weigh 70 pounds. I am raising calves and like the Boy Scouts. I can get a horse at home now. I have one pet dog, his name is Brownie. He is eight years of age. He sure does run rats and rabbits.

I have about half a mile to walk to school. Go to Gay Oakland High school. Yours, fair and square, BENJAMIN JAMES, Gay, Ga.

Dear Seck: Yesterday we went fishing. I caught seven. We were very much as evening when we can help it. I have made me a new work shop, and made two boats. Every Sunday I keep up with your stories.

Yours, fair and square, HURST BOWERS, Cannon, Ga.

Today's Prize.

May 28, 1933.

Dear Seck: I have been sick and out of school three months.

I like to read and swim very much and we have a big lake to swim in.

We live in the mountains in sight of one of Georgia's Seven Wonders, "The Tallulah Gorge." And the foot of "Hickory Nut Mountain."

Many large fish are caught up here, which you were up here to fish with us. I have not been fishing as I am not able, because I have chronic appendicitis.

We have many pretty flowers and birds up here. There are many apple orchards, too. Yours, fair and square, MYRTLE MAE, 13, Tallulah Falls, Ga.

SUMMER CARE OF THE LAWN

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN

"IT'S NOT A HOME UNTIL IT'S PLANTED," and a fresh, velvety garden lawn is just about as necessary to the appearance of the home as paint on the framework. Grass is likewise a protection from erosion, and a blanket for bulbs and for seeds of self-sowing annuals and perennials that greet us each spring, which need protective winter covering. Grass likewise acts as a mulch in summer, makes cooler and fresher atmosphere, delights

WHAT TO DO IN JUNE.

LAWNS: For best results, lawns should have a monthly application of a good, high-grade commercial fertilizer followed by a thorough watering. Patch the bare spots. If you are waiting until fall to start a new lawn, sow the lot with cowpeas.

DAFFODILS: As soon as the tops are completely yellow they may be taken up. This isn't absolutely necessary. Dry them in a cool, shady, well-ventilated place.

PRUNING: Take out all of the dead wood in the shrubbery, also in the roses. This is the proper time to prune the spring flowering shrubs, such as bridal wreath, spirea thibautii, forsythia, Forsythia, quince, flowering peach, in fact

Trail of Blood Reveals the Murder in Sheep Pasture And the Police Work Fast

By PETER LEVINS.

EARLY on the morning of Monday, May 9, 1932, two farmers of Holmes county, Ohio, set out for the farm of Charles Reidenbach, three miles from Millersburg. It was sheep-shearing time, when the farmers help each other, and the two neighbors were on their way to assist Reidenbach. They entered the lane leading from the Millersburg-Coshocton road, carefully replacing the gate at the entrance so that none of the lambs could get out.

The two farmers trudged up the hilly, rutty lane. Stains of blood in the dirt caused them to halt. A sheep had been wounded, they decided. They followed the trail of blood, hoping to find the sheep and save it. They walked over the side of the steep hill, and down to a small brook.

What they found was not a wounded sheep but the mutilated body of a girl.

The skull had been crushed. All the clothes were gone except the shoes and stockings. The fair skin was scratched and bruised; the body had apparently been dragged down the hill through the briar and stubble. The face had been beaten as though to prevent identification.

Sheriff John A. Stevens reached the scene at 11 a. m. He concluded at once that the murderer had not been very familiar with the terrain, else he would have taken the body 500 feet farther on, where there were thick woods and brush.

Sheriff Stevens returned to the lane leading to the Reidenbach farmhouse to examine tire tracks there.

In the soggy ground—he had rained on Sunday—he found the impressions of two different sets of tires. One set left longitudinal stripes, and made the deeper impression. The other set made a broad ribbon-like indentation, as though the tires were well worn. Also, a triangular impression indicated a patch on one of the tires.

Stevens made a rough sketch of the tire marks on the back of an envelope and then went to the Reidenbach barn and examined the tires on Reidenbach's car. They bore no resemblance to either of the sets in the lane. Reidenbach said he had not used his car, nor had there been any visitors, since the rainstorm on Sunday.

The officer sent for Dr. J. C. Elder, the coroner, and sat down on a stump to await his associate. While he sat there a man in overalls hurried up the lane. Stevens saw that it was Andy Devore, a farmer who lived a mile away on Sand Run Hill.

"Say sheriff, there's a Chevrolet coach on one of my fields," he exclaimed. "It's plumb up against a tree, with the radiator all smashed in."

Stevens drove to the Devore place. The wrecked car was at the foot of a steep grade. It bore Ohio license No. 492,007. It was in second gear, and apparently had been pushed, driverless, from the top of the grade. There was blood on one of the fenders.

The officer saw at once that the tire treads were the same as the heavier car in the Reidenbach lane.

Inside the machine was a woman's pocketbook, and inside the pocketbook was a letter addressed to Mrs. Gertrude Meeker, Rural Route, Creston, Ohio. It was postmarked Oak Hill, Ohio.

(Creston is in the adjoining county of Wayne, 26 miles from Millersburg. Oak Hill is in the southern part of the state, 200 miles distant.)

Sheriff Stevens had the body taken to Millersburg, the county seat, and checked up on the auto license. It had been issued to Herbert Meeker, Rural Route, Creston. Stevens started for Creston, stopping at Wooster, the county seat of Wayne county. He went to see Sheriff Clark Shearer and discovered that Shearer was puzzling over a mystery of his own—a mystery in which the Meekers also figured.

He said that Herbert Meeker, a young farmer, had been to see him at about 7:30 that morning, complaining that his wife, Gertrude, had disappeared during the night. He said she had taken his Chevrolet, most of his clothes, all of his money, amounting to eight dollars.

Sheriff Shearer knew Meeker well—the young man had an unsavory record. He had led a gang of cattle thieves that had given the farmers in that region endless trouble for years. (Cows are not branded in Ohio, which makes it easier for the thieves.) Meeker, caught with the goods, had served a term in the Mansfield reformatory, returned to Wayne with a wife, settled down on his mother's farm, and apparently turned over a new leaf.

The two sheriffs drove to the Meeker farm, reaching there at 11 a. m. Meeker was harrowing in a field a few hundred yards from his house. The officer told him to unhitch the three horses and then took him to the house.

The diminutive ex-cattle thief—he was not much over five feet tall and weighed at the most 110 pounds—showed the officers where he and his wife had slept the night before—in a bedroom beside the driveway to the barn, where his car was kept. He said he and Gertrude had just been reunited Saturday after a separation of several months.

She had been working as a maid in a Cleveland home, lost her job, and returned to her mother's place at Oak Hill.

Meeker said that his wife sent for him and he drove down to get her. They returned Saturday night. On Sunday she wanted him to take her to a picture show at Akron, but he told her he was tired and didn't want to go. That led to a quarrel, he continued, and in this mood they retired Sunday night, between 9 and 10 o'clock.

The alarm clock awakened him at 4 a. m., he said, and he discovered that Gertrude had disappeared with his car, most of his clothes, and his money.

"I had breakfast," he said, "and then I went to report what happened."

His mother substantiated his story.

Taken to the morgue in Millersburg for the purpose of identifying the body, the young man placed a handkerchief to his eyes as he approached the casket and then broke down, crying:

"Gertrude, get up and tell them who did it!"

The sheriff called up Reidenbach and asked him if he knew Herb Meeker. Reidenbach replied that he had lived on a farm adjoining that of the Meekers in Wayne county up until a few years ago, when Reidenbach had sold out and bought his present place. He said Meeker had visited the Reidenbach farm the previous December.

There had been no report of a stolen car in Holmes county, so Stevens drove into Wayne county to see if any of the inhabitants had missed or loaned a car. None had. Then the officer decided to call on Mrs. Sarah Meeker, mother of the prisoner, and to try the old we-have-a-confession trick.

"Mrs. Meeker," he said when she came to the door, "your boy has confessed and he has sent me to get his clothes."

The woman paled. "I ain't got his clothes," she said.

Stevens struck out blindly again, saying, "Well, he said you would show me where they were put after they were burned."

Mrs. Meeker looked frightened. "He's told you—everything?"

The officer nodded.

She wrung her hands. "They had a quarrel," she said. "After Herbert wouldn't go to the picture show with her she made such a fuss that he agreed to take her fishing in Killbuck creek. They started out about 9 o'clock last night. Herbert came back about 3 in the morning."

"Well, she's gone," he said.

Mrs. Meeker said she didn't ask any questions but she feared the worst, because there was blood on his clothes. She helped him burn his crimson-stained hat, coat, shirt and trousers in the cook stove, and then they buried the remnants. The mother showed Stevens where they were and he dug them up.

Then he took her to Millersburg.

Now, the sheriff and the prosecutor tackled their prisoner again. After an hour's questioning, Herbert Meeker began his story.

He said that Gertrude had threatened the lives of himself and his mother, so he had determined to get rid of her. He confided his plan to Harold Young, 19, a relative by marriage. Young had been a member of the cattle gang and was obligated to Meeker for having kept his mouth shut when he was caught and convicted.

Meeker said he drove his wife to the Young farm, near Hermanville, and while she sat in the car he discussed the murder plot with Harold.

Young was to go ahead in his Ford coupe to the lane in the Reidenbach farm and there await the Meekers in their Chevrolet. Young knew how to get to the Reidenbach place, because he had stayed there while hunting squirrels the previous November.

Meeker said that everything was carried out according to their plan. He stopped his car in the lane and then took his wife in his arms, adjusting their position so that the back of her head was close to the open window of the car. Then, he said, Young crept up in the darkness and struck the girl with a tire pump. He swung the weapon again and again.

Then, not fully satisfied that she was dead, they placed the girl on the ground and Meeker drove the car back and forth across the body three times.

Next the killers each grabbed the stocky young woman by a foot and dragged her down the hillside through brush and stubble to the creek. In the darkness they misjudged their location, thinking they had driven farther up the lane, where at that distance down the hill they would be in a deeply wooded section. But they had feared to turn on their lights.

They gathered up the girl's scattered clothes and drove out of the lane. Reaching the Millersburg-Coshocton road, they turned on the lights and examined the Meeker car. They noticed that one of the fenders was covered with blood, and that there were stains on the upholstery.

They decided to get rid of the car, so they drove on a mile to the top of Sand Run Hill, which they knew was steep and led down to the river bank. Then Meeker got out, put the car in second gear, turned up the throttle, and started it down the hill.

But here their plan failed. Halfway down the machine catapulted into a tree. The killers fled, forgetting about the license plates and not knowing about the pocketbook. It was near dawn and they wanted to get far away from the scene.

Meeker's signature was not dry on his confession before Sheriff Stevens was on the way to the Young farm, accompanied by two deputies. At Wooster the party picked up Sheriff Shearer and a deputy.

It was nearing midnight when they arrived at the Young home. The house stood close to the road, partly hidden by two large cherry trees. There was no light visible.

The officers drove into the yard and surrounded the house, placing their machines at points of vantage and playing the headlights upon the two-story dwelling. Stevens shouted for Young to come out and give himself up. No answer. The officers tooted their horns, but still there was no response from the house.

Stevens crept up to the kitchen window and played a flashlight on the interior. A pair of pants, a work shirt and some shoes, placed on a chair, leaped into view.

"Come out, Young!" shouted Stevens. Again no answer.

Stevens kicked in the front door, reached in and turned the lock and stepped into the house.

At that moment there was a crash upstairs. It sounded as though a piece of heavy furniture had fallen over. Then the officers smelled powder smoke. They rushed upstairs.

Harold Young lay dead on his bedroom floor. Beside him was the shotgun with which he had taken his life.

And in the barn was his Ford

AUNT HET

BY ROBERT QUILEN.

"ALL my life I've heard stories about sweet Christian women that spent their lives prayin' for operry husbands that stayed drunk most of the time. An' I kind o' got the idea that poor saintly women was the only folks that ever had their faith tried like that.

"But I've learned different. Women ain't the only ones that live in torment. An' they ain't broke by it like a man is. They get a kind o' melancholy pleasure out o' bein' martyrs, an' they enjoy havin' folks notice how sweetly they suffer in silence."

"A man ain't got no such consolation. All he's got is a sense of duty and a kind o' stubborn pride that won't let him give up."

"You take Cousin Joe. He's a good man at heart, but Amy sours him. When he found out she was childish an' deceitful, it didn't have no effect on him except to make him ashamed, an' he went right on bein' good to her. But she made a slaver out o' him an' then pouted an' complained an' nagged at him all the time until he just kind o' give up hope."

"He still takes care of her because he thinks it's his duty, but you can tell he's changed inside. He talks bitter an' I hear he's got to cussin' an' drinkin' a little."

"Religion is a consolation to a mistreated wife; but when a woman gives a man a raw deal, he loses faith in everything else, an' gets so he hates everything a foot high."

Herbert Meeker was indicted within a week and on June 13 his trial opened before Common Pleas Judge R. B. Putnam. He repudiated his confession, asserting that it was obtained under duress. His defense was that Gertrude was killed by a blow aimed at his head by Young, who wanted him out of the way so he could be alone with her.

Under cross examination he admitted, however, that he had helped Young to drag the body down the hill. He could not explain why he had failed to reveal the crime to the authorities.

The jury of 10 men and two women deliberated for seven hours and returned a verdict of guilty on June 17. Less than 40 days elapsed between the murder and the verdict of death—the first death sentence passed in Holmes county in 52 years.

THE DELIBERATE TRAP BID.

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

IN THESE columns I have frequently stated that trap bidding is one of the most heinous of offenses. I have described situations where a player raises his partner's opening bid to three, strongly urging him to bid four, and then bids five when his partner accepts his extremely strong invitation. Bidding such as this is to be deplored, but times do occur when the nature of the bidding situation forces a player to deliberately trap. The following is an example:

South Dealer.

The bidding: (Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South North
1NT (3)
2NT (3)
3NT (6)
Pass

1—Not strong enough for a forcing takeout, but decidedly a hand which looks like game.
2—South has several possible alternatives. His strength justifies raising his partner's response to four immediately, but the fact that he holds only 3 trumps makes this course seem inadvisable. He could also bid game immediately in not-rump, but this might conceivably put the bidding at too high a point too quickly. On the whole, a deliberate underbid of two no-trump is probably the best procedure.
3—An inferential force, showing the rebiddability of the spade suit.
4—Affirming at least secondary spade support. Having more or less trapped himself in the first place by bidding only two no-trump, South cannot now change his mind and overbid. His partner's hand might consist of 6 spades to the queen-knight and an outside queen. The deliberate trap bid of two no-trump is probably the best procedure.

The bidding:
South West North East
1NT 1♠ 3♥ Pass
4NT Pass 6♥ Pass
Pass Pass

The bidding does not call for much comment. South must make some sort of slam try after North's double raise, and the best bid available is the artificial four-no-trump bid to show two aces and the king of the bid suit. North holds only one ace and consequently cannot respond with five no-trump; but since he does hold the ace of the opponents' suit, very strong trump support and a void suit, he should not sign off but should contract for the slam.

would come from the East hand and would undoubtedly be either a club or a diamond. North cannot possibly hold the aces in both of these suits or he would have bid two spades over one diamond. The same tricks would probably be available at a no-trump contract as at a suit and forcing West to make the opening lead is very essential.

The reader will note that against any opening other than the ace of clubs seven no-trump can be made. He will also note that the contract of six spades will be defeated if East decides to open a club.

Forced lead plays, or, as they are called, strip and elimination plays, have become extremely common recently. It does not require any great excellence in dummy play to execute one of these maneuvers and many an average player has had the satisfaction recently of forcing his opponent to make an unfavorable lead. The defense against this play is much more complex, however, and it requires an astute player to recognize the situation.

In the following hand East displayed considerable foresight in preventing the declarer from making a contract which for a while seemed unbeatable:

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ 1♠ 3♥ Pass
Pass Pass

The bidding does not call for much comment. South must make some sort of slam try after North's double raise, and the best bid available is the artificial four-no-trump bid to show two aces and the king of the bid suit. North holds only one ace and consequently cannot respond with five no-trump; but since he does hold the ace of the opponents' suit, very strong trump support and a void suit, he should not sign off but should contract for the slam.

a singleton spade, and consequently the hand seemed bound to lose a club and a spade trick, but South saw a very good way of making the hand on an end-play if East held the queen-knight of clubs. Consequently to trick 2 he led a low diamond, ruffing in dummy. He returned a trump to his own hand and then ruffed another diamond. The second round of trumps cleared that suit and the king of diamonds was then ruffed out. At this point a small club was led from dummy. An unthinking defensive player would have automatically played the 8-spot, knowing that a triple finesse was impossible. But the East player in question was made of different stuff. He played the ten, providing against the possibility of being thrown in the lead on the third round of clubs. South won with the ace and laid down the king. East played the knave. At this point declarer led his last club, hoping that East was down to the blank queen, but West played the 9 and East still had remaining the 8-spot. West was then enabled to lead another spade and eventually to take the setting trick in that suit.

GRACEFUL FORMALITY

*Evening Ensembles
For the Early Summer Are Very Feminine, and Three-Quarter Wraps Are In High Favor*

ACCESSORIES

BELOW, a striking link bracelet is fashioned of diamonds and sapphires and comes with a matching pair of earrings. The handsome flat vanity case of gold shows a front studded with sparkling diamonds. The capacious evening bag is done in blue and silver checked lame.

A SANDAL

THE most popular evening shoe of the early Summer season. The model above, made of dull red crepe, features braided silver straps and the new very straight high heel. Of course, it is very much cut out.

WHAT'S NEW IN WRAPS

ABOVE, at left, is a three-quarter wrap of antique red velvet, which hangs straight from the shoulders and ties in a large flat bow at the neck. The full sleeves come to just below the elbow and are banded with sable. The wrap in the next sketch is the same length and is made of gleaming stiff white satin. The back flares straight from the narrow scarf collar and the voluminous sleeves are held in at the cuffs by narrow sable bands. The frock of chiffon, printed in yellow, blue and white, reveals a very low décolletage partly covered by a circular capelet. The waistline is swathed and the skirt falls in graceful folds to the floor.

RUFFLES WIN FAVOR

THIS black organza frock has an underslip of taffeta and the blouse consists of a wide bertha edged with two deep ruffles held at the shoulder by a huge red velvet poppy. Three deeper ruffles start at the knee and billow into a graceful train. This sophisticated and effective costume is completed with a tiny red velvet muff.

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

THE PRINCE

ONCE MORE TARZAN HUNTED WITH THE TRIBE

BUT AS THE APES HUNTED FOR FOOD, SO WERE THEY HUNTED. HATED TARMANGANI, DRIVEN BY STARVATION FROM THE CITY, STALKED THE JUNGLE FOR FOOD.

TO PROTECT HIMSELF AND HIS BROTHER APES, TARZAN RETRIEVED THE WEAPONS THAT HE HAD HIDDEN IN THE TREE.

HIS ARROWS WERE EVER READY FOR THE HUNTERS WHO DARED STALK EVEN THE GREAT APES FOR FOOD.

WHILE THE JUNGLE WAS FILLED WITH SLAUGHTER, THE STARVING PEOPLE IN THE CITY REJOICED IN THE NEWS THAT A HUMAN SACRIFICE WAS BEING PREPARED TO SAVE THEM FROM STARVATION.

ERICH VON HARBEN WAS MADE READY FOR THE DEATH!

EVEN THE TEARFUL PRAYERS OF THE PRINCESS NIKOTRIS IN ERICH'S BEHALF FAILED TO MOVE THE PHARAOH. "THE GODS HAVE SPOKEN," HE SAID.

THEN SHE BESOUGHT HER BROTHER, PRINCE TUTAMKEN TO SEEK TARZAN IN THE JUNGLE. "SURELY, HE WILL RETURN TO SAVE HIS CLOSEST FRIEND," SHE SAID.

AFTER TUTAMKEN DEPARTED, NIKOTRIS WAS ALLOWED TO SAY FAREWELL TO VON HARBEN. WHEN SHE TOLD HIM THAT TARZAN WAS BEING SUMMONED, HE SMILED AND SAID, "THEN I CANNOT DIE."

SWIFTLY THROUGH THE JUNGLE SPED TUTAMKEN UNTIL HE WAS IN SIGHT OF THE APE HORDE.

Details of The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S Know Your Georgia Contest

The requirements for entering the contest are very simple. Merely clip the pictures and preserve them in the form of a scrapbook. All pictures printed on the "Know Your Georgia" pages must be used. The contest will be judged on the basis of neatness, cleverness and originality.

TWO SCHOLARSHIPS, one to the University of Georgia at Athens, and one to Wesleyan College at Macon, will be given to undergraduate students. SIX FREE VACATION TRIPS will also be given as prizes. Anyone is eligible to compete for these.

Competitors for these trips will participate exactly as the contestants for the scholarships—by the preparation of scrapbooks. The winners of the vacation trips will be the guests of The Constitution for one week at the Cloister Hotel at Sea Island Beach; the Hotel De Soto at Savannah and the Savannah Hotel. Accommodations are for two persons at each of the hotels so the winners may take a guest with them.

Don't delay. Start your scrapbook with the pictures published on the front page of this section. No special talents are necessary to win. Nothing to sell. Nothing to buy. No obligations. Just another boost for Georgia.

HERE'S ALL YOU HAVE TO DO.

Cut out the "Know Your Georgia" pages in The Constitution each week, starting April 16 and ending August 6, and make a scrapbook of them. You may use any type or size scrapbook or you may present them in any other form. You may use in addition to the "Know Your Georgia" pages any decorations or wording that you desire. The pages may be cut into pieces, but all pictures must be preserved.

Neatness, cleverness and originality count—a combination of these will be the basis of the general excellence award. Print on the back of the book your name, age, address and either the word "scholarship" or "vacation trip," according to the prize you are competing for. The contest closes August 6, 1933. The books must be in The Constitution office by 12 noon August 15. Books received after that time will be eliminated. Postage must be prepaid in full or books will not be accepted. The books will not be returned. A competent board of judges will make the awards. Their judgment will be final. Your submitting an answer is your acceptance of those conditions.

HOW POINTS COUNT.

Each week's page will count 10 points, making a total of 170 points. You may start your scrapbooks at any time during the contest. You will only be penalized 10 points for each missing page. This can be made up, however, by scoring an equal number of points in the special awards for general excellence, completeness and artistic handling. Neatness and cleverness will be graded on a basis of 100 points; 100 points will be given for general excellence, 50 points will be given for completeness, 50 points will be given for artistic handling. If you miss an edition a limited number of extra copies will be available each week. By writing to The Constitution and enclosing 10 cents in stamps for handling and postage one of these will be mailed to you. Be sure to state the date of issue you desire. In case of ties prizes of equal value will be given all tying contestants.

RULES OF SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST.

All persons, except Constitution employees and their relatives, between the ages of 14 and 21 years of age are eligible. Persons competing for the scholarships must have a sufficiently high rating from their respective schools to insure acceptance to the college or university; if they do not have recognized ratings they will naturally have to stand the entrance examination. If the winner fails to pass the examination the award will automatically go to the second winner and so on. The winners may take their scholarships in 1933, 1934, 1935 or 1936. They will be given the privilege of selecting the year. This makes the offer available to all students now in high schools or preparatory schools.

The scholarships are as follows: The boy's prize will be one year's tuition at the University of Georgia, including all basic fees for the nine-month term. It will be open to any undergraduate student desiring to attend either the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Agriculture, or the College of Education. It does not cover board or incidental expenses. The girl's prize will be one year's full literary tuition for the nine-month term at Wesleyan College. It is open to any undergraduate student. The scholarship does not include board or incidental expenses.

FREE VACATION TRIPS. Anyone is eligible to win one of these splendid vacation trips by merely following the instructions as given above. The first prize winner will be awarded a week's accommodations (room and meals for two persons) at either The Cloister hotel at Sea Island Beach, the Savannah hotel, or the De Soto hotel at Savannah. The second prize winner will be given the choice of the two remaining hotels (after the first selection has been made) and the third winner will receive accommodations at the remaining hotel. These resort hotels are three of the finest in the south. The choice is merely a matter of personal preference. Accommodations, which are equally excellent at all these hotels, are for two persons (room and meals).

REMINISCENT OF SLAVERY DAYS---No. 7 OF THE "KNOW YOUR GEORGIA" CONTEST SERIES

A Constitution Roving Pontiac feature.

Photographs by Kenneth Rogers.

THE GREAT HOUSE of the Sapelo Island plantation of Howard E. Coffin, built in 1800, laid waste in Sherman's March to the Sea and rebuilt in and around the original walls. Before the Civil War it was one of the great plantations on the Georgia coast operated by slave labor.

THE LOVELY GARDENS OF GREENWICH PLANTATION, in Chatham county. Typical of the pre-Civil War homes in Georgia.

THE LIBRARY at Wormloe Plantation, near Savannah, where invaluable records of slavery days are kept.

THE OLD SLAVE MARKET AT LOUISVILLE, GA., was the scene of great activity in pre-Civil War days. The Constitution Roving Pontiac is shown beside the market.

THIS LITTLE HOUSE is typical of the homes of the slaves before the Civil War. They are fast disappearing, and with them goes one of the most picturesque sidelights on the old south.

THE HERMITAGE, near Savannah. This famous old antebellum plantation is a fine example of the rural homes built by slave labor.

FAMOUS SPORT OF PLANTATION OWNERS IN THE '30s—Slave gamblers under the direction of their owners vied for the purses which ran as high as $10,000 in the annual "dugout" races on the coast. Howard Coffin, of Sapelo Island, owns this reproduction of the speedy craft of that day.

SLAVE QUARTERS AT HERMITAGE PLANTATION—The most perfectly preserved in the state.
